WSFPI receivership property auction

Next Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 16 and 17, will mark the end of an era for the tribes, as the property of Warm Springs Forest Products Industries will be put to auction.

The two-day auction will begin at 9 a.m. on both days. There will be an opportunity to preview the auction properties on Tuesday, November 15 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There are hundreds of items of all kinds to be auctioned. These include heavy equipment such as log loaders, timber saws, chippers, tools, buildings—all the equipment associated with the operation of a lumber mill.

A complete list of the items is available in a detailed brochure found at the website:

Dave McMechan/Spilyay

Curtis Stacona, of the mill cleanup crew, walks past some of the heavy equipment up for auction next week.

murphyauction.com

The auction is a final part of the tribal court-supervised WSPFI receivership process. The auction will be conducted by the James G. Murphy Co., commercial and industrial auctioneers.

Tribal members will receive a 10 percent discount on items that they win at the auction. Proof of tribal identification is required to receive the discount.

Bidding is also available online at the above mentioned website.

The property auction is a way to satisfy at least some of the outstanding WSPFI debts, including debt to the tribes.

The receivership began earlier this year in the spring, after WSPFI became insolvent and unable to reopen following the winter closure.

The tribes have owned the mill since the 1960s, and the enterprise was profitable and a major local employer for many years.

But various factors—the recent timber market in general, and a required reduction in the allowable cut of tribal member, for instance—rendered the operation no longer viable.

Council names new Secretary-Treasurer

The Twenty-Seventh Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes hired Michele Stacona as the new Secretary-Treasurer.

Ms. Stacona has a background in accounting and finance, and worked previously for the Confederated Tribes.

She served as executive director of the gaming enterprise, and in the tribal organization she worked in Finance control, and as the internal auditor.

Michele lived and worked in Warm Springs for about 18 years before taking a job in Arizona in 2012. In Arizona she worked in gaming finance for the Gila River Indian Community, which has three casinos and hotels.

Michele moved to Arizona because her daughter Kortney was planning to attend Arizona State University, where she now is a junior majoring in Health Science.

Living in Arizona, Michele still made regular visits to Warm Springs. "I have family and friends here," she says.

During a visit to Warm Springs in July, she happened to meet with a Tribal Council member who encouraged her to apply for the Secretary-Treasurer position.

A strong background in accounting and finance is an important attribute for the Secretary-Treasurer, and Michele is the ideal candidate, the Tribal Council de-

Michele first moved to Warm Springs with her husband, who she had met while they were in school at Ft. Lewis College in Durango. She is originally from New Mexico, and is a Navajo tribal member. Her daughter is a member of the Confederated Tribes.

The S-T

The secretary-treasurer is responsible for the implementation of the political, financial and governmental actions of the Tribal Council.

The S-T oversees management of the tribes' financial affairs, safeguards tribal records and assets, and fulfills the responsibilities delegated through the Tribal Constitution and Management Plan.

TERO annual conference at KNT, progress with MOU

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and Kah-Nee-Ta will host the Fortieth Annual National TERO Convention in July 2017. Warm Springs TERO dispatcher Mary Sando-Emhoolah heard this good news at a recent TERO conference.

TERO is the Tribal Employment Rights Office of the Confederated Tribes.

The 2017 Annual Convention will bring the TERO program full circle: It will be 40 years ago next year that 12 tribes came together for the very first Annual TERO Conference, held in 1977 at Kah-Nee-Ta.

Meanwhile, the Warm Springs TERO office has had success in placing workers, including some displaced by the closure of the mill.

People who are interested complete the employee information, and are called to work as positions come open. TERO has the authority to enforce tribal member equal access to employment.

The jurisdiction of the TERO includes all of the reservation, plus areas within 60 miles of the reservation boundary. Oregon Department of Transportation projects within this jurisdiction, for instance, are subject to TERO authority.

A delaying point has been an overlap area to the west that is shared by the Grand Ronde TERO and the Warm Springs TERO. A tribal delegation met recently with Grand Ronde officials in order to resolve the situation. The meeting went well, and Warm Springs TERO is now working on a memorandum of understanding with the Oregon Department of Transportation.

The Warm Springs team included TERO director Wendell Jim, Sando-Emhoolah, TERO commission chair Jonathan Smith, Tribal Council members Jody Calica, Carina Miller, Brigette McConville and Lee Tom, Government Affairs Director Louis Pitt and legal counsel.

Wasco Co. rejects rail expansion

The Wasco County Board of County Commissioners voted last week to deny the proposed Union Pacific rail expansion planned for Mosier.

Friends of the Columbia Gorge, the Columbia Riverkeeper, and Physicians for Social Responsibility had appealed the Wasco County Planning Commission decision to grant Union Pacific their permit for a new track through Mosier.

The Yakama Nation separately appealed the decision due to the project's violations of tribal treaty rights and the National Scenic Area Act. The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs have also been opposed to the proposal.

The county board of commissioners based their denial of the project on National Scenic Area laws prohibiting adverse effects to treaty rights.

The Board of Commissioners is scheduled to meet this week to adopt a final order denying the project.

The City of Mosier is still recovering from the Union Pacific oil train derailment, spill and fire on June 3 that leaked 40,000 gallons of crude oil and contaminated groundwater in the small town.

The Federal Railroad Administration released a report in June finding that Union Pacific was at fault for the accident because it failed to follow safety and rail inspection requirements.

A rail traffic report found that increases in rail capacity from this expansion could be far greater than Union Pacific has claimed, potentially increasing rail capacity from about 35 trains a day to as many as 100 trains a day.

Letters to the editor

A thank you

I would like to thank all of you for the out-pouring of love and caring you have shown me and my family in the loss of our loved one.

This is a true blessing: Each one of you who attended the services and expressed your knowing words for Mickey, this is so helpful to me.

I want to thank Rev. Allen Elston for leading the services, and Don Sohappy, Wilson Wewa and Owen Wallulatum for the prayer songs. This will help in the days to come.

I would like to thank the Presbyterian Pastor for the use of the church. I want to thank the OSU Extension staff, Beth Ann Beamer, Rosanna S., Sara R., Sharlayne Garcia and Felicia Rhoan, for an outstanding meal. Your graciousness and generosity are beyond measure, and I thank you from the bottom of my heart.

My love and thanks to all of you who were a witness to this celebration of Mickey's life.

Arlene Boileau and my family.

Reaching out

To my people of Warm Springs,

I'm reaching out for your prayers. This was the last time for my feet to be walking in the kitchen at the longhouse. I prayed and cried to the Creator, "Why must I give up what I love doing, the cooking at the longhouses?"

So, Atwai Roland Kalama Jr. was my last meal to cook, and I want to thank Kimiko, Frankie and Gidget for coming to check on the longhouse and to help us with the cooking.

I truly love my nieces Krisleen and Lorena, as they are willing to help their Auntie L.T., never telling me No.

My little sister Emilena I love so much for just being her true self.

I tried going back to the Shaker Church but the door was closed to me, so I will only shake my bells in my home on Sunday, and I will not forget my daily prayers.

I am very thankful for my husband for sticking by my side as he makes me laugh and be happy. It's been hard but I place myself in the Creator's hands. I am so grateful for what I have done and maybe be blessed another way to contribute to my people.

So, please understand when I say I cannot cook for you people who have a loved one laying, as it is a medical reason for me to say no.

Please say a daily prayer for L.T. Suppah.

Sincerely and respectfully,
Teresa Nora Suppah.

No DAPL

The New York Times joins Indian Country in opposing the Dakota Access Pipeline, calling for a change in the route to avoid the home of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe in North Dakota. Here is the editorial comment from the Times:

A pipeline may well be the most profitable and efficient way to move a half-million barrels of crude oil a day across the Plains.

But in a time of oil gluts and plummeting oil prices, is it worth it? Is it worth the degradation of the environment, the danger to the water, the insult to the heritage of the Sioux?

The law-enforcement response to the largely peaceful Standing Rock impasse has led to grim clashes at protest camps between hundreds of civilians and officers in riot gear.

The confrontation cannot help summoning a wretched history. Not far from Standing Rock, in the Black Hills of South Dakota, sacred land was stolen from the Sioux, plundered for gold and other minerals, and then carved into four monumental presidential heads: an American shrine built from a brazen act of defacement.

The Sioux know as well as any of America's native peoples that justice is a shifting concept, that treaties, laws and promises can wilt under the implacable pressure for mineral extraction. But without relitigating the history of the North American conquest, perhaps the protesters can achieve their aim to stop or reroute the pipeline.

"We are monitoring this closely," Mr. Obama said. "I think as a general rule, my view is that there is a way for us to accommodate sacred lands of Native Americans." Of course there is. There has to be.

Working on career through Massage Therapy

Pauline Culpus is a Massage Therapy student at Central Oregon Community College.

Pauline graduated from Madras High in 2006. She started working at Kah-Nee-Ta in 2011, then started thinking about returning to school.

She decided to make the plunge into education, wanting to add more to her resume. Her only regret now is that she didn't return sooner:

"I love school every day," Pauline was saying recently.

"People are so warm and welcoming, and no one made me feel inferior that I returned to school after ten years."

Pauline Culpus

Pauline attributes her success at school from the support she gets from her family, who have always encouraged and supported her in her dreams.

Still, it has been hard: Pauline had to give up time to spend with her family, and is missing her little sister's Celeste MorningOwl's senior year. But her dream to own a full service spa is getting closer to reality.

She wishes she hadn't procrastinated so long, and her advice to others is just do it because otherwise it won't happen:

"I'm the happiest when I'm working on a client, and this is what motivates me when it gets hard."

Warm Springs, regional youth excel at Heart of Oregon Corps

Put a group of five 16-18 year-old teenagers together for a summer job, and the inevitable result is the greatest selfie ever (right).

But a lot more goes on during Central Oregon Youth Conservation Corps—COYCC for short—than selfie-taking.

Over the 2016 summer, 80 young people from across Central Oregon work in our region's National Forests completing trail maintenance, cleaning campgrounds, improving riparian habitats, and pulling noxious weeds. The youth were from Warm Springs, Madras, Redmond, Bend and other Central Oregon communities.

The U.S. Forest Service is our vested partner in this program, and they provide much of the funding, planning and coordination of the program.

This partnership also allows youth to gain exposure to careers in Natural Resource management. We like to think of it as engaging "Tomorrow's Conservationists."

Camp Lead ran its second

year this summer. This program serves youth with ranging disabilities to engage them in conservation work as a step towards gaining independence and joining the workforce.

Leadership is a key component of the week-long sleep-away camp, and so far it has had great impacts on youth participants. Sonny, 19, was homeless and unemployed when he enrolled in the camp. Today, he is receiving training at Job Corps to become a chef.

Another camper, 19-year-old Sarah, said she struggled with leadership skills before attending the camp, especially in JROTC. Four months after, she applied to the United States Air Force.

Finally, something awesome happened this summer for the first time. We teamed up with the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation and Cascadia Expeditions to take a group of our AmeriCorps youth on a river trip.

It wasn't all fun and games: They completed a project along the way, but it was an eye-opening experience to our youth, none of who had ever been exposed to whitewater rafting.

Services, guest at Veterans Summit

Linda Woods explains the origin of the Fallen Warrior Eagle Staff:

In February of 2008 an eagle fell from the sky during an ice blizzard near Cheboygan, Michigan.

Three weeks passed before three men went out to search for this "fallen warrior," as we refer to an eagle or an eagle feather that has fallen. They found the eagle in the frozen ice of Black River. A combat veteran performed a sacred ceremony on the ice before they brought the eagle out of the ice.

They used a chain saw to cut around the eagle, removing a five-foot block of ice. The eagle was beautifully preserved.

A friend of mine had the eagle head, but he knew he needed to pass the eagle on to a veteran... After prayer and consulting others, he decided he would offer it to me.

In 2011 this spiritual gift, this beautiful eagle head was presented to me in a sacred ceremony, as the men shared the story of this eagle.

With the eagle head Ms. Woods, who served in the Air Force during the Vietnam era, created a staff in honor of women veterans. She is the first female veteran to carry an Eagle Staff.

She carries the staff on behalf of all women, especially her fellow women veterans who have served the nation.

At the Veterans Summit last week: Caroline Cruz, general manager of Health and Human Services; special guest Linda Woods; and the clinic's Mitchell DeVaney with the Eagle Staff.

Linda was a special guest this year at the Warm Springs Veterans Summit, where she showed the Eagle Staff.

Ms. Woods is a member of the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa Chippewa Indians. She comes from the Ottawa Indian village in Leelanau, Michigan.

Following her military experience, Ms. Woods became a substance abuse counselor, having earned a Masters of Social Work in 1994 from San Jose University in California. She was inducted into the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame.

Though she retired in 2008, with over 30 years of experience in social work, Ms. Woods continues to serve the Native American community.

The mobile veterans service clinic (above) was available outside the Community Center.

Organizations on hand at the summit were the Commissioned Corps Officers of the U.S. Public Health Service - Warm Springs Health and Wellness Center; the Veterans Administration - Portland Medical Center; the VA Portland regional office; the Oregon Department of Veterans Affairs; the Native Procurement Technical Assistance Center; the Oregon Veteran Home of Lebanon/The Dalles. Plus VETS employment and training services; the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Department of Veterans Affairs; the Bend Vet Center; and the Department of Labor, among others.

Mitchell Waldo Boileau, June 19, 1944 ~ October 14, 2016

Mitchell "Mickey" Waldo Boileau was born to Waldo Jennings and Geneva (Newell) Boileau on June 19, 1944, in Thomas, Oklahoma, the youngest of five siblings.

He passed away October 14, 2016, in his home in Warm Springs, Oregon, after struggling with complications of heart failure, stroke and diabetes.

He attended school in Madras, graduating from Madras High School in 1964. Shortly thereafter, he married the love of his life, Arlene (Brunoe) Ross, on June 26, 1964.

Together, they raised five children: Herbert, Urbana, Relda and Mary Ross; and Susie Boileau. They lived most of their lives in Warm Springs. He worked for Warm Springs Forest Products Industries for 38 years. He worked in various positions and retired after serving as shipping foreman.

Mickey enjoyed riding his motorcycle; many times he and Arlene rode together. He also was an avid bow hunter, valuing time spent in nature and in the company of family and friends. He loved fishing and especially loved sharing these days with others.

He spent several of his adult years bowling and was a member of the Madras Bowling League. Most importantly, he loved his family and dedicated his life to raising and supporting them.

In 2000, with failing health, he retired from WSFPI. He continued to support his family as much as able, assisting his wife with OSU Extension activities, including the annual Culture Camp held every summer.

He was preceded in death by his parents; siblings Diane "Charlotte" Hawthorne, Gloria Kay Ries, Crystal Keo and Samuel Boileau; son Herbert Ross; and grandson Joel Martinez.

Mickey is survived by his wife Arlene Boileau; daughters and sons-in-law Urbana Ross and Howie Arnett, Mary Ross and Roy Wiseman, and Susie Antekier, all of Warm Springs; Relda and Les Peratrovich of Ellensburg, Wash; seven grandchildren, seven great grandchildren; numerous nieces and nephews, and other extended family in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Oklahoma and Texas.

We will miss him so. Our grief is not for him, but for ourselves and moments we will no longer share with him. He rests in the arms of God, returned to wholeness—no more sorrow, no more illness, and no more pain.

Helpful service with Disability coordinator

The Social Security Disability process can be complicated: Questions come up like, How do you get started? Am I qualified? What do you need to submit an application? And what do you do if your application is denied?

Rosemary Alarcon is on hand to answer these kinds of questions, and to otherwise assist people as they work through the process. She can even give rides to

Rosemary Alarcon

Bend for people who need to submit documentation to the regional SSI office.

Rosemary, known to many as Mushy, at first was a volunteer at the Disability office. She was working at the Warm Springs Library, and would volunteer during off hours.

Her background is with Social Security, as she worked with the department for many years in Salinas, Calif.

She moved to Central Oregon in 2009, after retiring from her job with Social Security. Later she moved to Warm Springs.

The Disability coordinator job came open late this summer, and Rosemary was a natural fit for the position.

Her office is in the Family Resource Center, open 8:30 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. She can also be reached at 541-553-4955.

Recreation planning for Christmas holiday

Warm Springs Recreation will ring in the Christmas holiday season with the Polar Express Tree Lighting, December 1.

The tree lighting will be at Community Center front lawn at 6:30 p.m. There will be a Christmas story about a little sleigh bell.

"We'll be in our pajamas, so that's how you should dress," the Rec Department says. For more information call Carol at 541-553-3243.

Recreation will also host the Forty-First Christmas Bazaar on December 10. This will be in the Community Center gym, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be fresh baked goods, Native American beadwork and basketry, artwork and many gift ideas.

Around Indian Country

Tribes cautious amid pipeline uncertainty

Tribal leaders are reacting with caution after President Barack Obama suggested a potential change in the route for the $3.8 billion Dakota Access Pipeline.

Council chairman Dave Archambault II of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe credited Obama for expressing concerns about sacred sites.

But he reiterated the need for a full environmental review of the controversial pipeline, which comes within a half-mile of his people's reservation.

"The nation and the world are watching," Archambault said. "The injustices done to Native people in North Dakota and throughout the country must be addressed."

Chairman Harold Frazier of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe also was "encouraged" by Obama's remarks. But to date, he said no one from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers or any other federal agency has contacted him about a potential change in the route.

"In the meantime, the state of North Dakota continues to violate my people's human and constitutional rights as they stand as protectors of our water at the Oceti Sakowin camp," Frazier said in a statement on Wednesday. "Resolution of this issue is urgent."

The majority of the pipeline in North Dakota has already been built on private property, where the Army Corps lacks jurisdiction. But a crucial portion crosses federal land at Lake Oahe along the Missouri River.

The Army Corps has yet to approve an easement for work at the site and Obama, during his interview, suggested that a decision was still "several more weeks" away.

The delay offers some measure of hope to the tribes that the easement might eventually be denied, which could force Dakota Access to change the pipeline route.

But in their rush to complete the project, construction crews have already cleared, graded and, in some cases, bulldozed areas where sacred sites and burial grounds are located.

A new example of those kind of disturbances came to light at a public meeting last week.

Energy Transfer Partners, the parent company of the pipeline, failed to provide timely notification about tribal artifacts uncovered at a construction site, according to the North Dakota Public Service Commission.

"I was really extremely disappointed that the company failed to notify us about this when it happened," Julie Fedorchak, the chair of the commission, said during the administrative portion of the meeting.

According to documents filed with the commission, the disturbance occurred on October 17. But Energy Transfer didn't provide official notice until 10 days later.

The company eventually "did the right thing" and the pipeline route was modified to avoid further disturbances, Fedorchak said.

Although ancestors apparently weren't uncovered, she noted that the artifacts were cairns, which are stone formations or stone features that tribes use to mark important places, including gravesites.

Resources to help special needs students

Young adults with special needs frequently face the dilemma of what to do after high school. With a little support and planning, they are often capable of holding jobs, going to college and living on their own.

The High Desert Education Service District's Transition Network offers a variety of tools and resources to assist students and young adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities in transitioning to independent and productive lives after high school.

"Transition Network partners directly with students and their families, as well as educators and employers throughout Central Oregon," said Margie Blackmore, Transition Network facilitator.

"We provide tools, outreach, technical assistance and training opportunities to support students in their successful transition from high school to employment or secondary education."

"There is a lot of information available on our website to help students and their families prepare for and make that important next step in life," said Blackmore. "We are also on Facebook and have an electronic newsletter that people can sign up for on our website."

The Transition Network website can be found at:

Or on Facebook:

transitionnetwork.

necessary for the AAS degree.

It is not necessary to be enrolled at COCC to attend this orientation, and reservations are not needed. However, admission into COCC's Nursing program requires in-district residency. Contact the Admissions and Records office at 541-383-7500 for details about residency.
