Travel Channel features traditional foods

Tribal Councilwoman Brigitte McConville and family last summer hosted the crew from the Travel Channel's Bazaar Foods with Andrew Zimmern.

The Bazaar Foods crew filmed Brigitte, and daughters Annalise and Rosebud, with Mr. Zimmern at the Columbia River, and then with Brigitte and family at her house in Seekseequa.

The segment at the residence featured a meal of many traditional foods, hosted in the longhouse at Brigitte's house. The Travel Channel premiered this episode last week.

Bazaar Foods, in its tenth season, features Zimmern traveling to communities around the world sampling the interesting and sometimes bazaar foods of the local people, who demonstrate how the foods are traditionally prepared. The premise of the episode that premiered last week was to follow the Lewis and Clark Trail, finding the interesting foods along the way.

They traveled along the Columbia, stopped in Warm Springs, then went on to the Oregon Coast. The central feature of the episode was the segment with Councilwoman McConville and family.

At the river, the foods they sampled were fresh caught salmon, including roe cooked on coals, salmon head, eyes, dried salmon, etc. They also tried the lamprey eels.

During this segment, Zimmern comments on some of the history of the river: How the tribes were removed from the Columbia to the reservation, how the hydro dams changed the river, and how the eels are now a species of concern.

Tribes visit with Rep. Walden

Tribal member health care, funding issues with the BIA, natural resources, and the tribal cannabis project were among topics tribal officials talked about last week with Congressman Greg Walden.

The Congressman, Republican from Hood River, represents Oregon's Second Congressional District. The district, one of the largest in the nation, includes the eastern two-thirds of the state.

The future of the Affordable Care Act—in particular in regard to tribal members—was the first topic up for discussion last week with the tribal officials.

Tribal Managed Care director Mike Collins said the tribes would best be served if the Indian Health Care Improvement Act were to continue into the future.

The Indian Health Care Improvement Act is currently included as part of the Affordable Care Act (ACA).

Separating the Indian Health Care portion from the ACA may be an approach the tribes could support, Mr. Collins said.

The future of the ACA is currently not clear, as there have been suggestions to repeal and replace the law.

Between 80 and 90 percent of Warm Springs reservation residents are covered by the Medicaid Expansion aspect of the ACA, Mr. Collins said.

Removing this coverage would obviously have a major impact on the tribes.

Rep. Walden said he is in favor of protecting the Indian Health Care Improvement Act.

He has also proposed legislation that would maintain the ACA's coverage guarantee for people with pre-existing conditions. And he supports the ACA's ban on lifetime coverage limits, and the provision that allows a young person to stay on the parent's policy until the child is 26.

Warm Springs Jail

The tribes met with Congressman Walden, and his policy advisor and Central Oregon office director Nick Strader, in the Council chambers last Thursday, February 9.

Following the health care discussion, Public Safety General Manager Stan Suenaga discussed an issue concerning the BIA: The Warm Springs jail, built in the mid 1980s, is years past its projected lifespan, Suenaga said.

As a BIA facility, the agency has responsibility for the condition of the jail. Currently, there are basic safety and livability issues at the jail that need to be addressed, with the best solution being the construction of a new facility.

Vets housing matter at Tribal Council

Any tribal member veteran who is homeless, or at risk of becoming homeless, could qualify for housing assistance.

The veteran can qualify if he or she, out of necessity, is living with family members. And the assistance, through housing vouchers, can help the veteran's family as well. The housing options are not limited to just the reservation.

The voucher program is a co-operative program among the Warm Springs Housing Authority, Housing and Urban Development, and the Veterans Administration.

HUD and VA representatives joined Warm Springs Housing this week in presenting details of the program to Tribal Council, who are very supportive.

Basic points: A veteran qualifies if he or she qualifies for Veterans Administration benefits.

Warm Springs is the only tribe in the state, one of 26 in the nation, to offer this service available. And it is new program:

So far, Warm Springs Housing has helped two veterans to find homes.

Yet there is funding available to help up to 20 veterans and their families, said Matt O'Leary, from the Bend office of the Veterans Administration Supportive Housing program.

It is important for the tribes to utilize this program as much as possible, in order to help ensure that it continues in the future.

Anyone wanting more information on this program, call Jonathan Smith at the Warm Springs Housing Authority, 541-553-3250.

Interesting business idea for tribes, KNT

Tribal Council this week heard a proposal that could bring several thousand people to Kah-Nee-Ta for a trade fair.

According to the group's report, each guest would spend about $600 during the weekend. So the revenue involved is an estimated $300,000.

The gathering could happen in Kah-Nee-Ta's off-season, such as in October, helping the resort to turn its finances around. Individual tribal members could also find some economic opportunities during the weekend.

The presentation at Tribal Council was made by High Times magazine and partners in the project, called the Cannabis Cup.

The High Times Cannabis

Cup is the world's leading trade show of its kind. The show has been happening since the 1980s.

This year there are Cannabis Cups coming up in Las Vegas, and in Southern and Northern California. Sameen Ahmad of High Times invited any interested Council members, or others, to attend one of the shows, so they can see the type of event she is taking about.

At Council a number of tribal members spoke in favor of the idea. And the Tribal Council is interested in learning more about the opportunity.

Council appointed Councilwoman Carina Miller to work with the Cannabis Cup organizers in developing a more detailed proposal for further Council review.

Fisheries matters at Tribal Council

Tribal Council on Monday adopted a resolution establishing the smelt season on the Sandy River in Oregon. The action came following a report from Branch of Natural Resources general manager Bobby Brunoe, Brad Houslet of tribal Fisheries, and legal counsel John Ogran.

The tribal smelt season on the Sandy will remain open until the run ends, or until members catch a total of 2,250 pounds. As of earlier this week, no smelt had yet returned to the Sandy. Last year no smelt returned to the river, Houslet said.

And two years ago there was a brief run of a couple of days, he said. The Pacific smelt is listed under the Endangered Species Act.

Tribal Council earlier opened the smelt season on the Cowlitz River in Washington, where the run has been better than in the Sandy.

The discussion turned to the Confederated Tribes working relationship with the states in regard to fisheries. The Branch of Natural Resources has established a co-operative and good relationship with Washington, John Ogan said.

The state of Oregon on the other hand has been more problematic for the tribes, Ogan said. Oregon officials have been reluctant to recognize the Sandy as a tribal usual and accustomed fishing place, for instance.

In the past, Oregon law enforcement have cited tribal members who were fishing with a tribal permit rather than with a state permit.

There has some change in some fisheries personnel at the state level, Ogan said; so there is some hope that a better partnership can be established with regard to the smelt.

Regarding the smelt season on the Sandy, if one becomes available, fishing for tribal members will be seven days a week, from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dipnets only.

A tribal member with a permit from the Confederated Tribes does not need to have a state permit. The Branch of Natural Resources is responsible for monitoring the catch. Members must show their catch, and ID when asked, to tribal, state or federal law enforcement (see regulations on page 6).

U.S. vs. Oregon

After the smelt discussion, Ogan briefed the Tribal Council on the state of the U.S. vs. Oregon fisheries management plan.

The current plan is set to expire at the end of this year. This has been a 10-year plan, and one that has been good for the tribes. The hope is to renew this plan for another 10 years, Ogan said.

One of the positive aspects of the plan for the tribes is that it recognizes the treaty rights as controlling law, precluding lawsuits by outside groups.

Ogan gave some background on the U.S. vs. Oregon lawsuit and subsequent management plans:

The federal government filed the lawsuit, in trust on behalf of the river treaty tribes, in 1977. The case, in federal court, remains open because of the ongoing fisheries management plan aspect of the case.

Corps funding for tribal housing at river

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has dedicated funding to begin the process of replacing long-lost tribal housing along the Columbia River.

The Army Corps will immediately dedicate up to $1.56 million for a village development plan to replace housing that was lost during construction of The Dalles Dam.

And there are plans to dedicate $1.49 million more, depending on Congressional funding for the rest of fiscal year 2017.

“With this funding, we are beginning to right this historic wrong for tribal members,” Sen. Jeff Merkley said.

“Leaving our tribes displaced, without relocation assistance, was simply wrong.”

Sen. Merkely (D-Ore.) was joined by other Northwest lawmakers—Sens. Patty Murray (D-Wash.) and Ron Wyden (D-Ore.), and Rep. Earl Blumenauer (D-Ore.)—in supporting the Corps funding.

Beginning in the 1930s, the construction of the three lower Columbia River dams displaced members of the four Columbia River Treaty tribes, including the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs.

The Northwest Senators and Congressman mentioned above have been fighting to address the urgent need for adequate housing and infrastructure at tribal fishing access sites at the Columbia.

Tribes, state officials talk at Capital

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs joined the eight other Oregon tribes in Salem last week.

The event was Tribal Government Day at the Capital.

The tribal leaders met with the state legislators and staff members, state employees, and the public.

During Tribal Government Day, February 9, Warm Springs Tribal Councilwoman Val Switzler, director of Culture and Heritage, had the opportunity to testify in favor of Oregon Senate Bill 13.

SB 13 would direct the state Department of Education to develop curriculum relating to Native American experience in Oregon, and to provide professional development related to curriculum.

The law would require Oregon school districts to implement this curriculum; and would direct the Education department to make reports related to development of the curriculum.

This would apply to students in grades k-12. Topics to be included in the SB 13 curriculum would include:

Tribal history, sovereignty, culture, treaty rights, government, socio-economic experiences and current events.

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Tribal Council and the Education Committee have long been advocating this approach to education, especially in the Jefferson County 509-J district.

The tribes are trying to include this approach in the new long-term agreement between the tribes and the school district.

At the state level, the Senate has a work session on SB 13 scheduled for this Thursday, February 16.

Transportation plan meeting in W.S.

Central Oregon Intergovernmental Council is updating the Central Oregon Human Services Transportation Coordination Plan.

The purpose of the plan is to:

- 1) Identify transportation gaps and barriers for persons with disabilities, senior citizens, and low-income populations in accessing needed health and social services; and
- 2) To prioritize solutions (actions, projects, programs, operations, etc.) to meet identified needs and/or leverage opportunities.

The Plan will help coordination between providers of transportation and health and human services in order to better use transportation resources and serve more people. The public, including human services and transportation representatives, are invited to attend the Warm Springs Transportation Strategy Session on Thursday, February 23, from 2 to 3 p.m. at the High Looker Lodge, 2321 Ollalie Ln, Warm Springs.

Form more information contact Judy Watts at 541-548-9534; email: jwatts@coic.org

COIC serves as a project leader, planner, and project administrator for a variety of regional transportation planning and coordination initiatives. The goal of these projects is to improve and enhance the availability of transportation options to Central Oregonians.

Congressman: discussion on jail, cannabis, business, resources

Meanwhile, the heating and cooling, washer and dryer, generator, boiler and other parts of the jail are often in need of repair, Suenaga said.

There are times when the tribes have to transport all the inmates to the Jefferson County Jail, because the Warm Springs facility is not acceptable for housing inmates.

Fortunately, Mr. Suenaga said, the Public Safety Branch has a good relationship with the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, which operates the county jail.

Any help the Congressman could give in prompting the BIA to address the matter would be greatly appreciated, Suenaga said. Rep. Walden asked for the lead contact person at the Agency district office, and said he would follow up with the inquiry.

Cannabis project

The next item was presented by Pi-ta Pitt, working on the tribal Cannabis project. He said the tribes have cooperated openly and transparently with the Department of Justice and the BIA during the planning of the cannabis project.

The tribal grow operation on the reservation would involve a lease of tribal trust land, requiring further cooperation with the BIA.

A goal of the tribes, Pi-ta said, is to see federal officials treat the tribes equally with the state in regard cannabis, which Oregon residents in 2014 voted to legalize.

Ventures chief executive officer Don Sampson said the tribes have invested valuable time and expense in the cannabis project, which tribal voters approved overwhelmingly in December of 2015.

Regarding the move to legalize cannabis: "It's a big question, the approach this administration will take," the Congressman said.

His impression, he said, is that the administration often prefers to defer to the states on some issues. "My sense is that they'll have other priorities," he said.

Cannabis is still illegal under federal law, while many states, including California last fall, have legalized marijuana. Seven more states could join the list in 2017.

Old infrastructure

Louie Pitt, director of tribal Governmental Affairs, served as moderator of the meeting with Rep. Walden.

Mr. Pitt also brought up the subject of the reservation infrastructure, especially at the campus and the industrial park. Developing a strong small business community is not possible without proper infrastructure: At the campus, Pitt said, the pipes are 1930s ear.

Tribal economic development coordinator Kahseuss Jackson also emphasized this point. The BIA, which installed the original piping at the campus, and tribes need to work on a broad resolution to this problem, rather than repairing breaks as they happen.

The condition of the reservation infrastructure, Jackson said, "is prohibitive to economic growth."

Natural resources

Branch of Natural Resources general manager Bobby Brunoe talked about an issue involving the Forest Service and tribal huckleberry areas off reservation. A final piece from the Forest Service is needed to fulfill the wilderness legislation, passed some years ago, he said.

Mr. Brunoe also talked about the complex water issues facing the Deschutes basin, including fish and other species protection. The tribes, he said, have made a large investment in restoring fish runs, and saw a good recent return.

Public broadcasting

As a final matter, Sue Matters, director of KWSO 91.9, said public broadcasting funding helps community radio stations in providing a great service.

Congressman Walden, who has a background in community radio, said his approach would be to keep the funding at the current level. He is a chairman of the subcommittee on Communications and Technology. He also serves on the House Committee on Energy and Commerce.

Letters to the editor

Eagle Academy parents, families

Dear parents and family members,

We’ve reached the midpoint of another school year and we remain extremely thankful for the support that family members and the community of Warm Springs provide for our students and school staff.

Our teachers and support staff remain focused on improving student learning in reading, writing and math. In addition, we’ve added full time music and physical education staff to our school this year to ensure that students have a wide variety of activities to participate in during the school day.

Despite a tough winter and nine missed school days so far, we are encouraged by the success students are having in school.

One of our goals this year is to partner with family members to help students learn. We invite all families to ensure that students are reading at home at least 20 minutes a night. For younger students, who are not reading on their own yet, an adult or older student can read to the younger student during this time.

Additionally, our middle school students should have an additional 20 minutes of time set aside each night at home for completing homework or studying.

Family members can access their students “Power School” account using a password (received from school) to monitor their middle school student’s grades and assignments. Note: Please contact school staff at any of the upcoming family engagement nights to receive your account information and a short training.

Sincerely,
Ken Parshall, Principal,
Warm Springs K-8 Academy

On basketball

I was thinking more about why basketball, or Rez Ball is so popular, and why it means so much to our people. For one thing I think it just comes so natural to our people.

All it takes is one generation of people to start a tradition and their children to carry it on, and so on.

Talking with a friend, we started thinking about how our kids struggle in school, how most of our leaders were star athletes at some point in their life, and about racial tensions when we desegregate our students.

Putting all these things together, basketball is the one thing that we can “beat them” at: We do it our way, and our way beats their way. Its like our little victory in communities where victories don’t happen very often, and its one of the few things that showcase our youth’s talents.

Basketball is important because it is one of the few places where kids get to showcase their talent and represent their community, and one of the few places where kids are exposed to leadership opportunities.

My friend and I we went a step further and discussed how we could take sports like basketball as an example, and how we could build more leaders if we create programs where kids can show off their unique talents. Unfortunately, schools don’t really offer many of those opportunities for our kids.

When I was younger, Rez Ball was my way of getting off of the rez. I wouldn’t have gotten off a whole lot if I didn’t get to travel to tournaments. Some of my very best friendships, including with my now-colleague Shana Radford, started on the basketball court.

Grandparents on the father’s side are Ida Marie Smith and Rick R. Smith Sr., born of Warm Springs.

Drone regs

Warm Springs Ventures and its unmanned aircraft systems program receives many requests about the requirements for flying a drone. The Federal Aviation Administration has rules for drone operators. Here is a summary of some of these requirements:

Register your aircraft at registermyuas.faa.gov

Obtain an FAA remote pilot certificate, and follow the FAA regulations.

Operators must be at least 16 years old. The UAS must weigh less than 50 pounds. The FAA regulations say the operator should conduct a pre-flight check to ensure the flight can be conducted safely.

Fly only within class G airspace—class B, C, D and E airspace need FAA approval.

Fly within visual line of sight. Fly at or below 400 feet. Fly during the day, and at or below 100 miles per hour.

Yield the right of way to manned aircraft, and do not fly over people. The operator may apply to the FAA for a waiver of one or more of these rules.

For more information go to:

Faa.gov/uas

The FAA may pursue enforcement action against anyone who operates an unmanned aircraft in violation of FAA regulations.

For more information on the Warm Springs UAS program, contact Aurolyn Stwyer at Ventures, 541-553-3565.

YouthBuild

The Heart of Oregon Corps YouthBuild program has helped several young people from Warm Springs to earn their high school diplomas or GED.

The program has helped them with job skills training and preparation for higher education, and provided an income.

Some good news recently is that state of Oregon

Higher Education Coordinating Commission awarded the Heart of Oregon YouthBuild nearly $100,000.

The commission also awarded $150,000 to the East Cascades Workforce Investment Board for its Central Oregon Intergovernmental Council youth program.

These were two of just 16 entities to receive this funding in the state.

Support through the two awards will allow COIC and Heart of Oregon YouthBuild to continue as successful GED programs in Oregon, focused on improving GED attainment rates through increased outreach and community partnerships, as well as individualized curriculum and intensive case management.

As one recent YouthBuild graduate said: “I’ve built houses, made friends, and done things out of my comfort zone. I had failed every math class in high school, but program teacher Kelly taught me math and I was able to graduate.”

Wishes...

Happy 13th birthday to my son Vincent Jadden Cenerazzo. Love always, mom Jeanette Dawn.

Happy birthday to my cousin Annie Fuiava. Love ya sis. Jeanette Dawn Thompson.

Happy birthday to my brother Johnny Rae Smith Jr. I love and miss you! Love always eternally, your little sister Jeanette Dawn Thompson.

Traditional arts apprenticeship

The Oregon Folklife Network is now accepting applications for its Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program.

This program offers master traditional artists and culture keepers a $3,000 stipend to teach their art form to apprentices from their own communities, tribes, cultural, religious or occupational group.

The stipend pays masters to pass on their knowledge, skills and expertise to an apprentice of great promise, who is empowered through these lessons to continue carrying on Oregon’s traditions.

Oregon’s many traditional folk arts Native basket weaving and other traditional arts.

Recent Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program awardees have included an Iranian Santoor player, a hip-hop artist, a rawhide braider, and a storyteller from the Coos, Lower Umpqua, and Siuslaw tribes.

The Oregon Folklife Network encourages applications from Oregonians engaged in these kinds of living cultural traditions emerging from a particular heritage or tribe.

This program does not fund historic re-enactments, DIY revival crafts, or those who practice traditions that are not part of their own cultural heritage.

VOCS message on Teen Dating Violence Month

by Dorothy Kalama, W.S. Victims of Crime Services

Teen Dating Violence Month is a national effort to raise awareness about abuse in teen and 20-something relationships, and to promote programs that prevent it.

Since 2010, the month of February has been Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month.

Dating violence is more common than many people think: One in three teens in the U.S. will experience physical, sexual or emotional abuse by someone they are in a relationship with before they become adults.

Help us spread awareness and stop dating abuse before it starts.

Abusive relationships are not exclusive to adults. In fact, one in three teens experience physical, emotional, or sexual abuse by a dating partner.

Furthermore, girls and young women between the ages of 16 and 24 experience the highest rate of intimate partner violence nationwide, almost triple the national average.

Dating abuse has long-term repercussions too, from higher risk of teen pregnancy and STDs to depression, eating disorders, and future domestic abuse.

Warning signs

The following may be warning signs that your child or another young person you know might be in an abusive relationship:

You notice that their partner is extremely jealous or possessive.

You notice unexplained marks or bruises.

You notice that their partner messages or texts them excessively.

You notice that your son or daughter is depressed or anxious.

Your son or daughter stops participating in extra-curricular activities or other interests.

Your child stops spending time with other friends and family.

Your child’s partner abuses other people or animals.

Your child begins to dress differently.

‘Warning sign’ is another way of saying ‘opportunity for prevention.’ If you are concerned about your child’s relationship:

Tell your child you’re concerned for their safety.

Ask questions that focus on their experience, and let them do most of the talking.

Believe them, take them seriously.

Be supportive and understanding.

Never put down their partner.

Avoid telling them what to do. Remember that ultimately your child must be the one who decides to leave the relationship.

Contact Victims of Crime Services to speak with an advocate at 541-553-2293 from 8 a.m.–5 p.m.

Or stop by our office at 1108 Wasco St.

After 5 p.m. please call Warm Springs Dispatch at 541-553-1171 and ask for the on-call Advocate to help start the conversation.

The good news? Talking about healthy relationships and dating abuse can help break the cycle of violence and stop abuse before it begins.

Each February, Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month highlights these issues through a number of events and programs across the country.

Living with Diabetes

Inspiring experience in managing diabetes

Edison Yazzie talks about his recent medical experiences, brought on by diabetes. And he offers some advice to people who may be facing a similar challenge:

As a child I had a kidney operation. I should have started taking care of them then.

Not taking care of my diabetes caused kidney troubles, eye problems, and quadruple bypass surgery.

I received a new kidney July 4 of last year, after four and a half years of dialysis.

If you have diabetes and/or heart problems, work with your provider to get regular checkups, even if you feel healthy as a horse.

You can prevent heart attacks and needing dialysis.

It is important to educate yourself and make needed changes, like eating healthy, exercising and taking medications.

Now I test my blood sugar four times a every day. I check my weight, temperature and blood pressure. And I take about 30 pills a day. I eat healthy and exercise.

I do all of this to stay healthy and to prevent other health problems.

‘Be the change’

I feel blessed to have awesome family support. I never felt alone or like I was doing it all by myself.

I always look forward to tomorrow, always working to make it a better day.

After all the work and staying positive, I am able to do most everything I did before I started dialysis.

I wake up with a purpose and a to do list every single day. Where there is a will, there is a way.

Be the change you want to see and make it a better day.

First inductees to MHS Athletic Hall of Fame

Madras High School last week inducted its first Athletic Hall of Fame class, with Warm Springs being well represented.

The 1953-54 boys basketball team are members of the first MHS Hall of Fame class, along with their coach Ole Johnson.

On the team were Warm Springs members Charles Nathan and Dan Macy Jr. Teammates were Earl Anderson, Norman Holmes, Lowell Nichols, Ellis Hudspedth, Dudley Thomas, Norman Thrasher, Roger Diddock, Don Albee, Larry Fivecoats and Bill Machamer. The manager was Jerry Ramsey.

Bill Machamer, who grew up on the reservation, was also recognized, entering individually into the MHS Hall.

He was a three year Letterman in both basketball and track, was first team All State for basketball in 1954, and District Champion in the 440 yard dash in 1954.

Mr. Machamer then attended Linfield College, and was a star basketball player for the Wildcats, leading the region in collegiate scoring his junior year, finishing second to Elgin Baylor his senior season.

Machamer also set the college's 440 yard dash record that stood for 50 years.

Bill's father was the pastor at the Warm Springs Presbyterian Church.

Kim Manion Pittsley

of Fame is Kim Manion Pittsley, tribal member, who played on the White Buffalo state tournament basketball championship team in 1977.

She also placed at State with the 1975 volleyball team, and in long and high jumps.

Kim played college basketball at Seattle University as the starting point guard all four seasons.

Jacoby Ellsbury is another MHS Hall charter member.

Ellsbury, class of 2002, grew up in Warm Springs, where his parents worked.

Bill Machamer

He was a star baseball player in high school, and played three years at Oregon State University. He went on to sign with the Boston Red Sox, helping the team win the 2007 and the 2013 World Series.

Ellsbury is the only Red Sox player in history to be a member of the 30–30 club. In 2011, Ellsbury won the Gold Glove Award, the Silver Slugger Award, and was the American League MVP runner-up.

He is a member of the Colorado River Indian Tribes, the first Native American of Navajo descent to reach the Majors. He now plays for the New York Yankees.

From the MHS Class of 1972 Bonnie Souers is another Hall of Famer. Bonnie earned varsity letters all four years in volleyball, basketball, and track and field.

She was the state champion in the javelin in 1972, and later coached the girls basketball team to four state tournament appearances in the 1980s.

During the Hall of Fame reception—held following the boys varsity basketball game last Friday—Bonnie credited her basketball skills to spending time at the Warm Springs Community Center as a youth.

Another MHS Hall of Famer is Dominique Easterling, class of 2004. He was a four-time State Champion in the triple jump, and was State high jump champion his senior year. Dominique played football, soccer, basketball and track. He attended UCLA on a track scholarship.

Also inducted were Ryan Boyle, class of 1992. Neither Boyle nor Ellsbury were able to attend the induction ceremony, so their dads accepted the awards for them.

Another inductee is Larry Fivecoats, class of 1995. He earned 10 varsity letters and was a three sport team captain as a senior.

Mr. Fivecoats was also the first Madras graduate to earn a full athletic scholarship to a Division One school, the University of Oregon.

He transferred to San Jose City College and finished his college career at the University of Arizona playing baseball.

Message to hunters from BNR

Hunting seasons has come to an end for the 2016-2017 off reservation and reservation seasons.

Every tribal member who was issued a 2016 deer, elk, cougar, bear or pronghorn tag needs to report, even if you didn't hunt or weren't successful.

Information from hunters who did not hunt, or did not harvest an animal, is as important as from those who did take an animal.

Ways to report

- Visit Warm Springs Branch of Natural Resources to turn in tags to BNR office.

- Use the dropbox at the Warm Springs Market near the back office of the market.

- Tribal members residing out of town call into BNR at 541-553-2001 to report verbally, but also need to turn in tags before next hunting seasons.

- Mail filled out tags to: Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs - Branch of Natural Resources Wildlife Dept., PO Box C, Warm Springs, OR 97761.

Important to report

Why you need to report: There is mandatory reporting of all hunter harvest.

Failure to report harvest results for off-reservation and reservation hunts will result in a loss of hunting privileges for following tags during the 2017 seasons.

Please be honest with your hunter reporting. Harvest and hunting information is important for the Wildlife Department in determining wildlife population sizes, herd compositions and hunting pressure.

This information also helps Natural Resources to determine where there are animals, and where they are not. This helps the department to focus habitat restoration efforts on the reservation.

The hunter harvest data, along with BNR annual aerial surveys, help staff and the Fish and Wildlife Committee to set regulations for subsequent seasons.

Meeting, raffle

The Fish and Wildlife Committee and Wildlife Department will be scheduling a postseason hunters meeting.

This event is where wildlife staff will present 2016 winter survey data, and 2016 hunting season reporting success data.

The meeting will be open to suggestions, comments, and concerns from the tribal public regarding future 2017 fall hunting season dates, bag limits, ceded land areas and more.

Additionally, Natural Resources will be holding a raffle for those who attend. Prizes range from a 2017 Bighorn ram tag, 2017 ceded land doe tags, and various hunting and fishing gear.

Your continued support and participation with hunter reporting are greatly appreciated. Thank you for your participation!

The show then progresses to the reservation, stopping by Brigitte’s business Salmon King Fisheries at the Warm Springs Plaza, before moving on to Seekseequa.

At the house Brigitte shows Zimmern how to stake a salmon fillet for cooking over the open fire pit. The dinner segment includes a dozen or so members of Brigitte’s family.

Seated at the table in Brigitte’s grandmother’s longhouse, they serve salmon, steelhead, coho, sturgeon, smelt and eels. They try dried salmon, barbecued, pulverized, smoked, canned, bellies and heads.

They have deer and elk, four kinds of roots, huckleberries, choke cherries, biscuits that Brenda Scott made, and water. Mr. Zimmern comments on the excellence and rarity of each of these foods.

After the visit, the episode moves down the Columbia to the Coast, where a segment features

“I thought it was a joke,” Brigitte says.

The Bazaar Foods staff next called the Museum at Warm Springs, and the Tribal Council office, explaining their hope to make a show about tribal traditional foods. At this point Brigitte realized it was a legitimate call. So she talked to the producer, making arrangements to meet at the Columbia near Cascade Locks, where the family has scaffolding and fishing sites.

Brigitte went with daughters Rosebud, a student at Central Oregon Community College, and Annalise, sophomore at Madras High School. The film crew shot scenes of fishing and cooking along the river, while the daughters got some shots with their cell phones of the film crew and Zimmern.

This group then traveled to the reservation, visiting the Salmon King shop, and on to the Seekseequa residence. The film crew included up to 16 people, Brigitte says:

“They were like a caravan. And I think they were working six or seven days a week.” The crew spent a couple days on the reservation, Zimmern staying in a fifth-wheel at Seekseequa.

On hand for the dinner were Brigitte’s nephews Rolin and Neal Morningowl, who brought their big drum, joined by Andrew; and aunt Edna Gonzales, sister Sara Scott, son August Scott, nephew Justin Miller, and cousin Leni Miller.

The Bazaar Foods segment featuring Councilwoman McConville and family came about in an interesting way:

For her Salmon King business, Brigitte keeps a Facebook page.

And Bazaar Foods had been among her followers for a number of years. Then last March she got a call from someone saying they were from The Travel Channel and Bazaar Foods with Andrew Zimmern.

To tribal members at COCC

Hello, First Nation's Student Union and tribal members of all federally recognized tribes.

I have been in contact recently with Gina Ricketts, Central Oregon Community College Native American Programs coordinator.

We are wondering if any of you would be interested in serving on a COCC Committee?

You would be considered a ‘student at-large’ representative, and have the privilege to be a voting party from the student populace on one or more of the listed committees:

- College Affairs: One student, at-large position.
- Student Affairs: two students, at-large positions.
- Broadside Publication

board: One student, at-large position.

- Student Fees Committee: Three students, at-large positions (This is where I started my involvement!)
- Sustainability: One student.
- Citation Appeals: One student.

The listed ‘student, at-large’ positions will be part of combined school Presidential appointment members, Faculty Forum appointment members, Chairmoot appointment members, Classified Associate appointment members, Associated Students of COCC (ASCOCC) members, and other student positions.

These positions are not paid, and work around student schedules. Most committees (if not all) host once a month meetings. For further detail please see the following: cocc.edu/college-committees/

Serving in one or more of these positions can be a resume builder; and is a chance to get exposure to politics in college, preparing you for future careers and pathways.

You can visit the Office of Student Life in room 208 (upstairs) in the CCC building, next to the ASCOCC office. Much appreciated and thank you, Truman V. Merrifield, president the Associated Students of Central Oregon Community College.

U.S. vs. Oregon

This may be the longest standing open federal lawsuit in the nation, demonstrating its importance to the tribes and the other parties, Ogan said.

In the late 1970s, at court after the federal government prevailed in its arguments, the parties developed fisheries plans of various years in duration, the longest being the current plan.

A basic tenant of these plans has been that the treaty rights provide the tribes with half the allowable catch, as set by the state and tribes.

It may happen that all parties this year agree that the current plan should continue for another decade, Ogan said. This would be the best case, giving the tribes protection of their fisheries rights.

Tribal Council wants to meet on U.S. vs. Oregon again in April, as agreement on renewing the current plan could be reached by all parties in June. The target is to have a new long-term management plan in place at least by the start of the 2018 fishing season, Ogan said.
