Building removal gives new look for campus

An environmental construction company has started the first phase of the long-planned downtown project. Phase one involves the removal of a number of hazardous properties.

The eight sites include BIA buildings that contain lead paint and asbestos. Buildings include the old clubhouse, the former Victims of Crime and Spilyay buildings, and former residences on Wasco and Warm Springs streets. The Fire and Safety garages eventually will be removed, but not until there is a plan to replace them.

The buildings themselves are being removed, along with oil tanks located next to the structures. The contractor for the project is 3 Kings, based in Vancouver. The timeline for completion is early February.

The removal includes the proper disposal of the potentially hazardous material, which is being transported to a facility in Prineville.

The removal work, funded through the BIA, has been a long-standing project—dating back several years—for the tribes.

The next big step for the campus-downtown area would be the replacement of the underground pipes in the area. The piping is several decades old, some of it made of wood and subject to recurring leaks.

Like the buildings, the underground infrastructure is property of the BIA.

Construction remodeling CPS building

Warm Springs Construction is working on a complete remodel of the Children's Protective Services building. The work is part of an overall new plan for CPS.

The new approach involves the nearby Vernon Jackson home. This building also is being remodeled, and will become a transitional housing facility for parents working to regain custody of the child.

The CPS building and transitional home will then be surrounded by privacy fencing, creating a unique and secure CPS campus, said Alyssa Macy, Chief Operations Officer. "We want a space as safe and pleasant as possible for the children and families," she said.

Next year the goal will be to seek funding for new playground equipment, and a youth garden within the campus.

The remodel at CPS has been a longtime need of the tribes. The original idea, back in 2010, was to build a new facility. Then-CPS director Becky Main set aside money for the project.

This project unfortunately never came to fruition, Ms. Macy said; so the question was how to proceed from here. The team looking at the question has been current CPS director Cecelia Collins, Health and Human Services general manager Caroline Cruz, Secretary-Treasurer Michele Stacona and the chief operations officer.

The CPS fund created by Ms. Main was not sufficient for a new facility, so the best approach was the remodel. "Tribal Council has been very supportive, and gave the final approval," Ms. Macy said.

Having Warm Springs Construction do the work is an added benefit, as the crew can continue working during the winter months, she said.

"This was a great opportunity to keep tribal members employed through the winter, when Construction might otherwise have seen seasonal layoffs," she added.

The remodeling work will take about four months. During this time a building at Kah-Nee-Ta is being used as the temporary group home.

Celebrating the return of languages to school

This year saw the return of the tribal languages as a regular elective class during the school day at the Warm Springs Academy.

The Culture and Heritage Department worked for several years to bring the languages back to school, first through Rise & Shine, then this year as an elective course.

Now, with the parent's consent any student who wishes to learn one of the tribes' traditional languages can take a class. More than 100 students are enrolled.

The school board and district superintendent Ken Parshall recognized the achievement at their meeting last week.

The tribes' language teachers are Roxanne Kelly (Numu), Pam Cardenas, Redine Johnson and Rosalynd Johnson (Kiksht), and Jefferson Greene, Suzie Slockish, Dallas Winishut and Arlita Rhoan (Ichishkeen). Teachers at Rise & Shine are Viola Govenor and Orthelia Patt.

Company exploring solar options on the reservation

Tribal Council approved a proposal to research the possibility of a large-scale solar power facility on the reservation. The company conducting the feasibility study is Cypress Creek Renewables, which operates a 10-megawatt solar facility in the Bend area.

The tribes and Power and Water Enterprises sought proposals from interested companies, and Council last month approved the Cypress Creek Renewables submission. The company is looking at five sites on the reservation with the potential for solar power.

Sites up to 500 acres in size are being considered. Plateaus above

Warm Springs, such as above the old mill area, are examples of potential solar development sites.

If completed, the facility would be one of the largest in the state, said Jim Manion, Power and Water general manager. "It's taken a lot of work to get here," he said.

If it happens, the project could be another three to five years in development. All of the tribal land-use and environmental regulations, and public review are part of the approval process. The biggest challenge in this type of development is access to transmission, Mr. Manion said.

The Warm Springs Health and Human Services Branch, Native Aspirations and Warm Springs Recreation are putting on the Cowboy Craft Fair and Car Light Parade.

The parade is scheduled for this Thursday, December 7. Line-up will begin at 5 p.m. in front of the old elementary school, judging is at 6, and the parade begins at 7. The Craft Fair is from 5-8 p.m. at the Community Center. Dinner will be served from 5:30-6:30.

New date okayed for Kah-Nee-Ta transfer

The Kah-Nee-Ta board was hoping the transfer of the resort operation and lease would happen at the beginning of December. Instead, the proposed date of the transfer to the AV Northwest has been re-set to January 1 of 2018.

“We speculate the investor needed more time to finalize the financing,” said Jim Manion, Kah-Nee-Ta board chairman. As part of its lease proposal, AV Northwest is expecting to invest up to $16 million in Kah-Nee-Ta.

Tribal Council voted 6-3 to approve the new transfer date. Part of the discussion at Council was in regard to end-of-year financing for Kah-Nee-Ta. Because the December 1 transfer date passed, the question was how to make expenses through December.

The first consequence has been a number of December temporary lay-offs at the resort. Even with these painful cost-cutting measures, there would still be a deficit of about $200,000 by the end of 2017.

The solution presented this week at Council was a credit of $200,000 to the enterprise on future room tax receipts, plus pre-payment for some rooms that will be booked in 2018. On the other hand if the new operator has a good 2018, room tax payments to the tribes will exceed the credit, so the tribes would profit.

Council members expressed the need to maintain the tribal member hiring preference at the resort, as the investor takes over the operation. AV Northwest is committed to the policy, Mr. Manion said. “Given all our options, the board feels this is the best direction for the tribes,” he said of the overall proposal.

Councilwoman Carina Miller said the tribes have few, if any other options with Kah-Nee-Ta. Even shutting down the resort, she said, would be costly the tribes. And the cost would be in addition to the loss of all the jobs, Ms. Miller said.

Mismanagement for many years created the situation, and the partnership with AV Northwest is the best way to address the problem, leaving a better situation for future generations, she said.

Meet the newest Warm Springs OSU Extension team member

Hello, My name is John Brunoe and I have been hired by the Warm Springs Oregon State University Extension Office.

My position is that of 4-H Youth Outreach program educator, Family Community Health, and Warm Springs County leader.

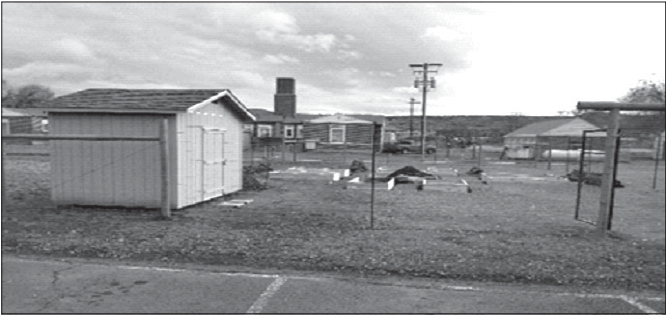

I am an enrolled member of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, and a descendant of the Wasco, Turtle Mountain Chippewa, Klamath-Modoc and Molalla tribes. I grew up in the community of Warm Springs, moved away to work and attend school, returning in 2008.

My educational background includes a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Human Studies from Marylhurst University, and a Master's of Science Degree in Leadership for Sustainability Education from Portland State University. I am grateful and honored to be working within the community of Warm Springs and look forward to co-learning with community members.

Courtesy John Brunoe

Demonstration, Youth gardens

The recent renovation of the existing OSU Demonstration Garden and the creation of the new Youth Garden will provide two outside learning environments— Learning Gardens—for the youth and community members.

The purpose of these endeavors is to create youth and community gardens and 4-H Sustainability/Learning Garden activities to promote health, nutrition, physical activity, citizenship, mindfulness, and positive youth development.

The intention and vision of the Learning Gardens is to create and foster positive engaging learning relationships in regards to youth, elders, family, community and life by establishing a sense of place and connection to our environment and Mother Earth.

Recent community and youth activities have included the 4-H pumpkin event, STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) Beyond School Garden Classes, and 4-H Archery.

A thank you

Thank you to all community members that participated in the October 4-H pumpkin event in the new Youth Garden.

Community members were invited to pick a pumpkin and fill out a survey, and they had chance to Spin the Wheel for Halloween safety prizes.

Your suggestions are greatly appreciated and will help guide the creation of positive youth and community activities in the days to come.

If you have any 4-H questions or suggestions, I can be reached at the Warm Springs OSU Extension Office located at 1110 Wasco Street in the Old Boys Dorm, or by phone at 541-553-3238, or email: john.brunoe@oregonstate.edu

Grant lifts COCC Native program

A new grant will help the Central Oregon Community College program promoting Native American students.

The $175,000 award comes from the Meyer Memorial Trust endowment for Equitable Education.

The grant will be used to build on COCC-high school partnerships and summer symposiums, part of the COCC Office of Multicultural Activities.

The COCC college preparation programs seek to raise high school graduation numbers by reaching out to students, and mentoring and inspiring them to stay on the education path.

The Equitable Education grant program will begin in January 2018. Funding will benefit some 130 students per year.

The COCC Native American college preparation program is called The Good Road. COCC works with students at Madras High School and the alternative education programs in Warm Springs and Madras. The grant creates a new half-time coordinator position.

There will also be two multi-day summer symposiums, called Strive, where high school students stay at the Bend campus and get a feel for college life.

In the long-term, measuring high school and college graduation rates is key to assessing the program.

Tribes’ appreciation

Mr. Speaks has been with the Northwest Regional Office of the BIA for more than 32 years.

He has served as director for director of the office, working closely with and in support of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and the other 44 tribes in the region.

This year Mr. Speaks will be leaving the Northwest office.

Tribes will honor him this Sunday, December 10 with an appreciation dinner, hosted by the Siletz Tribes.

From KWSO

The Warm Springs Community Calendar is read throughout the day everyday on KWSO. You can also find it online at kwsorg

While at the website, you may click on the ‘contribute now’ button to learn about how you can become a KWSO sustaining member. You can be a sustaining member for as little as $10 a month.

Our end of the year sustaining member pledge drive and runs through December 31.

For anyone who becomes a sustaining member during this time, your name will go into a drawing on New Year’s Eve for prizes. Plus you get a KWSO t-shirt.

Sustaining memberships are either $10 or $20 a month.

Church Bazaar

The Warm Springs Presbyterian Church is hosting a Christmas Bazaar this Friday, December 8 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The bazaar will have baked goodies, handmade items and gifts. An Indian Taco Sale will begin at 11.

Holiday market

The Madras Saturday Market is holding a Holiday Market this Friday, December 8, from noon to 7 p.m., and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, December 9 at the Jefferson County Fairgrounds.

Veterans’ names

The Warm Springs Veterans Memorial Park will honor all tribal member veterans, from the Indian Wars to present day. Each veterans will have his or her name engraved in stone at the memorial.

The Veterans Memorial Park Committee is putting together a list of all veterans who lived or worked in Warm Springs. They are asking for the help of community members to ensure accuracy.

If you would like to fill out a form, or need more information, you can stop by any of the 5 drop box locations: the Media Center, Warm Springs Market, Mail and Reception desk at Administration, Indian Head Casino Guest Services, or front desk at IHS. You can also call 541-771-2564 if you have questions.

Diversity training

The Let’s Talk Diversity Coalition is one of six regional Health Equity Coalitions in Oregon. Their mission is to create inclusive conversations and empower communities. The coalition offers a four-part Cultural Awareness Training. The next training is Going Deeper: Poverty and its Effect on Health on Thursday, December 14, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. To learn more about registering: letstalkdiversity.net

Health survey

A tribal member health survey is under way. The survey results will help guide tribal health care priorities in the coming years.

The survey takes about an hour to 70 minutes, and survey responders and their answers remain strictly confidential. In appreciation, participants receive a $30 gift card.

The information is vital for tribal grant writing efforts, in order for the tribes to secure funding for current and future tribal programs.

The tribes are partnering with the Northwest Portland Area Indian Health Board on this project. The tribal Health and Welfare Committee approved the questions, and the project has been reviewed by the Portland Area Office Indian Health Service Institutional Review Board.

Warm Springs Community Health, and the Prevention program are coordinating the health interviews. For more information please call 541-615-0036.

Ralph Queahpama ~ February 7, 1946 – October 26, 2017

Ralph was born at Warm Springs to Oscar and Irene Queampts Queahpama. He attended school in Warm Springs and Madras, where he graduated in 1964.

After high school he went into the U.S. Army and spent time at Colorado with an artillery unit. While there he started boxing.

He then attended Haskell Institute in Kansas and Blue Mountain Community College in Pendleton. Upon graduating from Blue Mountain with an Associate of Science Degree in Electronics, he found employment at Pacific Northwest Bell in Portland, where he worked until he retired in 2012.

He married Charlynn Reicke in 1970, and then Beverly Brumm in 1978. Both marriages ended in divorce. He leaves children Shannon Schulte, Dave and Joe Flood.

On November 15, 1997 he married his wife Michelle Bucknum of nearly 20 years, and passed away at their residence at West Linn. He leaves children Anna and Breah Canales, and grandchildren Mariah, Ayla, Makenzie, Ashley and Jackson.

Ralph enjoyed running, and encouraged family members and friends to run with him.

He ran many marathons and other events including the Hood to Coast Relay with teammates from Pacific Northwest Bell a number of times. He kept in touch with his friends from there until his death.

For a time he was a ski instructor at Timberline Lodge, and encouraged family members to learn how to ski. He will always be remembered for trying to involve family and friends to join him in running and skiing activities with his sense of humor and stories.

His parents preceded him in death; brothers Ernest, Ira and Duane Queahpama, also brother Freddy Blodgett; and sisters Antoinette and Madeline Queahpama.

His brother Rafael survives him as well as sister Kathleen of Madras.

He has nieces Rena and Michelle of Warm Springs, and niece Deirdre of Reno, Nevada. He has a nephew Oscar of Warm Springs. He also has nieces Nicole of Madras, and Collette of Lynnwood, Washing.

There are nephews Joel of Portland, and Eric of Simnasho. His niece Shauna lives in Warm Springs. He leaves numerous grandchildren at all these same locations.

Ralph was buried at the cemetery in Simnasho after services at the Simnasho Longhouse. Later there was a Memorial Mass held in Oregon City at St. Johns Catholic Church, with many of his friends from work and from his time spent in Portland.

Ralph will be missed at many places where he left his tracks and by many people.

Warm Springs hosted a mini powwow over the Thanksgiving holiday. A guest this year was Richard Arterbury, of Choctaw heritage, who took these photographs, and shares them with the tribes. “We had an amazing time,” Mr. Arterbury said. He lives in Sisters and is executive director of the Ocean Blue Project. Ocean Blue is a non-profit organization with the mission of protecting the world’s ocean, beaches and rivers through education and awareness. They provide service learning projects, enhancing wildlife habitat, cleaning beaches and rivers, and reducing pollution. For more on the project see oceanblueproject.org

CRITFC launches lamprey project

The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission is exploring the historical range and abundance of Pacific lamprey throughout the Columbia River basin.

The project will compile historical photographs, written accounts, newspaper articles, and other historical documents that show or reference Pacific lamprey in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia.

The hope is that this information will allow scientists to reconstruct the range and abundance of the species in the interior Columbia basin.

For the project to succeed, CRITFC is asking the public to dive deep into their family photo albums for pictures of lamprey, also called eels, and share them with CRITFC.

Anyone wanting to participate can send CRITFC an electronic copy of photos or documents to the project's website or email address. Or send a physical copy to CRITFC via mail.

If there is any additional information about the photo—for example the location, date, photographer, where the original is stored, whether the information is considered sensitive, or any other relevant information—send it along too. This provides valuable context that can help increase our understanding of this little studied fish.

The website is:

Mailing address: 700 NE Multnomah St., suite 1200, Portland, OR 97232
Phone number 503-238-0667.

Shrinking population

Pacific lamprey are one of the oldest creatures in the Columbia River basin. Like salmon, they are anadromous, spending time in the ocean and returning to spawn in freshwater tributaries.

Unfortunately, Pacific lamprey numbers have seen a severe decline throughout the Columbia basin.

“The Creator told the people that the eels would always return as long as the people took care of them,” said Tribal Councilman Ron Suppah said. “But if the people failed to care of them, they would disappear.”

The development of the Columbia River hydropower system posed a significant challenge to the potentially millions of adult Pacific Lamprey that migrated up the Columbia, Snake, and Willamette rivers to spawn.

This challenge was further complicated by intermittent, inaccurate, or non-existent adult lamprey counts—creating a large knowledge gap for the region.

To help fill in this gap, CRITFC is hoping that this project will allow scientists to reconstruct the range and abundance of the species in the interior Columbia basin.

A Year in Review ~ 2017

(The following is a look back at some of the memorable news events of the past year around the reservation.)

January

The year started with Katrina Blackwolf winning the 2017 Miss Warm Springs crown. “I’ve always wanted to be Miss Warm Springs,” Katrina said after the pageant. “Especially since I was Little Miss Warm Springs in 2000, I’ve looked up to the older girls who were Miss Warm Springs.” Over the years she has also been the Miss Columbia River Powwow Queen, and Junior Miss Yakama Nation. She learned tradition and culture from her grandparents, especially grandmothers Galen Jackson and Katie Blackwolf-Bevis. Here grandfathers are Amos Nelson and John Bevis. Katrina’s parents are Zelma Walsey and Levi Blackwolf. In other January news:

Tribal Council voted to continue the Warm Springs Timber Co. through 2017. By continuing the company through this year, the tribes could realize more than $2 million in timber stumpage payments. The timber stumpage payments are the source of the Senior Pension and per capita payments. Elsewhere this month:

Tribal Council approved an agreement with the state of Oregon that clears the way for the cannabis project. The agreement was 11 months in the making, including extensive negotiation with state officials including the Governor’s office and legal counsel, and the Oregon Liquor Control Commission, which regulates the industry in the state. This is a unique agreement in Oregon, and only the fourth such document in the U.S. The other three are with tribes in the state of Washington. The inter-government agreement is the document that will allow the tribes to export its cannabis products into the state market.

After gold was discovered in the Middle Fork John Day River in the 1860s, the waterway and the ecosystem it supports endured over a century of damage, degradation, and destruction. The greatest damage came from the dredge mining of a two-mile stretch of the river from 1939 to 1943. In total, around two hundred acres of floodplain were impacted, with soil and vegetation loss, straightened stream channels, and tailing piles that affected water quality. Bucket dredging was an early steam-powered method that was used on the Middle Fork John Day River. A bucket dredger uses a rotating belt or wheel equipped with buckets to scoop up material from the riverbed for processing. The scouring of the riverbed at this scale destroys aquatic ecosystems that take thousands of years to develop naturally. The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Branch of Natural Resources recognized that the river needed help. The thinking was that by speeding up the river’s recovery, the summer steelhead, spring chinook salmon, Pacific lamprey, and bull trout that depended on the river would reap the benefits. The tribes coordinated a large-scale restoration project, taking a number years, with a successful finish and dedication in 2017. In other news:

The morning of August 21 of this year, a Monday, will bring a solar eclipse across parts of Oregon. The reservation is in direct line to see the total eclipse. A January report at Tribal Council: Expect many visitors, as more populous areas—Portland and Eugene, for instance—are not in direct line to see the total eclipse. This is an economic opportunity for the tribes, and plans are coming together for a variety of events on the day of the eclipse, and during the weekend leading up to it. Indian Head Casino is planning to feature Native entertainers on the days leading up to the eclipse. Working with the casino, the Museum at Warm Springs has plans for a gathering on the museum grounds featuring tribal vendors and dance demonstrations.

The snowpack this winter in the region is about 122 percent of average. This will help the roots and fish in the spring. The snowpack this year is healthy, especially in comparison with some other recent years. In 2015, for instance, the level was 41 percent of average; and in 2014, thirty-seven percent of average. In late January news:

Almost no jurisdiction in the U.S. still requires a blood test before two people can obtain a marriage license. Of the states, only Montana and Mississippi, plus the District of Columbia, have the requirement. The Tribal Council decided to eliminate the blood test and health certificate requirement for people wanting to obtain a tribal marriage license. The action came on recommendation of the tribal Justice Team. The Justice Team recommended the elimination of the requirement as outdated, and because Oregon no longer has the requirement. People wanting to avoid the tribal test could simply go off reservation to get married; so having a tribal blood-test requirement was obsolete.

February

Tribal member employment is a top priority of the Twenty-Seventh Tribal Council. In February they took significant action toward this goal. The Council approved a memorandum of understanding between the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs TERO and the Oregon Department of Transportation. TERO is the Tribal Employment Rights Office, housed in the Warm Springs Ventures building at the industrial park. With the ODOT agreement in place, the Warm Springs TERO has jurisdiction over federally-funded transportation projects in a large area of the region. This will provide construction and other employment opportunities for tribal members. TERO also coordinates training programs for members. The office serves the Warm Springs tribal members, and any other member of a federally recognized tribe. The process of reaching the MOU took a couple of years, as the parties worked out the details.

It was a case of being at the right place at the right time. Like a hole in one. Or better yet, a double eagle. An avid golfer, Brent Moschetti was a long-time member of the Kah-Nee-Ta course. Mr. Moschetti retired from his medical supplies business at the end of last year, with the idea of playing more golf. A short time later he received word that the Kah-Nee-Ta Golf Course was closing, due to finances at the resort. He knew that closing the course for a year or two—letting the fairways and greens go fallow—would mean the course would probably never open again, at least not without substantial and costly renovation. “And I would hate to see it close,” Moschetti was saying in February. So he contacted the Kah-Nee-Ta board and management. His proposal was that he would operate and maintain the course and clubhouse. This was a decision based on love of the game, and a desire to help the resort, rather than for profit. So far this year he has already made improvements at the course, trimming trees, getting the rough under control, re-sanding the traps, landscaping around the clubhouse.

March

Marie Kay Williams was named the interim general manager for Kah-Nee-Ta Resort and Spa. Former resort general manager Jim Bankson retired based on a doctor’s recommendation. The resort board of directors and interim manager Williams met with Tribal Council this week for an update on the developments. Ms. Williams is a long-time resort employee, having started there 18 years ago while in high school. In other March news:

The Confederated Tribes have been trying to negotiate a new long-term education agreement with the Jefferson County School District 509-J. This has been an on-going process yet to be resolved. Meanwhile the district is following an agreement that is past due for renewal. The tribes may request the matter be put to mediation. This would be through the Oregon Department of Education. In other school news:

The district 509-J board of directors hired Warm Springs Academy Principal Ken Parshall as the new district superintendent. Mr. Parshall has been the Warm Springs Academy principal since the beginning of the 2015 school year. For at least the first two years of his tenure as district superintendent, Parshall will continue to serve as the Warm Springs Academy. Elsewhere:

Columbia River tribes support a proposed law to protect salmon and steelhead runs in the Columbia River by allowing for more efficient removal of predatory sea lions. Studies by the National Marine Fisheries Service and others show that predatory sea lions are having an ongoing significant and detrimental impact on the fish runs. NOAA Fisheries Service estimates that up to 45 percent of a recent spring chinook run was potentially lost to sea lions. And this:

The federal lawsuit U.S. v. Oregon is the ongoing court case that implements the Treaty of 1855 fishing rights of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, and three other Columbia River treaty tribes. The management agreement pursuant to U.S. v. Oregon is the fundamental guiding document for tribal fisheries at the Columbia. So having a long-term agreement with provisions that ensure tribal fishing rights is critical. The management agreement also covers vital matters such as fisheries restoration at the Columbia, providing a framework for all parties in salmon and steelhead management. Mr. Ogan gave an update in March at Tribal Council on the U.S. v. Oregon management agreement. There was good news, he said, in that it appears all parties are willing to extend the current agreement for another ten-year term. The existing agreement is set to expire at the end of this year.

Land buy-back fair market value matter at Council

The Warm Springs Land Buy-Back program was at Tribal Council this week. The issue was in regard to arriving at the fair market value of a property.

Council approved a proposal from the buy-back team that improvements to a property should be included in the calculation of the fair market value of the property in question.

The sale of the property to the tribes would still include just the underlying property, and not the improvement, though the value of the improvement would be considered in the fair market value assessment.

Randy Scott is the contact person for the Warm Springs Land Buy-Back program. You can reach him at the administration building. As background:

The Secretary of the Interior established the buy-back program for tribal nations to give individual landowners an opportunity to help address the problem of fractionation, as part of the Cobell settlement.

Divided ownership makes it difficult, if not impossible, to use the land for any beneficial purposes.

In order to make decisions regarding the use of a given allotment a required percentage of the individual owners must consent to the decision. Some owners are whereabouts unknown, which can preclude any beneficial use of the property.

Owners of fractionated interests can sell to the tribes, through the Cobell-funded program, receiving fair market value plus $75.

Year in Review ~ 2017

April

Tribal Council approved phase 1 of the final mill site cleanup. This involves the removal of the sawmill building, the biggest problem area at the site.

Another building, called the turbine building or pumphouse, would have the doors and windows sealed to prevent trespass. Tribal Council toured the site last week with the WSFPI liquidation receiver, Hamstreet & Associates.

Total cost of the final cleanup is estimated at over $300,000. In better economic news:

Indian Head Casino and the Confederated Tribes celebrated the construction start of the Plateau Travel Plaza. The gaming board and staff, Tribal Council and members gathered at the site for the ground-breaking.

The Travel Plaza will be located on Cherry Lane, just off Highway 26 at the Madras Industrial Park, featuring the 13,500-square-foot main building. There will be a convenience store, restaurant with seating for 70 people, a few class II gaming machines, shower and laundry facilities, the gas pumps and diesel for the larger vehicles.

The 10-acre site will include parking space for up to 70 semi trucks.

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Cannabis Commission has hired its executive director. The commission hired Joe Jensen, Environmental Scientist, as executive director.

Jensen has 15 years experience as an Environmental Scientist, and also is experienced with cannabis growing operations.

May

The Veterans Memorial Park Committee hosted a ground breaking ceremony at the Museum at Warm Springs, site of the future Veterans Memorial Park.

The memorial park will be in honor of all veterans from the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, representing all military branches and all major conflicts, from the early Scouts to the present.

The Veterans Memorial Park Committee provides this description:

The memorial will display the official seals of all the branches of service, along with seven flags.

There will be 10 pillars on a raised mound with the names of the veterans inscribed on the pillars. And there is a plan for walkways of bricks inscribed with the names of donors.

Fourteen teams of young language students represented the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs at the Language Bowl 2017. There were 44 students in all, with teams representing each of the three languages. There were three each for Kiksht and Numu, and eight for Ichichkiin.

The Language Bowl was held at the Wildhorse Casino in Pendleton. Chaperoning the students were 26 adults plus seven elders, for a total of 77 Warm Springs community members at the Language Bowl 2017.

The Confederated Tribes in May celebrated the completion of the fish habitat restoration work on the Oxbow Conservation Area, located on the Middle Fork of the John Day River.

Warm Springs Honor Seniors Day marked its Twenty-Seventh Anniversary in May.

Laurie Danzuka began her third term on the school district 509-J board of directors, having won recent election.

June

The Kah-Nee-Ta board and management recently met with a potential business partner, as the resort board is hoping to find an investment and possible operating partner.

No agreement was reached with the prospective partner, but the meeting was positive and the person was impressed with the property, the board reported at Tribal Council this week.

On another positive note, the Memorial Day Weekend saw an increase in resort revenue compared to last year, said Marie Kay Williams, Kah-Nee-Ta interim manager.
