Test flights, training center for UAS program

The Portland-based company Aerial Inspection Resources conducted a series of successful flights this month at the Warm Springs unmanned aerial systems test range.

The testing included UAS flights by the de-energized power line on the reservation. A company from China was also scheduled for test flights on the reservation, said Aurolyn Stwyer, business and marketing director at Warm Springs Ventures.

Aerial Inspection Resources (AIR) has been operating unmanned systems commercially in the U.S. for over a year, with a focus on industrial inspection.

AIR flew a DJI S900 with 32 megapixel Sony camera to evaluate the suitability of the Warm Springs Simnasho de-energized high-voltage line site for further research and development.

AIR was able to drive their equipment van directly to the launch and recovery site, which allowed for easy deployment of the S900 UAS. AIR launched the S900 and performed a series of inspections of the de-energized transmission towers.

AIR has conducted hundreds of such inspections; and as expected, the flight was routine and successful. AIR took advantage of the scenic surroundings by capturing video and photographs of their platform in action for marketing purposes.

No other FAA-designated test

Warm Springs Ventures and the Confederated Tribes will host a groundbreaking ceremony for the Unmanned Aerial Systems Test Range Training Center on Thursday, July 7 at the resort. The groundbreaking will be from noon to 2 p.m. at the Kah-Nee-Ta Lodge. For more information call Ventures at 541-553-3565.

range in the country can match the over twenty miles of de-energized transmission lines available at Simnasho, Ms. Stwyer said.

The site is remote and private, yet convenient to the Warm Springs road network, as well as hospitality facilities at Warm Springs and Kah-Nee-Ta. The linear corridor also allows for daisy-chaining of visual observers for proof-of-concept of beyond visual line of sight operations, when flights are conducted under the National Test Site certificate of operation.

“For a company such as ours, having access to the Warm Springs test range’s de-energized steel lattice transmission towers is fantastic, said AIR president Chris McMurry.

“It enables us to continually improve our inspection technique and service offerings.”

Treaty Days marks 161st anniversary

This weekend the Confederated Tribes will commemorate the One-Hundred and Sixty-First Anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of 1855. The anniversary date this year falls on Saturday, June 25.

On that date in 1855 leaders of the Wasco and Sahaptin speaking Indians at and near the Columbia River gathered to negotiate the terms of the treaty.

They met at The Dalles, and signed the treaty on June 25 by the Treaty Oak.

This is the Forty-Sixth Annual Pi-Ume-Sha, the celebration having started in 1970. Honoring veterans was a theme of the first Pi-Ume-Sha, and this tradition continues to the present day.

The theme of the powwow this year is: Food Gathering—Usual and Accustomed.

The 2016 Pi-Ume-Sha events begin this Wednesday, June 22, with the Health Fair. The fair theme this year is basketball inspired: “Shot for Health.” The health fair will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Community Wellness Center. This year marks the Fifteen Year Anniversary of the health fair.

Pi-Ume-Sha Boxing, hosted by the Warm Springs Nation Boxing, returns this Saturday at the community center. Doors open at 5 p.m., and boxing at 6. Tickets are available at the door.

The Fun Run, hosted by Recreation, is Saturday morning, starting at the Housing office. There will be a 10k, 5k and one mile fun run.

The Stick Game Tournament will be at the Stick Game Pavilion by the powwow grounds. The rodeo begins at 1 p.m. Saturday at the rodeo grounds. The Endurance Horse Race is Saturday morning, starting at the Shaker Church.

Some other features are the OP Style Special, and other Specials:

The Three-Person Hand Drum competition. The Owl and Rabbit dances; the Queen’s Special and the Miss Warm Springs Special.

The first Pi-Ume-Sha Grand Entry will be this Friday evening, June 24. The Traditional Dress Parade is on Saturday morning. Line-up at 10 a.m. is in front of the old elementary school, parade starting at 11. Grand Entries on Saturday are at 1 and 7 p.m., and on Sunday at 2 p.m. Traditional dance contests are through the weekend. If you need more information on the powwow, you can contact Cassie Katchia at 541-325-1573; or at 541-553-6296(w).

Pi-Ume-Sha Softball this year is being postponed until August, so that more teams from Washington will have a chance to participate. The timing in late June makes it hard for some of these teams to commit, as they are involved in fireworks sales in preparation for July 4.

(There is a full Pi-Ume-Sha schedule on page 7 of this publication.)

Artistic Journey of Lillian Pitt

The exhibit Kindred Spirits: The Artistic Journey of Lillian Pitt will open this Thursday, June 23, at the Museum at Warm Springs. The opening reception will be from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Ms. Pitt was born on the Warm Springs Reservation. She is Warm Springs, Wasco and Yakama. Lillian is deeply committed to the arts and the heritage of tribes

Lillian first showcased her artwork here at the Museum at Warm Springs in 1999 with her exhibit Spirits Keep Whistling Me Home. Since then, she has established herself as one of the most highly regarded Native American Artists in the Pacific Northwest.

She is the recipient of numerous awards, including the 2007 Earle E. Chiles Award for Lifetime Achievement, the 1990 Governor’s Award of the Oregon Arts, and the Twanat Award from the Museum at Warm Springs in 2012.

Lillian is also a noted philanthropist, giving back to her community throughout her career. She has donated art to charitable causes and community improvement projects across the Pacific Northwest, and taught tribal youth to work with ceramics.

lectors and honor the history and legends of her people. She works with clay, bronze, gold and silver jewelry, wearable art, prints, paper, and most recently, glass.

In her own words:

“I think about the meaning of the words ‘Kindred Spirits,’ and come up with many meanings—my ancestors and their markings on the rocks in my ancient homeland.”

Greenhouse design work progressing

Ventures is a couple weeks away from completing the design phase of the cannabis greenhouse.

The timeline calls for the facility to be complete toward the end of September or the first part of October.

The Ventures team meanwhile is researching the potential retail sales partners. The plan also calls for the opening of tribally owned retail shops.

For the tribal shops, Ventures has looked at sites in Portland, Bend, Hood River, Eugene, Salem and Government Camp.

Ground work at the site is mostly done; so when the design plan is ready, and funding is in place, the construction phase will proceed fairly quickly.

The facility will be on Lower Dry Creek Road, providing more than 16,000 square feet of growing area.

It was about seven months ago, December 17 of last year, that the membership approved the project.

The team has since worked with the state and federal officials, and the Tribal Council, on the necessary legal requirements.

Look for job fairs coming up later this summer, for positions at the greenhouse, and possible jobs at the retail outlets.

Spill puts focus on oil transport

Leaders from the Columbia River tribes met at Mosier on June 9. They gave the tribal view on the issue of oil terminals and oil transport by rail through the Gorge, re-affirming tribal opposition.

“The tragic derailment of the Union Pacific oil train in the Columbia Gorge was no shock or surprise,” said Warm Springs Council Chairman Austin Greene Jr. “This sort of catastrophe is inevitable when hubris and greed blind men. Oil trains in our lands will stain them deeply over time if we do not stop them now.”

Councilwoman Carina Miller gave her support at the June 9 conference, along with leaders from Yakama, and the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission.

Warm Springs Tribal Council Chairman Austin Greene Jr. addresses the oil transport issue at Mosier.

The event that brought this issue to the forefront was the June 3 train derailment at Mosier. Several oil calls derailed, spilling oil near the Columbia and causing an explosion.

“The accident is a reminder that we should be reducing, not increasing, the number of oil and coal trains along the river,” said CRITFC chairman Paul Lumley.

“If projects like the currently proposed Tesoro-Savage oil terminal or Millennium Bulk coal terminal are allowed to move forward, (the Mosier) accident will only be the first of what could be many more to come. We cannot stand idly by this danger to the river, the salmon, the people and communities who rely on them.”

Meanwhile, officials from ODOT, and cities and towns along the river have also called for a halt to oil transport by rail along the river.

A journey to France for D-Day anniversary

Soraya Mendez had a high school graduation day to remember.

She was in Normandy, France, at the time, and received her diploma during a special graduation ceremony in town of Sainte-Mère-Église.

Soraya was at Sainte-Mère-Église in Northwest France for the seventy-second anniversary of the World War II D-Day invasion.

She made the trip as part of her work with the Madras High School JROTC program. "Sainte-Mère-Église was amazing," Soraya was saying recently.

"Everyone was so friendly, and grateful for the United States. We were almost like celebrities—everyone wanted to take our picture."

During their time in Normandy, Soraya and other JROTC students—she was one of two from Madras—visited the famous Normandy beaches where the Allies landed on June 6, 1944.

The students visited monuments and cemeteries, and on the anniversary day took part in the ceremonies at Sainte-Mère-Église.

The streets there are fairly narrow, and on that day were crowded with people, Soraya says. There was a parade, music from a choir, and a talk by veteran who had been part of the invasion. This was the first time the veteran, now in his 90s, had talked about that day. Hearing him was a moving experience, Soraya says.

Another part of the ceremonies involved paratroopers jumping from air planes near the town. This commemorates the paratroop operation that happened just before the boat landings on the beaches.

A church at Sainte-Mère-Église features the effigy of a paratrooper, Soraya says, with his parachute stuck on the steeple. This is in honor of an actual event that happened to an American paratrooper during the invasion.

The condition of the Normandy shore itself was surprising, she says: The beaches there are rocky, making the D-Day landing—during stormy weather and high seas— even more treacherous.

On D-Day the Allied Forces landed more than 156,000 troops in Normandy. There were thousands of casualties. An estimated 4,413 lost their lives. The cemeteries there are immense, Soraya says.

The visit to Sainte-Mère-Église was just part of the experience. Her group, led by Col. Renfro, started the trip in Washington, D.C.

They went to the Smithsonian Museums, and to landmarks such as the Lincoln Memorial and the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial.

They flew to Iceland, then

Soraya Mendez

France. After the events at Sainte-Mère-Église, the group went to Paris.

They visited the Louvre Museum, where they saw the Mona Lisa, the Venus De Milo, the Winged Victory of Samothrace, among other world famous works of art. They went to the top of the Eiffel Tower. "The greatest view ever," Soraya says.

They went to Versailles, saw the Arc de Triomphe and Notre Dame Cathedral, and visited the medieval town of Bayeux, home of the 231-foot long Bayeux Tapestry.

This fall Soraya is planning to earn an advanced diploma through Central Oregon Community College. After this she may continue at COCC, or transfer to a university.

She was active in the JROTC program during all four years at Madras High School. She was also a cheerleader, and played softball. Soraya grew up in Warm Springs, and is the daughter of Joy and Jose Mendez.

Besides graduating from high school while in Sainte-Mère-Église, Soraya also celebrated her eighteenth birthday while in Paris. A thank you goes out to all the people and businesses who helped with fund-raiser for the trip.

Letters to the editor

COCC thanks

To the Community of Warm Springs,

Central Oregon Community College and First Nations Student Union would like to thank you for all the support you've shown us this past year.

This year's Salmon Bake, which raises money for scholarships for Native American students, would not be possible without the help of many.

Thanks to Geraldine Jim for her willingness to come cook our salmon. Thank you to the Department of Natural Resources and Alexandria Anguiano for making sure we had enough salmon to feed the people. The Quartz Creek Dancers, as usual, were superb in the sharing of their dances and their knowledge. And a big thank you goes to the people of Warm Springs who drive to Bend to support what we do.

We'd also like to thank Carroll Dick and the Higher Education Department. She works very hard to meet the needs of all the students, future and current. Without her kindness and expertise, my job would be much, much harder!

Valerie Switzler and the Department of Culture and Heritage are always available to answer my many questions. COCC is grateful for the tireless work Valerie does in teaching and promoting the Kiksht Language class at COCC. What an honor for this college to have such a nationally known instructor as part of our staff.

There are many individuals, besides the ones mentioned above, who are a great help to me throughout the year: James Halliday and Jaylynn Suppah, to name just two. I'm sure I've left someone out; if so, my apologies and my thanks!

I look forward to the upcoming year. I am very blessed to work with the people and students from Warm Springs.

Respectfully,
Gina Ricketts/Native American Program Coordinator/COCC

Harvey, and name-givings.

My mother Helen's Indian name came out and was given to my cousin Sara. It was a very good turn-out. My sisters and I felt bad for missing out on our Simnasho family.

I was not there, but I was supporting the Heath and Queahpama family, and I had a song in my heart for you all.

Cleda Queahpama Peterson, Sylvie Smartlowit.

AGLOW

The AGLOW prayer and Bible study group meets every Tuesday evening at High Lookee Lodge. The meeting starts at 5:30 and goes until around 7:30 of 8. AGLOW will be meeting on Tuesdays through the summer.

COCC student success story

After graduating from high school in 2013, Shaiandra Saunders' interest in the medical field inspired her to start working on an associate degree in medical imaging at Central Oregon Community College.

During her second term, her son was born three months premature, which required him to be hospitalized for two months. Later, he was diagnosed with cerebral palsy. Through it all, Shaiandra has persisted with her education, balancing weekly visits to a physical therapist and trips to the neurologist with her classes, work in the Madras Campus computer lab, and serving as president of the Madras branch of the First Nations Student Union.

"My family has helped me continue on my education path," she says. "I am very thankful for them. They are my motivation and the reason why I work so hard to finish school."

She says that her experience at COCC has been great: "The instructors were very nice and understanding that life does happen, but at the same time they want their students to succeed and are willing to help that to happen."

Shaiandra will be the first in her family to earn a college degree: "I have younger siblings who look up to me, and I want to motivate them to continue their education and follow their dreams."

After completing her transfer requirements, she would like to continue her education at Oregon Institute of Technology in Klamath Falls. She would eventually like to work for the Confederate Tribes of Warm Springs.

"As a student and mother, I can tell you it is not easy, but push through it and make it happen for yourself," she says. "Not only will you be reaching your goals, you will be reaching toward the right path for you and your family."

At Council

Tribal Council is scheduled to make the Committee and board appointments on Thursday, June 30.

Please note: All draft resolutions and ordinances, including any attachments or exhibits, are due on the first Friday of each month by 5 p.m.

Ceremony

I am writing to apologize to my relatives and Rafael, because I didn't attend his sub-Chieftainship ceremony at the Simnasho Longhouse. As the elder Queahpama I wanted to be there. I had a good reason. My Jim cousins were having a memorial at Priest Rapids for their brother

Shoe boxes

Native Aspirations is collecting 100 shoe boxes, so the youth workers can create "coping tool boxes."

If each department can come up with three to five shoe boxes, we should be able to meet the goal.

Thank you to all who can help with this project.

COCC student pursuing career in film

Amanda Henderson is just finishing her second year at Centra Oregon Community College. She plans to transfer to Portland State in the fall, where she'll major in Film.

Amanda graduated from Madras High in 2013, and thought that going immediately into the workforce would be boring. She loves to experience and learn new things, so higher education was a must.

"I've always been interested in film," Amanda was saying recently. "There is something amazing about bringing a person's imagination to life.

"A film is a story for everyone to see and experience with others. Sitting in a movie theater with complete strangers—yet you all have this moment in life where you are there to share a journey. Film has the power to change people's lives because, at its core, it is storytelling. I am a sucker for a good story."

Throughout her life Amanda has been told that many of her dreams were wrong, or that they would fail. But she persisted, and has gone farther in life by ignoring their opinions.

Still, there were times it seemed like those people were right. Eventually, she found more motivation and the stubbornness needed to ensure that her dreams would come true.

Her favorite quote is from actor Tom Hiddleston who said, "Never, ever, let anyone tell you what you can and can't do. Prove the cynics wrong. Pity them, for they have no imagination. The sky's the limit. Your sky. Your limit." Amanda lives by that mantra.

When asked if she had an idea for a first film, Amanda happily explained that multiple ideas are lined up. Her ideas ranged from exciting chronicles of superheroes to a story about brothers growing up on the road. Although Amanda has plenty more stories in mind, she plans to release them in film rather than confine her creativity to words on a page.

"College can happen, even if you take time off. College isn't that scary, and there's a 60-year-old in one of my classes, which is cool.

"You don't have to have your whole life figured out. Change majors if you don't feel like being a foreign relations major anymore...

be that Film Studies major or undeclared major. Join that Gamers club or Native American Student Union. Meeting other people with similar interests makes the experience less nerve racking. You will spend countless hours, weeks, months and years in college learning new things, so why not enjoy the time here."

At college, she says, there are important numbers to add to your phone are:

Campus Safety, just in case you need their help. Your advisor's number and email, so you can talk to them when scheduling classes comes around. And the Financial Aid office.

"Read the syllabus," Amanda says. "It is important to understand and handy to keep with you. College is a time to experience new things and to learn more about who you are as a person."

We expect to see Amanda on the Red Carpet in a few years—so get your autograph now!

STRIVE for Native students

Summer Training to Revive Indigenous Vision and Empowerment— STRIVE—is a residential summer program for Native American high school students in Central Oregon.

STRIVE is from July 15-17 at the COCC Bend Campus. Students take culturally appropriate classes from college professors in a variety of subjects, and work with successful Native college students.

It is open to students with at least a 2.0 GPA in high school, incoming freshmen through seniors. It's free for all students. For information contact Gina Ricketts at COCC 541-318-3782.

Working toward new education agreement

The Confederated Tribes, BIA and school district 509-J are working this summer toward a new inter-agency education agreement. The agreement is a multi-year agreement that guides the district education services to the tribal youth.

The current agreement, reached in 2011, expires this summer, and the Education Committee, the community and Tribal Council have been developing a new proposal.

The proposed new agreement contains provisions with specific goals and measures of accomplishment, said Ardis Smith, teacher and Education Committee member. This is intended to address some vague terms of the existing agreement, she said.

The proposed new agreement, for instance, would provide for greater information sharing as to student performance, attendance, drop-out rates, expulsions and suspensions. Some other proposed changes:

The school district board, the Tribal Council, BIA agency superintendent, and invited guests would meet three times each year. The purpose of these meetings would be to evaluate how the agreement is working, address possible amendments, promote collaborative communication, and work toward a yearly joint education report.

The draft agreement suggests that the school district board hold their regular meeting one-third of the time in Warm Springs, as about a third of the district students are tribal members.

Proposed MOU

Here are some other provisions, as set out in the draft agreement:

The cultures and languages of the Confederated Tribes are unique, and the school district and the BIA have the responsibility to act together with the tribes to ensure the survival of these cultures and languages... The Confederated Tribes possess a special status that recognizes distinct cultural and political rights, including the right to continue separate identities. The traditional languages of the Warm Springs, Wasco, and Paiute people are an integral part of their cultures and identities and form the basic medium for the transmission and thus survival of the tribe's cultures, literatures, histories, religious, political institutions and values.

There is convincing evident that student achievement and performance, community and school pride and educational opportunity is clearly and directly tied to respect for, and support of the Native languages, and is needed for the full academic and human potential...

Curriculum: The school district and tribes will collaborate to create and implement k-12 historically accurate, culturally embedded, place-based, contemporary, and developmentally appropriate Native American curriculum, assessment tools, and instructional materials that are aligned with the Common Core State Standards and state standards...

The input of tribal member parents, students and community will be encouraged through the tribes' Education Committee...

Native Club: The school district shall sponsor a Native Club for all students in grades 6-12 who desire to participate.

The district will provide data on minor and major referrals, expulsions, suspensions, attendance, number of students below, at, or exceeding benchmarks or grade-level quarterly to the tribal Education Committee...

The above are just some of the provisions in the proposed agreement. You can read the full text by contacting the Education Committee, 541-553-3290.

The next school district board meeting is coming up on Monday evening, June 27.

See page 8 for more school district discussion.

Academy rocket launch

Students at the Warm Springs Academy ended with the 2015-16 school year with a visit from NASA. The NASA Washington Space Grant Consortium, and partners spent the afternoon with the Academy students, demonstrating aspects of rocketry. The program concluded with the launch of a small rocket (far right), which came back to earth after deploying a parachute. A goal of the NASA consortium is to encourage under-represented youth to pursue careers in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM).

The Warm Springs Academy was the first in the state to host the consortium rocket program, which earlier had proven to inspiring to students at schools in Washington.

Climate change talk at Council

The Culture and Heritage Committee met recently with Tribal Council, and the talk turned to climate change.

Specifically, they talked about the changes that are happening to the first foods: salmon, huckleberries, roots, and other foods.

The Huckleberry and Root feasts are happening earlier in the year, because the heat is making the berries and roots ripe sooner.

Some huckleberries were already ripe last week, said committee member Roberta Kirk. This was quite a bit sooner than usual, Roberta said. The same thing happened last year, she said.

Chinook fishery opens after slow spring start

Tribal sales of summer chinook begin last week, with the start of the first of three commercial openings by the Warm Springs, Yakama and Nez Perce tribes.

This was the first of an estimated 19,000 summer chinook and 5,000 sockeye that Indian fishers will bring to the general public this summer.

Although the peak harvest will occur over the next week or two, the sale of sockeye and summer chinook should continue throughout the summer season.

Biologists estimate that 93,300 summer chinook and 101,600 of sockeye will return to the Columbia River over the course of the season.

These forecasts establish initial openings. But the treaty and non-treaty fisheries are based on actual returns, and will be adjusted throughout the season as the run size is updated.

"The tribes are excited to bring tribally-caught salmon to our customers throughout the region," said Jeremy Red-Star Wolf, chairman of the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission.

"The tribal and non-tribal fisheries are the fruit of the region's labor when it comes to salmon recovery. It's the on-going efforts of everyone throughout the Columbia River Basin to restore salmon populations and improve salmon's survival that makes harvest possible."

The tribal fishery is protected under 1855 treaties with the federal government, where the Warm Springs, Yakama, Umatilla, and Nez Perce tribes reserved the right to fish at all usual and accustomed fishing places in the Columbia River Basin.

The treaty right reserves ceremonial, subsistence and commercial uses. Tribal and non-tribal harvest rates have been agreed to as part of the U.S. v. Oregon Management Agreement.

Common direct-to-public sales locations include: Marine Park in Cascade Locks, Celilo Village, North Bonneville (one mile east of Bonneville Dam), and Columbia Point in the Tri-Cities area.

A few tips on purchasing from the tribal fishery:

- Pack a cooler with ice to keep your purchase fresh.
- Sales from Indian fishers generally run from 10 a.m. to dusk.
- Price is determined at the point of sale.
- Most sales are cash only.

- Buyers should request a receipt.
- Indian fishers can advise on topics including fish freshness and preparation.

The public should call the salmon marketing program at 888-289-1855 before heading up the river to find out where the day's catch is being sold.

More information is available on the salmon marketing website: critfc.org/harvest

Regular salmon sales updates are also found on Twitter: ColumbiaSalmon

Water board

Another update came from the tribal Water board.

Roy Spino reported that he has been working with Power and Water Enterprises, and the state Department of Environmental Quality. This is in regard to a water quality issue below the Pelton-Round Butte dams.

The issue involves the temperature of the water below the dams, and the level of dissolved oxygen in the water. Cooler water retains oxygen, and is better for fish.

The hydro projects can be operated in such a way as to make sure the migrating fish have cooler water when they return, Spino said.

Not enough votes

Jayson Smith/Spilyay

Casting ballots during the adoption election.

The adoption election on June 13 did not meet the 50-percent voter turnout requirement, so the results are void. Including this recent vote, the last three adoption elections have failed for lack of voter participation.

The cost of the election is about $20,000, said Arlita Rhoan, Election board member. For this and other reasons, she said, the decision about setting a re-vote is a serious one.

As three adoption elections have failed, Tribal Councilman Raymond Tsumpti said the tribes should consider conducting a secretarial election regarding the adoption candidates. The secretarial process, conducted by the BIA, has no minimum voter turnout requirement.

Had the recent election been secretarial, the candidates would have been adopted into the tribe, Councilman Tsumpti said.

The membership should be consulted as to whether they would like to see the secretarial election approach to adoption candidates, he said.

A review of the results shows that all of the candidates received more positive votes than negative—often by a large margin of three- or four-to-one in favor.

A total of 987 people cast ballots in the adoption election. A figure in the range of 1,500 would have been required for a valid vote.

Meanwhile, the tribes could decide to change the membership baseline census role from 1960 to 1980. This would result in the automatic enrollment of about 60 of the candidates who were on the recent election list.

A proposal to update the baseline role could be sent to referendum, depending on the decision of the Tribal Council.

Kindred Spirits: Opens Thursday

Lillian says, "I've learned about the flexibility and endurance of my River People, who thrive to this day, and still have the basket making, bead working, carving, fishing equipment making—all the many skills it takes and took to continue the culture that has been there for thousands of years.

"I feel humbled and blessed to have been given some skills to help continue the teaching, the culture, and what I know of my ancestry with the blessing of my Elders. So many have shared their knowledge, knowing I would make something of what was said, and having faith in me even if I never believed I could do half of what was told. They knew they were kindred spirits, as they saw something in me I didn't know I had."

Everyone is welcome on Thursday to come share an incredible afternoon with an amazing artist. The exhibition will be on display from through early September.

UAS test: unique facilities

He said, "We look forward to returning to Simnasho in the next few weeks to begin field tests of some products we've designed specifically for the powerline inspection market."

Stwyer noted, "It's exciting to be able to help customers like AIR who have identified the value that the Simashno site offers. There's simply nothing like it anywhere else in the Northwest. Combine that with the ease of flight approvals through the test ranges, and we've got a great combination."

A thank you for Honor Elders Day

Courtesy Senior Wellness Center.

Oregon Youth Authority at Honor Elders Day.

The Warm Springs Tribal Elders would like to thank each and every department that helped make the Twenty-Sixth Annual Honor Elders another success. We would like to acknowledge the Oregon

Youth Academy for being here to post the colors and honor our elders with a drill routine. The Oregon Youth Academy pitched in with filleting the salmon for our elders day, a most memorable event. Again, thanks to all for your participation in making this a successful and memorable event! Respectfully, Warm Springs Tribal Elders, and the Senior Wellness Center staff.

Quentin Scott's Farewell to Fargo, North Dakota, and Joseph Scott III's Farewell to Gillette, Wyoming.

Good luck to Quentin Scott and Joseph Scott III. They are going to national competitions in wrestling, and rodeo. The family is hosting Bingo, and a barbecue dinner fundraiser from 6 to 9 p.m. on Friday, July 8 at Elmer Quinn Park.

There will be a raffle, and an art auction.

The goal is to raise the needed travel money to send both boys to both national competitions. Look for concession stands during Pi-

Ume-Sha and the Fourth of July.

Raffle tickets are available at the concession stands, and also can be bought in person from Joseph and Quentin. Call 541-420-9116 and 541-553-2517.

Please support your local athletes!

Reconsider decision on Warm Springs ROOTS program

Last week I was so disappointed to learn that the 509-J administration and school board made the decision to oust Dawn Smith as the director of the Warm Springs ROOTS program, an alternative program for Madras High School.

An annex in Warm Springs has existed for many years, similar to the annex that is located at Westside. ROOTS was different, applying the same online credit recovery objectives but pairing it with CTE classes that were focused around Warm Springs Natural Resources.

With local connections to tribal programs and departments, students got real world experience and access to experts in the field, and in those experts, Native role models for our youth.

The reason the program has grown and demonstrated success, far more than any previous annex program, is because of Dawn Smith. She is a trusted educator and has relationships in Warm Springs, built over a lifetime of teaching and living here.

Replacing her at the two-year old ROOTS program

Apparently the district's desire is to model the ROOTS program after their new Bridges Alternative High School which will be located at Westside in Madras. Warm Springs is not Madras.

Alternative programs will have a principal and Bridges will have two teachers. They now want ROOTS to have two teachers instead of a director and a teacher. What's the big deal with allowing ROOTS to continue to build on their success with a director and a teacher? Just leave the program alone.

I am not sure how the decision-making process was handled in this matter, but it was done without any local consultation of ROOTS students, families, staff, the Warm Springs Community, Tribal Council, or Tribal Council's Education Committee.

Sadly, this is just another example of the Jefferson County 509-J school district not valuing consultation with the Warm Springs community. My experience is that the district placates individuals when they ask to be heard, but that input is rarely given any weight or value.

I don't know if this decision will be reversed. I hope it is. Regardless, this is an opportunity for youth, families and the Warm Springs community to come together and advocate for our kids.

Administrators in our school district don't understand our community but Warm Springs people do. Let your voices be heard and speak up for your children. Demand the district provide high quality education for all the kids.

The next school board meeting is Monday, June 27 from 7-9 p.m. at the school district office. Let's all be there to share our concerns and hopes for our students.

Casino suit funded by Grand Ronde

A lawsuit that seeks to stop the Cowlitz Tribe from opening a casino in Washington is largely being funded by the Grande Ronde Tribe, and private interests.

Clark County has paid "almost nothing" while the city of Vancouver has paid about $187,000 since 2007, according to reports.

That means funding for the litigation has fallen primarily on the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde, non-Indian card rooms, and a group called Citizens Against Reservation Shopping.

The Cowlitz Tribe broke ground on the casino earlier this year, and it's due to open next spring.

The casino will be located near La Center, Washington, about 25 miles north of Portland.

The Grand Ronde Tribes operate the Spirit Mountain Casino in Grande Ronde. It's about 63 miles from Portland, the most populous city in the state.

Leaders of both tribes attended a packed hearing in Washington, D.C., in March as part of the lawsuit. The D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals will determine whether the BIA should have approved the land-into-trust application for the Cowlitz Casino Project in light of the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Carciari v. Salazar.

In the February 2009 ruling, the justices held that the BIA can only acquire land for tribes that were "under federal jurisdiction" as of 1934. The Cowlitz Tribe didn't gain recognition until 2000.

The Supreme Court, however, did not define the meaning of the phrase "under federal jurisdiction" and the BIA has since developed a two-part test to determine when it can take action. The agency concluded that the Cowlitz Tribe qualified, a decision that was upheld by a federal judge in December 2014.
