Tribes may mediate schools agreement

The Confederated Tribes have been trying to negotiate a new long-term education agreement with the Jefferson County School District 509-J.

This has been an on-going process yet to be resolved. Meanwhile the district is following an agreement that is past due for renewal.

The tribes may request the matter be put to mediation. This would be through the Oregon Department of Education.

Tribal Council met last week with school district board members and the tribal Education Committee.

Part of the discussion was in regard to the property at the previous elementary school campus, including teachers' row.

Tribal Council appointed Chairman Austin Greene Jr. and Secretary-Treasurer Michele Stacona as representatives to negotiate on behalf of the tribes.

The property was subject to a long-term lease with the school district. The arrangement is no longer needed since the 2014 opening of the Warm Springs k-8 Academy. Councilman Ron Suppah suggested a resolution be reached at least by the end of this year, and the parties agreed.

Discussion then turned to the overall education agreement, or memorandum of understanding, between the tribes and the district.

The current five-year agreement was supposed to expire last summer. But because no new agreement has been reached, the district continues to operate under this understanding.

Last year the previous Tribal Council appointed the Education Committee to negotiate terms of a new agreement. The committee developed a detailed proposal, but was not able to reach an agreement with the district.

The current Tribal Council then took office, and appointed two new members to the Education Committee. There is still no agreement, and mediation may be the best solution, said Deanie Smith, Culture and Heritage project supervisor, and Education Committee member.

The problem with the current agreement is its general vagueness, Ms. Smith said. There are state and federal standards that apply to Indian education, and these should be addressed in the new agreement, she said.

Tribal Council next week is scheduled to meet with April Campbell, Indian Education Advisor with the Oregon Department of Education. The meeting should help determine whether mediation is necessary.

Some of the issues that need to be resolved are fundamental. For instance at the meeting last week there was discussion of having a charter school or high school in Warm Springs.

This is not a solution to the issues now facing the district, Councilwoman Carina Miller said.

Oregon Experience on 'Broken Treaties'

Oregon Public Broadcasting on Monday, March 20, will premier the one-hour Oregon Experience documentary Broken Treaties. The show will air at 9 p.m. on OPB.

Louie Pitt Jr., director of governmental affairs of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, is among the tribal representatives featured in Broken Treaties.

The timing of the show is significant, as this month marks 60 years since the inundation of Celilo Falls.

Broken Treaties examines the history of the Native people of Oregon, and how they have gone from possessing 100 percent of the state's land to nearly none of it. OPB provides an overview of the documentary:

'Broken Treaties'

Oregonians today generally know little about the first inhabitants of the region, the tribal people who lived here for thousands of years before European contact.

Indians still have a significant presence, with nine federally recognized tribes located around the state, yet they continue to live 'off the radar' of most non-Indians.

Before Euro-Americans came West, this region was home to a diverse and remarkable mix of Indian tribes and Native languages. What is now Oregon was Indian country—hundreds of villages in an environment of natural abundance, in which most people thrived.

In the early 1830s the Oregon Trail established a direct route to the Pacific Northwest. The government encouraged Americans to make the journey and settle here to strengthen its claim to the territory.

Two Congressional laws—the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 and The Organic Act of 1848—each declared the United States' commitment of good faith and fair treatment toward the native people.

Early settlers often did not heed these pronouncements. They settled where they pleased, which began the slow but relentless acquisition of the Indians' most valued asset: their land. The transfer of land away from the Indians took more than a century and assumed many forms—and it was effective.

In 1850, before any treaties had been signed or any land legally acquired from the Indians, Congress passed the Donation Land Act, giving 320 acres of Indian land to every settler who wanted it. Within five years, they would claim 2.8 million acres of it.

Congress sent envoys to acquire Indian land legally through treaties, even as the government—before any documents were ratified—continued to promote settlement there.

Veterans Memorial plan for museum

The tribes' Veterans Memorial Committee presented the latest design for a memorial to be located on the grounds of the Museum at Warm Springs.

The project would include a memorial park and monument. Walkways could be a bricks inscribed with the names of donors.

Tribal Council gave its approval to the committee to go ahead with the project.

The Veterans Memorial Committee represents the Warm Springs Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW), the Ladies Auxiliary and Eugene Greene Sr. American Legion Post.

On the committee are Tamera Calhoun, commander, Dan Martinez and Alvis Smith III of the VFW; and Charles Tailfeathers, commander, AJ Atencio, Charles Calica, Dennis Dowty and Keith Baker of the American Legion; and Susan Brunoe of the Auxiliary.

The committee now has the preliminary drawings and plan for the memorial park. The final design will be by an architectural firm that may donate the service, the committee reported.

The idea for a veterans memorial on the museum grounds goes back a number of years. The current Veterans Memorial Committee is dedicated seeing the project through.

One of the ideas for the memorial park is to incorporate water and fire features. There would be a raised mound with the water feature and flame of life at the center.

A soldier statue, flags and monument with the names of the tribal veterans are other ideas. Hundreds of tribal members have served in the armed forces from 1850s to the present day.

The proposed site of the veterans memorial park is by the Treaty Tree at the museum.

The Veterans Memorial Committee has researched fund-raising ideas. An idea is for the pathways at the park to be of bricks inscribed donors' names.

Meanwhile, the Ladies Auxiliary and American Legion are planning a Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Parade and Expo in the spring. This will be the second year of the parade and expo.

The Legion and Auxiliary are now hosting fund-raisers in the community for the event.

Miss Warm Springs reports at Council

Dave McMechan/Spilyay

Miss Warm Springs 2017 Katrina Blackwolf and tribal chief operations officer Alyssa Macy, a former Miss Warm Springs, met last week with Tribal Council.

As Miss Warm Springs 2017 Katrina Blackwolf keeps a busy schedule.

She is a full-time student at Yakama Valley Community College, majoring in Biology.

Meanwhile this year she traveled to the Chemawa Indian School in Salem, where she had an inspiring visit with the students.

At Lincoln's Powwow she demonstrated the Butterfly Dance. And next month she will be traveling to the Gathering of Nations Powwow in Albuquerque for the Miss Indian World contest.

Katrina met last week with Tribal Council and chief operations officer Alyssa Macy. She reviewed some of her tribal ambassadorship projects so far this year.

Her report was well received and appreciated. The visit to Chemawa was especially noted, Council members said, because students there can sometimes feel far from home.

Congressional intern to work in Senate office

Karlen Yallup will be working this summer in Washington, D.C., in the offices of United States Senator John McCain. She will be working as a Congressional Intern.

Karlen was selected by the Udall Foundation for the 2017 Native American Congressional Internship program.

This is a rare opportunity and achievement: She is one of only 12 students chosen for the 2017 program.

Karlen is a graduate of Madras High School, and a 2016 graduate of the University of Idaho, where she majored in Forest Resources and Fire Ecology. She currently works at tribal Finance as the grants, budgets and contracts analyst.

Karlen is planning to go to law school in the fall, so the Congressional Internship this summer will be a great experience.

Sen. McCain, R-Ariz., is the longest current serving member of the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs.

Seeing first-hand the relationship between the federal government and Indian tribes is a main reason why she became interested in the internship. The legislative process in general is another point of interest, she said.

Karlen learned of the opportunity from Carol Dick at the tribes' Higher Education Department.

The Udall Foundation over the past 20 years has provided 245 internships to students from 116 different tribes. The program is funded by the Native Nations Institute for Leadership, Management and Policy.

Living with Diabetes

My journey to becoming healthy

by Marcia Soliz

I am sharing my bariatric journey—surgery to close off part of my stomach—to support those individuals who are thinking about having this weight loss procedure, or who have already had it.

During my 67 years of life, I had many doctor appointments at IHS. I had medical referrals for numerous health concerns, and several surgeries.

I was prescribed a wide variety of medications and pain medications. I was a diabetic for 14 years, having to use insulin and pills.

I was obese. I was an unhealthy person getting more and more miserable and depressed.

I felt like a bother, and constantly in pain.

One of my referrals was because my liver was acting up and enlarged.

The doctor I was referred to was very up front and honest about my obesity being a primary cause leading to my bad diabetes impacting my liver.

He strongly recommended bariatric surgery. At that time I was unaware that the tribal Managed Care program had never approved this type of procedure to be covered for payment, or that I was the first Warm Springs Native persons to have bariatric surgery.

When I realized this I thought about it and decided I had to be successful so that others could get approved to have this opportunity to become healthier.

It was stressful at first. In order to see the surgeon I was required to complete a 564 question psychological evaluation, attend classes on diet, and go to the Sleep Center.

I also had appointments with a dietitian and a psychologist.

I learned a lot, and everything my mom tried to teach me was absolutely reinforced.

I was told I had to lose 20 pounds so the liver could shrink and other organs would be okay for surgery. I had to do this so the three surgical instruments would be able to get to where they needed to be. This was a huge challenge because I never tried to diet before.

All along, as a bigger woman, I walked 15 laps around the old grade school track, and continued to do this to keep my heart and lungs strong for the surgery.

The okay came for surgery, and I was ready as I could be.

I was only in for one and a half days at Good Samaritan in Portland. I went back to work after a week. By then the weight had already started coming off.

It was really hard responding to people's curious questions. I was continually asked, "Are you sick?" When really it was the complete opposite: I was getting better.

The other question was, "How much are you going to lose?"

This was impossible to answer, because only my body

by Marcia Soliz

would know when it had lost enough.

There were a lot of days when I didn't want to see anybody, but had to go to work. Every couple weeks, I had to try to find a size or two smaller clothes, so I shopped at Goodwill, one of my favorite stores.

Within six and a half months I had lost 120 pounds. At one point there was concern about muscle loss due to the quick volume of weight loss.

It has now been 6 years and eight months.

As much as my mind tells me I am hungry, my body system says No, and doesn't allow me to overeat.

I take vitamins now, drink water, sneak a diet soda from time to time, and stay active.

I sleeps better, so I have lots of energy. I eat healthier foods and eat a lot less.

My diabetes no longer exists. It was gone a few days after surgery. My blood pressure is great (106/62), A1c is 5.3, and I still have my marbles upstairs.

For a time I was the only one in Warm Springs who had gone through this surgery. So there were no other patients to draw support from. Now, there should be enough to start a support group.

If you're thinking about getting healthier, you can do it when you put your mind to it and are persistent.

Everyone has someone who is counting on them—kids, spouse, brothers, sisters, parents, grandparents, friends, employers—and these are excellent reasons to start taking better care of yourself.

I have no regrets about my decision to become healthier and doing the bariatric surgery. Don't procrastinate any longer.

For those in the health medical field, Please be honest and progressive with your patients about obesity and the impacts.

Somehow, at age 60 I finally made my decision to get healthier.

Please, don't wait that long, although it does go to show it is never too late to take better care of yourself.

I thank my kids Dorian and Rebecca, Dr. Creelman, Dr. Irma, Dr. Patterson, tribal surgery authorizers, tribal bill payers, and the others involved in my surgery. Thank you for being there and standing with me along the way.

Beymer join FSA committee

Pinky Beymer of Warm Springs was elected to the Central Oregon Farm Service Agency County Committee. The administrative area of the committee includes the Warm Springs Reservation.

The FSA is an agency of the United State Department of Agriculture. The FSA committees oversee activities in multi-county areas, such as Jefferson, Deschutes and Crook.

Pinky was elected to a three-year term on the Central Oregon committee.

Spring youth track meet

Warm Springs Recreation will host the spring 2017 Youth Track Meet on Friday, March 31. The meet will be at the Warm Springs k-8 Academy.

The event is for youth ages 6-12; or grades k-6. Registration will begin at 1 p.m. on March 31, and the meet starts at 1:30, ending around 4:30. For more information contact Recreation at the Community Center, 541-553-3243.

Native writers at festival

Native American authors Sherman Alexie and Elizabeth Woody will give readings in April at the American Indian Cultural Festival at The Dalles.

The festival is on April 13.

All students are invited. A featured speaker will be Oregon Poet Laureate and Warm Springs tribal member Elizabeth Woody, who will read at The Dalles Wasco County Public Library.

A note to valued shoppers

To our valued Redmond Grocery Outlet shoppers:

Thank you so much for shopping with us.

Of the current 237 Grocery Outlets, did you know that Redmond Grocery Outlet was the first Grocery Outlet?

The Downs family opened the store in 1973. Now third generation Downs are operating the Grocery Outlet, still housed in its original location.

Additionally, the Downs are the only Grocery Outlet in Central Oregon to own their building. Others are corporate owned or by outside developers.

Our store might show a little age but it is locally owned and full of the same great values as all other Grocery Outlets.

Thank again for your patronage. Downs family and staff.

Yvonne Victoria Arthur, 1942 ~ 2017

Yvonne Victoria Arthur was born to mother Geraldine Arthur on January 30, 1942.

She passed away peacefully on February 20, 2017, at her home in Warm Springs, surrounded by her loved ones. She was 75.

Yvonne is survived by her two daughters, Jolene Soto and Joy Ramirez.

Yvonne was an amazing grandmother and great grandmother to all her littles, and great aunt to all those she had a hand in raising.

She was employed many years as a medical records tech with IHS, then worked along with lifelong friends at the Tectronix plant, tribal clothing factory, and also as the Warm Springs gift shop retail clerk.

Yvonne was well known for many amazing floral and eagle pieces of beadwork that she made along with her children and grandchildren with the family run business, 3WSGenerationsBeadwork.

She was baptized in the 1910 Indian Shaker Church as a young girl.

She was preceded in death by her mother Geraldine Arthur, her two sons Jovanni Soto and Freddie Soto Jr.

Yvonne was laid to rest in Simnasho on February 23, 2017 with her Arthur family.

To residents

A notice to all Warm Springs home owners and tenants:
In order for the Sanitation program to provide good and timely service, it is necessary that all driveways be clear of low hanging trees, branches and shrubbery.
By keeping your driveway maintained it will allow the sanitation trucks that are tall and wide to be able to move down them without being damaged.
Low hanging trees and uncut shrubs are breaking off mirrors and causing other damage to vehicles.

Sanitation is asking that all trees and shrubbery be cut back by March 17, to ensure that you have continued service. Thank you.
Warm Springs Sanitation.

House fire

In early January 2017 at 4 a.m. on a Sunday morning, and with knee-deep snow, we had a freak fire in my grandson Wesley’s bedroom. We were very lucky that Wes woke up in time to get everyone out of the house.
I am, however, saddened of the news that floated through the grapevine. I did not receive megabucks from our tribes’ fire and disaster fund, as malicious words were spread. According to the Fire Department there was no damage. Fortunately, I have full coverage on my house, but the settlement takes time.
I would like to take this time to thank Don and Lola Sohapp for their donation of beautiful clothing for me and my grandchildren, and the Tribal Council for a check for $500. That should satisfy those enquiring minds. Credit treated me with utter respect and help.
I would never wish this to happen to anybody, and I was very fortunate to pay and pay for my home insurance, and I encourage others to do so. With due respect, Neda Wesley and children, Theo, Wes, Eliza, Lexi and Soraya.

Birth

Elvis Charles Sampson
Vernon P. Sampson and Davina L. Lucei of Warm Springs are pleased to announce the birth of their son Elvis Charles Sampson, born on February 28, 2017.
Elvis joins brothers Raymond, 11, and Jrues, 2; and sister Ellen, 17.
Grandmother on the father’s side is the late Carolyn J. Johnson of Warm Springs.

Grandparents on the mother’s side are Flora “Fawn” Frank of Pendleton, and David E. Lucei of Yakama.

Important vote

The election in May is an important one for the Warm Springs community, as three positions are up for election

Student Profile

New career path opens at COCC

Tonia Medina is a mom, grandmother and a very independent person.

She has also found time to attend Central Oregon Community College, and is working toward her Associate of Arts Oregon Transfer (AAOT) degree. Her degree will be in either Business Administration or Criminal Justice.

Years ago, when she still lived in Texas, Tonia started taking some legal aid type courses. But life intervened and she got married. And when she became a mom she had to put her dreams on hold.

Two life-changing events happened that inspired her to return to college. One, she was diagnosed with cancer, and second, she had her first grandchild.

It was then she thought, “What kind of life do I want to pass on to my children and now to my first grandchild?”

Tonia like to develop her own business as a notary public or tax interpreter, as she is also bi-lingual. And she would like work with low-income families.
In the long-term she would like to develop a family business where all four of her daughters and her son can work. In this way she would leave a long-lasting legacy for her family. Another idea is to work for the government as an FBI linguistic interpreter.

College is showing Tonia that she can build a financially secure future for herself and her family. College is also a confidence builder, turning her into a life-long learner and showing her that she has what it takes to succeed.

“My kids are impressed,” Tonia says. “They are all proud of me and now they are all talking about going to college.”

Her advice to others thinking about going? “It’s a good investment in yourself. You get to learn new technology, and you get a better paying job when you’re done.”

Also, find yourself some mentors: “Mabel Jackson, Shai Saunders, Carrie McCormick and Gina Ricketts come to her mind,” she says.

It all seems to be falling in place for Tonia. And in a few years, expect to see her busy with her new career!

Registering to vote in Oregon is quick and simple. Oregonians can register:

- Online using the My Vote. portal at DMV.org.
- By mail using a voter registration form.
- In person at the county elections office.

The deadline to register is 21 days before Election Day. So April 25 will be the last day to register to vote for the May 16 election.

Oregon votes by mail, and ballots will need to be returned to the county clerk’s office, or placed in an official ballot drop box, by 8 p.m. on Tuesday May 16.

A Wish...

Happy birthday to both father and son. I hope and wish both father Floyd Frank Sr. and oldest son Floyd Jr. will be blessed, and have a wonderful birthday in March. You have both lived for many years now, and hope you will be happy for many more. Happy Birthday!

The Nez Perce Tribe and the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife took a historic step last week with the reintroduction of coho salmon to northeast Oregon’s Wallowa Valley.

The event was the release of a half million coho smolts into the Lostine River, marking the first time that coho have been in this basin in 31 years.

It is a great honor to be able to witness the first steps in reintroducing coho salmon, ‘kállay’ as they are known to the Nez Perce people, back to an area where they have been absent for far too long.

Our tribe has worked towards this day for nearly three decades and it is wonderful to see the fruits of that labor.

In the late 1800s, an estimated twenty thousand adult coho that returned to the Columbia River were produced in the Grande Ronde/Wallowa river basin.

Poorly designed hatchery programs, habitat changes within the basin, construction of mainstem dams, and overfishing depleted coho returns.

The Nez Perce and Oregon re-introduction project is designed to provide measurable harvest for treaty and non-treaty fisheries along the Columbia River, re-establish natural production of coho in the Wallowa and Lostine rivers, and encourage the natural recolonization of coho into the Grande Ronde River and its tributaries.

The re-introduction is the latest in a series of tribal projects that have reintroduced coho throughout the Columbia River Basin.

Prior efforts include the Yakama Nation’s upper Columbia coho reintroduction program, and the Nez Perce Tribe’s coho reintroduction program on the Clearwater River in Idaho. Both of these programs have successfully rebuilt naturally spawning coho populations and both rivers now support treaty and non-treaty coho fisheries.

The Nez Perce Tribe’s planning for this reintroduction began in 1988 with funding from Bonneville Power Administration. Implementation of this program was developed through the U.S. v. Oregon Management Agreement and funded by the Mitchell Act and Pacific Coastal Salmon Recovery Fund.

The juvenile coho were reared at the Cascade Hatchery near Bonneville Dam and transported to the Lostine River for release.

The first adult coho from this release are anticipated to return to the Lostine River in the fall of 2018.

Mary Jane Miles, Chair of the Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee.

Diabetes program offers healthy message about oils and fats

Dietary fat can be classified into four groups: Saturated, monounsaturated, polyunsaturated and trans-fat.

Each type of fat behaves differently inside the body. Saturated and trans fats contribute to the risk of cardiovascular diseases.

Monounsaturated and polyunsaturated fats both tend to lower low-density lipoproteins (LDL) blood cholesterol when they replace saturated fats in your diet.

Oils are fats that are liquid at room temperature, like cooking oil. Oils come from many different plants and from fish.

Oils are not a food group, but they do provide essential nutrients.

Most oils are high in monounsaturated or polyunsaturated fats, and low in saturated fats.

Solid fats are fats that are solid at room temperature.

Solid fats come from animals and can be made from vegetable oils through a process called hydrogenation.

Some common fats are: butter, milk fat, stick margarine, shortening, and partially hydrogenated oil.

You can make your diet healthier by choosing leaner cuts of meat and switching to reduced-fat milk, yogurt and cheese.

Replace butter with olive oil or margarine.

Skip that fried fast food and opt for a sandwich or wrap made with lean meat and a salad instead.

Richard (Dick) Dean Souers ~ March 3, 1932 – March 1, 2017

Richard (Dick) Dean Souers was born in Eagle Butte, South Dakota to Dwight and Marcella (Briggs) Souers, on the Cheyenne River Sioux Reservation.

In 1943 the Souers family ventured out to Oregon, where they found a place that felt like home in Chiloquin.

Dick attended Chiloquin High School and was a star athlete. He went on to Oregon Technical Institute to play on the OTI men’s football, basketball and baseball teams, and there he studied civil engineering.

On September 1, 1951 Dick married Dorothy (Dot) Totten Neilson. Dick worked roads construction and was hired by the Bureau of Indian Affairs as a roads engineer in Chiloquin.

In 1957 Dick transferred to Warm Springs, where he worked 33 years. After retirement he continued working road construction with his own private business.

Dick’s passion was coaching sports. He gave endless time, attention and encouragement, coaching many young athletes in Jefferson County, until he was 75 years of age.

Over the years Dick donated his knowledge, skills and labor to help build several baseball fields and sports complexes in Warm Springs, Madras and Culver. Dick loved going to watch his grandchildren compete in sports, and he was blessed to coach them as well.

Dick had a great love for God, family and friends. His grandchildren and great grandchildren brought much joy into his life.

Dick will be remembered for his wonderful sense of humor, his contagious laugh and his amazing smile.

His family and friends will forever miss him but the memories of him are etched in their hearts.

Dick leaves his wife Dot of 65 years; children Bonita (Sharon Braaten), Terry Macy (Richard) and Jim (Mary Nelson); grandchildren, James, Kenny and John Macy, Benton, Randall and Emily Souers; great grandchildren Brayden, Logan, Carter, Laney and Celia Macy; sister Norma Eshleman, brother Arland (Butch) Souers, and sister-in-law Twila Souers. Preceding him in death were his parents, son Rick, sister Mary Ann Wilkie, and brother Dwight (Bubs) Souers.

Celebration of his life will be held April 1, 2016 at 1 p.m. at the Madras High School gymnasium.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in his honor to Madras, Warm Springs or Culver School sports programs.

OPB: Documentary gives tribal perspective

Promotional of the upcoming Oregon Experience documentary.

Frequent conflicts broke out between the newcomers and the Indians.

Ultimately, most tribes, weakened by introduced disease and fearing extermination, signed treaties.

This typically entailed ceding most of the tribes’ land to the government and moving the Indians to a reservation.

Sometimes those treaties were not ratified and never became legally binding, yet the government kept the land and kept the Indians away.

Today, the Native people's history remains punctuated with unfulfilled promises and unfinished business.

Yet most Indian populations, education levels and economic power are on the rise. Most Oregon tribes contribute significantly to their surrounding communities through natural resource improvements, casino jobs and philanthropic giving.

Though many others may still not know much about them, the tribes of Oregon are increasingly making their presence known.

The new Oregon Experience documentary Broken Treaties offers an introduction to the Indian tribes of Oregon, the treaties they signed and the land they lost. It examines the injustice endured by the tribes and illuminates a chapter of Northwest history that is rarely talked about.

With Louie Pitt of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, the documentary features interviews with:

Robert J. Miller, law professor, tribal judge and author.

Bobbie Connor, director, Tamastslikt Cultural Institute of the Umatilla Tribe.

Don Ivy, Chief of the Coquille Tribe.

David Harrelson, historic preservation officer with the Grand Ronde Tribe.

Warren Brainard, Chief of the Coos, Siuslaw and Lower Umpqua Tribes.

Don Gentry, chair, Tribal Council, Klamath Tribe.

Charlotte Roderique, former chair, Tribal Council, Burns Paiute Tribe.

David Lewis, independent anthropologist and historian, Grand Ronde Tribe.

Bud Lane, vice chair, Tribal Council, Siletz Tribe.

Options dwindling as DAPL nears operation

With options dwindling, the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe this week was mounting a last-minute challenge to prevent oil from flowing through the Dakota Access Pipeline.

As thousands of Native citizens and their allies participated in a historic march and rally in Washington, D.C., the tribe was escalating a lawsuit in federal court.

New papers filed late last week call for an injunction to stop the pipeline while the case makes its way through the appeals process.

“The tribe seeks an injunction pending appeal requesting that this court prevent the flow of oil through the Dakota Access Pipeline, which would result in the ultimate harm to tribal members’ free exercise of religion,” attorneys wrote in the 18-page document.

The tribe and its citizens contend the presence of the pipeline in the Missouri River renders the water impure for ceremonies like sweat lodges and coming of age rites.

They also believe the controversial project fulfills a prophecy of a “Black Snake” that will destroy the Lakota people and their way of life.

The threat was notably on display at the Native

Nations Rise event last week.

A group of younger participants, dubbing themselves the “Black Snake Killers,” set up a teepee in front of the Trump International Hotel, just blocks from the White House, to show their opposition to a pipeline that is all but certain to become operational unless the courts take action.

While Judge James E. Boasberg has shown sympathy toward the spiritual beliefs of the tribe, he too has refused to stop the project.

In a decision issued on March 7, he said Cheyenne River leaders waited too long to seek an injunction based on religious grounds.

The tribe is now taking the matter to the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals, according to a notice that was filed on Friday.

The escalation marks the case’s second journey to the higher court, whose judges once imposed an injunction that halted construction activities near the Missouri in North Dakota.

But the situation has changed dramatically in the last few months. After being delayed by the Obama administration, Dakota Access now has permission, in the form of an easement, to drill under the river and place the pipeline underneath.

Court dismisses Union Pacific suit

The Federal District Court of Oregon last week dismissed a lawsuit brought by Union Pacific Railroad, involving the railroad’s proposal to build more than four miles of new railroad tracks through the town of Mosier.

The site is adjacent to the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area.

Mosier was the site of a fiery oil train derailment in June 2016.

In its lawsuit, Union Pacific sought to exempt its proposed rail expansion project from federal Gorge protection laws and tribal treaties.

In a written order issued last week, District Court Judge Ann Aiken dismissed the lawsuit because the railroad had failed to include three Northwest Indian Treaty Tribes as defendants in the case.

In January 2015, Union Pacific filed a land use application with Wasco County pursuant to the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area Act, seeking to build a second mainline track in the Mosier area.

In November 2016, the Wasco County Board of County Commissioners denied the rail expansion project because it would infringe on tribal treaty rights and violate federal Gorge protection federated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation as defendants in the case.

The judge dismissed the lawsuit because the railroad failed to name the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, the Yakama Nation and the Umatilla as defendants in the case.

Because the Tribes’ treaty rights were at the heart of the case, the railroad’s failure to name them as defendants required dismissal of the case pursuant to federal court rules.

In the lawsuit, Union Pacific had sought to enjoin the Columbia River Gorge Commission’s appeals process from proceeding.

Now that the railroad’s lawsuit has been dismissed, the Gorge Commission’s appeal process will continue. An appeal hearing before the Gorge Commission is scheduled for June 13, 2017.

“The Gorge Commission is extremely pleased with the outcome of this case and grateful for the Columbia River Treaty Tribes’ assistance in getting this case dismissed early in the litigation,” said Jeff Litwak, counsel for the Columbia River Gorge Commission.

“The pending appeals of Wasco County’s decision are again solidly back before the Gorge Commission. We are looking forward to receiving the parties’ briefing, reviewing the record, and considering the parties’ oral arguments.”

Sen. Merkley with tribal leaders last week in Washington, D.C.

At the National Mall in Washington, D.C. last week, Oregon Senator Jeff Merkley met with tribal leaders and activists protesting the planned Dakota Access Pipeline.

This was during the Native Nations Rise March on Washington.

Merkley met with the leaders at a tribal encampment set up by the Washington Monument. The Senator made the following statement:

For too long, the rights of native nations have been ignored and pushed aside in favor of powerful special interests.

This injustice has persisted throughout our history, and nowhere do we see this dynamic more clearly than in the fight to stop the Dakota Access Pipeline.

When a predominantly white community said that they didn’t want this pipeline running through their backyards because of the high risk of water contamination, it was instead routed through Indian Country—where it will not only pose an equal threat to drinking water, but also will disturb sacred sites.

This is unacceptable, and I applaud the courageous activists who have led the fight to right this wrong, both at Standing Rock and now here on the National Mall.

Kah-Nee-Ta plans cultural events

Kah-Nee-Ta will be holding a meeting in April to discuss the schedule for its 2017 cultural events.

The resort is looking for tribal members who are interested in participating. Areas include the salmon bake and cooks, dancers and drum, storytelling, and cultural crafts.

The upcoming meeting is scheduled for Saturday, April 8 at 10 a.m. in the Kah-Nee-Ta Council Room.

In order to be on the 2017 Cultural Roster at Kah-Nee-Ta, you must attend the meeting, or schedule an appointment with the catering department. Some necessary paperwork is required.

All paperwork must be done by May 1. For more information call Marie Kay Williams or Jainaya Rowe at 541-553-1112 ext. 3436.

From the Honor Seniors Committee

The Twenty-Seventh Annual Honor Senior Day is coming up in May.

The idea for this day originated nearly three decades ago, with a small group of local tribal elders who wanted an event especially for the elders.

Through the years this has grown into a major community event, with average attendance from 700 to 1,200 elders and locals who attend the daylong activities and meals.

The event showcases the local area, such as Kah-Nee-Ta, the Museum at Warm Springs, Indian Head Casino, and enterprises like Composite Products, the Telecom, Ventures and Power & Water.

The Seniors program provides a shuttle service to all points of interest, as a courtesy during the day.

The Honor Senior Day Committee is requesting door prizes and gift items, or any type of donation.

Any contribution is greatly appreciated.

For additional information contact the Senior Program at 541-553-3313, or 553-3520.

Sincerely,
The Honor Senior Day Committee.

Summary of Tribal Council

February 28, 2017

1. Roll call: Chief Delvis Heath, Chief Joseph Moses, Chairman Eugene Greene Jr., Vice Chairman Charles Calica, Carina Miller, Lee Tom, Valerie Switzler and Raymond Tsumpti. Minnie Yahtin, Recorder.

2. Deschutes Basin Water Summit:

- The tribes’ key interests in the water resources of the Deschutes Basin: The Warm Springs Reservation and treaty-reserved rights, the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Water Rights Settlement Agreement, and Pelton Hydro-electric Project.
- Significant issues that affect the tribes’ interests: Endangered Species Act issues, water quality issues, and water quantity issues.
- Tribal opportunities: North Unit Irrigation District flow enhancement project (Westwater report), Deschutes Basin HCP, Deschutes Basin Water Summit, tribes/PGE communications and outreach strategy, and Deschutes River Conservancy status.

3. Motion made by Carina to affirmatively endorse: Continued leadership in the Deschutes Basin with respect to water resources; and support the efforts that Warm Springs Power and Water Enterprises and Branch of Natural Resources have, and are undertaking to protect and advance our sovereign, cultural, ecological, proprietary, and economic interests Basin, including those embodied in the Water Rights Settlement Agreement and those associated with the Pelton Project. Seconded by Charles. Question. 5/yes, 2/opposed, 0/abstain, Chairman not voting. Motion carried.

4. With no further discussion the meeting adjourned at 3 p.m.

The Army Corps of Engineers began work on The Dalles dam in 1952, and completed it five years later. Slackwater created by the dam submerged Celilo Falls, the economic and cultural hub of Native Americans in the region, and the oldest continuously inhabited settlement in North America.

It was in March of 1957—sixty years ago this month—that hundreds of observers looked on as the rising waters rapidly silenced the falls, submerged fishing platforms, and consumed the village of Celilo.

CRITFC job opening

The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission is advertising for a Lamprey Collection Technician, in the CRITFC Fish Management Department. Closing date is March 31.

Classification: Temporary, full-time, non-exempt (4-6 month duration). Salary/wage: $15.47-20.11 per hour (equivalent to CRITFC GS 5). Location: Portland, OR.

The CRITF Fish Management Department, through the objectives laid out in CRITFC’s Tribal Pacific Lamprey Restoration Plan for the Columbia River Basin, is assisting its member tribes in the collection of adult Pacific lamprey at mainstem Columbia River Dams for use in ongoing Pacific lamprey adult supplementation (translocation) efforts. The individual hired for this temporary position will be the primary, on-the-ground contact for CRITFC member tribes (Warm Springs, Nez Perce, Umatilla, and Yakama) that have initiated supplementation (translocation) projects within tributaries of their ceded areas. The primary responsibility for this position will be to set, collect, log, and transfer adult Pacific lamprey from the previously determined dam locations to a central holding site in close coordination with CRITFC member tribe lamprey collection staffs. The successful applicant will be responsible for the health of lamprey during the trapping, transferring, and holding making this an on-call position.

Specific duties of this position include but are not limited to: Assisting CRITFC member tribe staffs setting, maintaining, and checking adult lamprey traps at U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) mainstem dams (Bonneville, The Dalles, and John Day).

If needed, transporting adult lamprey from previously determined dam locations to a central holding site in close coordination with CRITFC member tribe lamprey collection staffs.

Coordinating closely with USACE and USACE funded researchers regarding adult lamprey collection; 1. Maintaining close coordination with CRITFC member tribe fisheries staffs regarding adult lamprey collection and transfer, collecting biological data from trapped adult lamprey, tagging adult lamprey for research, monitoring, and identification purposes (e.g. PIT, Radio, elastomer).

Closely monitoring the health and well-being of adult Pacific lamprey being held on site at USACE mainstem dams.

Periodically monitoring existing and potential adult lamprey trapping locations at USACE mainstem dams.

At times, this may also include daily travel to various CRITFC member tribe facilities to help with adult lamprey maintenance and procedures at these sites. Technician will also communicate in both oral and written (reports) forms with personnel from a variety of agencies: federal, state, local, and others.

Job Requirements/Qualifications:

1. Minimum High School diploma or equivalent.
2. Two or more years relevant work experience in Fisheries Science, Fishery Technician or related field/position.
3. Must be well organized with attention to detail and accurate record keeping.
4. Ability to effectively communicate both orally and in writing with a variety of people about the data collected.
5. Must have thorough, demonstrated knowledge of Pacific Northwest fish biology, ecology, and habitat requirements and experience in scientific methods and/or resource management.
6. Ability to lift, carry, and check heavy (approximately 75 pounds) lamprey traps and willingness to work under variety of adverse field conditions.
7. Additional training in order to access USACE dams may be required including but not limited to CPR - First Aid, electric hoist operation, fall protection training, and high energy containment program (HECP) certified if required. For example, if the technician will need to sign onto a clearance (i.e. collection of lamprey during an emergency dewatering event) HECP certification is required.
8. Must have demonstrated ability to work well with other professionals and maintain flexibility in working environment and, at times, with weekly work schedules.

9. Driving to and from trapping and collection sites is required for this position. Must possess a valid driver’s license and be able to pass our DMV driving record check to ensure applicant meets insurance eligibility for operating a government vehicle.

Supervision Received: Supervised by the Pacific Lamprey Project Leader at CRITFC’s Portland, OR office in close coordination with CRITFC member tribe lamprey collection staffs.

Supervision Given: None

CRITFC Motor Vehicle Policy: The driver operating a CRITFC vehicle or their own private vehicle for business related purposes shall be in possession of a valid, unrestricted current driver’s license, or other operator’s license, as required by law; and be eligible for coverage under CRITFC’s Motor Vehicle insurance policy. Upon request, CRITFC’s Motor Vehicle policy is available to applicants to review the required criteria.

Physical Working Conditions: This position is located in the Columbia River Basin. Duties require that technician worker travel up and down the Columbia River in order to participate in the collection of adult Pacific lamprey at the three lower mainstem Columbia River Dams (Bonneville, The Dalles, and John Day). Normal duty days and working hours will be 8:00 AM - 5:00 PM, Monday through Saturday or some combination of 5-6 days during the week, however the duty days and hours must be flexible enough to meet the peak use times at determined dam locations as well as daytime trapping restrictions (e.g. some work may be required in the evening hours). The technician worker must be able to lift 75 lbs repeatedly and must be physically mobile in an unimproved riverbank setting. The technician should be able to work in inclement weather conditions as well.

Application procedure: Hiring preference will be given to qualified enrolled members of federally recognized tribes and Alaska natives, especially to members of the four CRITFC member tribes (Warm Springs, Yakama, Umatilla, and Nez Perce).

Note: No incomplete application will be considered.

Send complete application materials including a cover letter, CV/resume, completed job application (available on our website at www.critfc.org/critfc-employment-opportunities/ or by calling 503.238.0667), and a list of at least three professional references to:

Lil Miss Warm Springs Pageant in April

The Lil Miss Warm Springs Pageant is coming on April 12.

The pageant will be at the Warm Springs Community Wellness Center. Dinner is at 6 p.m. and the pageant to follow.

The Recreation Department is looking for young ambassadors to represent the Confederated Tribes as 2017 Lil Miss Warm Springs.

To interested contestants: Lil Miss Warm Springs sessions are held on Wednesdays in the Community Center Social Hall from 5:30-6:45 p.m. These are important in order to participate in the pageant.

You can pick up an applicant at the Warm Springs Community Center. Or call Nor Sampson or Carol at the Community Center, 541-553-3243.

The Lil Miss Warm Springs Pageant is open to girls ages 9-11.
