Fire agencies begin new burn program

Warm Springs Fire Management and the BIA this week began a program to conduct controlled burns with the use of a helicopter. The aerial ignition burns were scheduled to start this week on the Metolius Bench area of the reservation, said Brad Donahue, of Fire Management fuels.

The aerial ignition program includes a class that is conducted at Fire Management, providing certification for firefighters interested in taking part in the aerial ignition program.

Firefighters were on hand from California, Arizona, Washington and other areas, plus from Warm Springs.

Fire Management has not used aerial ignition of controlled burns since 1989. Then last year,

The program involves helicopter aerial-controlled burn ignition.

national BIA fire officials were in Warm Springs on other business, and suggested holding a training here this year. Fire Management agreed. The plan is to control burn about 4,000 acres at the Metolius Bench, which would help reduce the threat of a major wildfire later in the year, Donahue said.

Fire Management has had a controlled burn program for several years, with the ignition done by hand on the ground.

For a 4,000-acre project, this can take two to three weeks, whereas aerial ignition can accomplish this in a day or so, Donahue said.

Fire Management-BIA is using a helicopter and pilot from Bend. Crew members carry out the aerial ignition with the use of what are nick-named "ping pong balls."

These are small plastic spheres filled with potassium permanganate. When the helicopter is over the area to be burned, the balls are injected with ethylene glycol and immediately jettisoned.

VDOS Global, working with Ventures - Eagle Tech was possibly going to use a drone to record the process.

On the bright side, the Twenty-Seventh Tribal Council is taking office just as the cannabis enterprise is beginning the greenhouse construction phase. In time, this project could generate millions in needed new revenue.

Another positive development: The tribes and Natural Resources Branch are developing a new enterprise to realize value from the reservation forest products.

Grow enterprise begins construction phase

Construction is scheduled to start soon on the grow facility that will house the tribes' cannabis enterprise.

The construction phase will take four to five months, with Ventures estimating a completion time around October.

Meanwhile, the building phase is generating new construction jobs, said Don Sampson, Ventures executive director.

The ground-breaking ceremony for the project proved to be a popular event. On hand were many community members, plus the tribes' partners in the project, and federal and state officials.

Stan Speaks, BIA Northwest regional director, mentioned how the tribes and Ventures have handled a unique and potentially complicated business idea.

Drummers take part at the greenhouse ground-breaking.

"They have been very careful and very cautious," Mr. Speaks said of the tribes. "They are certainly going to be a model."

An economic study has projected significant revenue, possibly more than $20 million a year when in full operation, from the cannabis enterprise. "But this is bigger than dollars and cents," said Pit-ta Pitt, project coordinator.

"This is not a quick fix," he said. "This is about a group of people trying to find a way to educate, clothe and house themselves."

The greenhouse and the tribes' retail shops will create about 80 new jobs, according to the study developed last year.

For the shops, Ventures has been looking at sites in Portland, Bend, Hood River, Eugene, Salem and

The cannabis project is coming on-line as the tribes are looking to new sources of general fund revenue.

Forest products, and power generation from the hydroelectric dams once were the financial basis for the tribes.

These industries, though, can no longer provide the same kind of economic foundation.

Native Aspirations gearing up for summer

The Native Aspirations summer youth work and education program is set to begin on June 27, and will run through August 19.

There have been four orientation sessions for interested youth. A last-chance orientation is scheduled for 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday, May 19, at the Family Resource Center.

Reina Estimo at Health and Human Services is directing the program again this year. There have been 103 young people who have gone through orientation so far, she said.

Native Aspirations will provide summer work positions to the first 100 who complete orientation and all necessary paperwork. As of earlier this week, 23 kids had completed both the orientation and the paperwork, so there are still positions that are available.

This year there are some changes to the program. The placement of the youth with the employer, for instance, will be different.

This year, each youth will make recommendations as to where he or she might like to work. Then the youth will meet with an interview panel.

The panel will include a Health and Human Services representative, a Prevention worker, community member, and volunteer employer representative, for instance.

The interview will panel will also come up with recommendations as to where the youth might find the most work success.

The interviews are scheduled for May 23 through May 25. The May 23 session will be from 8 a.m. to noon at the Family Resource Center. This one is especially for youth from boarding schools.

The May 24 interview session, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., will be at Madras High School. And the May 25 session, also from 8-3:30, will be at the Warm Springs Acad-

Exhibit earns student first place at state

Thyreicia Simtustus competed last month in the Oregon History Day competition in Portland.

She was the only student to compete at the state level from Central Oregon, representing Madras High School and the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs.

Her senior division exhibit was titled Celilio Falls: The Mid-Columbia River Indian Trade Network.

The exhibit showcases history and lifestyle surrounding the livelihood of fishing at the Celilio Falls, as well as the devastating effects on that livelihood after the completion of The Dalles Dam.

Her display board was accompanied by a 3-minute video featuring historical

Corn used in Extension class part of listeria recall

The Warm Springs Oregon State Extension Unit was informed last week that corn used in an April dehydrating class in Warm Springs was part of a voluntary Costco re-

There is a very slight possibility that the corn was contaminated with listeria. No cases of illness have been reported in association with the recall. The dehydrated corn poses very low risk of infection due to the dehydration process, according to Tom Machala, Jefferson County Public Health director.

Listeria is a food-borne illness which in healthy people is self-limiting. It is a significant concern for pregnant women, as it can be passed on to the fetus; and for children under 5, the elderly, and those who are immune compromised. Symptoms run the gamut from fever and body aches to neurological symptoms. The self-limiting form has onset within 48 hours of exposure (eating contaminated food), whereas the more serious systemic form can have a delayed onset of days to weeks after exposure.

Families of children from the Warm Springs Boys and Girls Club who took the April 11 class are encouraged to throw away, without touching the contents, any remaining dehydrated corn. If community members have purchased frozen corn from Costco between September 2015 and April 2016 with the CRF Frozen Foods Organic by Nature label, please throw it away immediately.

Please wash hands following contact with the corn products.

High-risk individuals, especially pregnant women, who may have consumed the dehydrated corn, or purchased the recalled corn on their own, are encouraged to call their healthcare provider.

With further questions, please call Katie Russell, RN, BSN, at the Warm Springs Community Health Program, 541-553-2460. Or call Beth Ann Beamer, RN, BSN, county leader at the Warm Springs OSU Extension Unit, 541-553-3535.

Thank you for support

Chief Delvis Heath, Sub Chief Rafael Queahpama (in War Bonnets), family and friends during Sub-Chieftainship ceremony.

I was recently honored with a War Bonnet Ceremony at the Simnasho Longhouse.

At the District meeting for Tribal Council nominations, Chief Delvis Heath informed me he would announce that I would be named sub-chief.

It was good to see the family, relatives, friends and honored guests in attendance.

There was Chief Delvis along with his wife Shirley, also Columbia River Chief Wilbur Slockish and Suzie, and Loren Slockish, who carried the War Bonnet as we danced in.

We had some confusion about the ceremony; however, these persons— Fred Wallulatum, who officiated the Waashat, the drummers, as well as others—helped to make sure the ceremony was carried out. I asked my son Oscar to provide the drum, so Aaron and Austin Greene brought their drum. Thanks to those who sat in with them.

I would like to thank the veterans that danced with me. I would like to mention my friend and comrade Dave Richardson, who I served with. Only in the last few years had we made contact again. He was pleased and mentioned he was treated real well. He mentioned Frogman and Kate, who remembered sitting across from him at the meal.

I would like to thank Ron Suppah, who has been real supportive, and Jody Calica and brother Raymond as well. Thank you to Austin Greene and his family, and Chief Joe Moses and Teeney. Thanks to my brother Ralph and my sister Kat. I really should visit with them more.

My wife Nola did a lot of working getting prepared for the ceremony. I am proud that she worked so hard despite being handicapped with communication problems following her stroke last year. Louella and Jessie worked hard too, and they had Memorial and Name-Giving to take care of. Doug Jackson provided the deer meat for the meal.

My children were all there: My daughters Rena. Michelle, Deirdre and my son Oscar—thanks to the grandchildren too.

Thanks to Jessie and her daughters, and Louella and her children. I was gladdened to see Irenecia and Janaya dancing during the Waashat. I have been encouraging them to get out there, and they did.

Thank you to my nieces Alice, Katie and Lois, who prepared the meal. It must be said that they offered to do this, and did not have to be asked.

Special thanks go out to JP and Priscilla, who got a donation from the board for food for the meal.

I was glad to see Muff and Captain there, along with Animal and Hickster. It was good to see Eileen and her sister Phyllis there. I was touched by a story Eileen told me of my sister Antoinette seeing me in a War Bonnet that Eileen's mom Adeline let me use. Adeline always encouraged me to wear the War Bonnet. This brings back memories of others who have left us who also encouraged me in this way.

Thanks to my cousin Darlou who went through school with and grew up with her.

This is the time of the year when Mother Earth is renewing herself. The salmon began their journey back up the river, returning from the ocean, and the roots which are important to our people were emerging.

It is also a time when our families have lost loved ones, both this year and last year. Our people were remembering those lost and thanking the Creator for the return of the salmon and the roots all along the river. Relatives and friends were involved with these events, and were unable to be with us. They have spoken to me and I thank them for their support.

I would like to say I am honored by Chief Delvis that he named me as Sub-Chief, and that when the time comes I will do my best to live up to his expectations, as well as those I will be serving.

Thank you Rafael Queahpama.

Message to the membership from Power & Water

During the past five years we have experienced unprecedented price drops in the wholesale energy market in the Northwest.

There are several factors that have changed the landscape for energy producers in the Northwest. The two biggest factors are renewable energy resources and natural gas.

At any given hour we can see wind generation go from zero megawatts to 4,000 megawatts. This has a big impact on market prices and affects all available energy to meet demand.

The other renewable resource affecting the market price is solar power. This resource is coming on strong and we will see more and more solar in the coming years.

The number of new renewable energy developments has increased in the Northwest, and by all accounts will continue to increase through the next decade.

The other large influence causing energy prices to remain low is the current price of natural gas, another fuel supply for power stations in the region.

Right now natural gas prices are at the same levels they were back in 1991. A new method for extraction through a process called fracking has increased the supply, making it more economical to generate power with gas turbines like the combined cycle combustion turbines

Enterprise dividend

Because of a large supply of low cost fuel, gas fired plants are running at lower operating costs, which in turn drives energy market pricing down.

In 2015, we struggled due to the price drops, and the dividend payment was met with reserve funds from Warm Springs Power & Water Enterprises (WSPWE) investments.

We will be hard pressed based on what we know today to continue using reserves to pay a dividend. ...the dividend payment will be potentially reduced to levels not typical from WSPWE.

The board of directors has made it very clear we must take drastic measures to insure we as an operating division of the tribes stay financially solvent. With that, the dividend payment will be potentially reduced to levels not typical from WSPWF

Geothermal

We will continue to explore other generating opportunities, and see if we can put together a viable project that will be needed in the renewable energy requirements that the large utilities will be required to have in the near future.

We received a grant to explore our renewable energy potential here on the reservation. This year we did some surface work to identify where the highest potential may be for a geothermal resource for a power plant.

That information yielded enough positive information to submit a request to further our exploration and drill at a few sites in the Warm Springs River Basin area upstream from Kah-Nee-Ta.

Water rights

Tribal Council has also authorized us to explore the consumptive water rights we have in the Deschutes basin. That is underway and a report for Tribal Council will be delivered in 2016.

We continue to be optimistic that this business will survive if we manage it prudently. Declaring dividends from surplus revenue and not reserves is something that the enterprise is going back to, and will place a high level of importance on extracting the most value out of this project as possible.

Habitat restoration

Hydroelectric power will continue to have a place in the Northwest energy market. It has operating characteristics that wind and thermal plants don't.

The Pelton Project continues to follow the resource management requirements as described in the federal license we were issued.

There are many objectives described in the license that we must follow. We, along with our partner PGE, have invested over $16 million in habitat restoration in the basin. We also have improvements that need to be undertaken to keep the powerhouses up-to-date and operating reliably. These two expenses are a necessity to insure we are being prudent and responsible operators on the river.

Indian Business Talk

Self help legal advice can cause serious consequences

By Bruce Engle
Loan officer
W.S. Credit Enterprise

Go carefully into that dark night.

Legal business affairs need to be carefully handled by people with legal expertise. That usually means by an attorney or after consultation with an attorney.

Don't be a legal "Do-it-Yourselfer".

If you have not done your due diligence, you may be a danger to yourself and to your business.

For example, the legal meanings of many words or phrases are often not the same as the "street" meanings. I have seen people lose cases because of some very simple misunderstandings.

Do-it-Yourselfers often turn to Self-Help sources for legal guidance. Those providers are often not trained in the law. All they can do, and should do, is refer you to sources.

That leaves it up to you to understand what you are reading.

The danger is when an untrained provider offers legal advice.

I have seen an untrained unlicensed store owner's advice result in a couple bankruptcies down home.

Remember, legal advice cannot be relied upon from anyone who is not an attorney. They must be properly licensed by a state. And they must be insured.

That's your safety blanket if they mess up. You can sue one of them. You can't sue yourself.

You can shop for an attorney. You should. The first short interview often won't cost you. Ask.

What does that mean for Warm Springs? In Tribal Court, all legal spokesmen must have taken and passed the Tribal Bar Exam. You don't want to saddle your spokesman in court with a case that started out because you got and acted upon poor legal advice from an incompetent.

Errors made in a self-help job will cost you. Count on it.

Also remember the old saying, "An attorney who represents himself has a fool for a client." We who are not attorneys would be even more foolish. Not good!

Our limited knowledge and experience, when combined with our emotions, can and will make us fair game to an expert on the other side. The rule is, "Pros beat amateurs."

Another way of saying that is, "You don't win the Derby with a Donkey."

Letter to the editor

Honest opinion

April 15 caught 85 mill workers and their families by surprise when the mill went belly up. In the past when workers were let go, the mill paid them "severance pay". But none of the mill workers were given severance pay at this time, nor were any given 60 days notice of the mill operations closing. When the workers learned of it, it was front page news in the local newspaper, so people in Madras knew of it the same day the millworkers were let go.

When the tribe asked VanPort to turn it over to them, things have been steadily going downhill at the mill ever since. And now we learn that whoever was in charge of paying for incoming logs, etc., wasn't doing so. Logs have been sold outright to Japan and China bypassing the milling of the logs by tribal members. The question in everyone's mind is where did the money go from the sale of those logs? Shouldn't that money have been used to pay off the mill debts? Now the entire mill, we have learned via the grapevine, is going to be dismantled for good without any hope of future work for mill workers. It will be interesting to "follow the money" from the sale of the mill's machines and heavy duty equipment. Too bad severance pay isn't in the minds of those who are in charge, nor is retirement.

Whoever has been making decisions for the Tribe these days hasn't kept tribal members in mind. Even though the tribe has won several million dollars in lawsuits, the money wasn't shared with tribal members, who are still wondering where exactly did every cent of those lawsuits 90?

Another contested lawsuit won by Cobell for government misuse of funds was to be shared by injured tribes of Yakama and Warm Springs, resulting in $17,000 awarded to each tribal member of Yakama. Yet not one tribal member of Warm Springs received a penny. It was allocated elsewhere under authority of the Tribal Council without permission of individual tribal members who were supposed to receive those funds. No specific accounting has been tallied. Now we see the U.S. government is not the only entity that has been misusing incoming funds. Warm Springs tribal leaders have learned well from the white man!

People outside the Rez thought that "Warm Springers" were getting beaucoup bucks from their casino, but although other tribes share casino income with their tribal members, Indian Head Casino has never shared even a penny with any tribal member... ever! So the question is: who really owns the Warm Springs casino.

Other outsiders have speculated that tribal members were each receiving enormous "per capita". Whereas in reality each member was receiving only $100 a month... that it until this last when all per capita for children under 18 was completely cut off, and the $100 per adult was cut down to $25 a month, and seniors pension was cut. Try living on that when you don't have a job. Now poverty is rampant, and tribal leaders have turned to raising marijuana as a means of income. Now we know why it is called "dope".

Scott qualifies for Fargo National tourney

Quentin Scott has traveled some serious miles this spring, chasing his quest for qualifying for a huge national tournament. And he has been on the up-side as well as down-side of the brackets and standings.

Earlier in the high school season, after a bout with eligibility, and for other reasons, Quentin joined the team late.

He failed to qualify for State after starting the comeback with a strong 9-0 record before the Prineville District Tournament.

"That was my wake up call," Quentin says. "That experience inspired me to keep going."

Quentin was two and out the first day in Freestyle, and the next day in a different style placed third, upsetting a California wrestler, winning the bracket off criteria.

Placing in top four would eventually qualify him for Team Oregon National Team in Greco Roman style.

The next week Quentin and family traveled to Reno for the Reno Worlds in collegiate style wrestling (high school standard).

The State Freestyle and Greco tournament was the followed two weeks later in Corvallis, at Crescent Valley High School.

After a lot of preparation, inspired by his performance at the Regionals in the same style, Quentin fought back, winning matches and placing sixth. He also drew enough attention from the Team Oregon Committee to be invited on a petition basis to qualify for the second style and secure his spot on the National Team.

New team for Shoni; Jude tries out for Wings

Shoni Schimmel

Shoni Schimmel now plays for the New York Liberty WNBA basketball team.

The Liberty acquired Shoni from the Atlanta Dream, in exchange for a draft pick in 2017.

Meanwhile, younger sister Jude Schimmel in April joined the Dallas Wings for pre-season training camp. The news this week is that she was released by team.

Had Jude made the Dallas team, the Schimmel sisters would have been on opposing teams when the Liberty play the Wings on May 15 at Madison Square Garden.

Both Shoni and Jude are guards. In college they played for the Louisville Cardinals.

Shoni was taken eighth overall in the 2014 WNBA draft. She then made the All-Star Team in each of her first two season, averaging 8 points, 3.4 assists, and 1.5 three-

The regular season opener for the Liberty is March 15 at the Washington Mystics.

The Schimmel family has many fans and family among the Warm Springs community.

The Utilities Department workers at the Dry Creek Landfill and Transfer Station just spent many days cleaning up an area that is near the landfilltransfer station. day through Friday.

Recurring problem by landfill

The area had been used tor illegal dumping for many months.

The area, an old shooting range, stayed clean for a short time, and then someone recently began leaving garbage there again.

This is especially discouraging, as the landfilltransfer station is located about a third of mile further down the road, said Tony Wergin, recycling technician with the Utilities Department. The transfer station is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week; and the landfill is open 8 to 5 p.m., Mon-

Serving community, kids at Head Start

The Warm Springs Head Start program this month received a three star rating from the Oregon Quality Rating and Improvement System.

The Quality Rating and Improvement System, or QRIS, works to raise the quality and consistency of child care and early learning programs across the state.

The three-star rating means Warm Springs Head Start is meeting the standards that support quality learning for children, said Cheryl Tom, acting Head Start director.

Warm Springs Head Start is a state certified child care center, licensed for 420 children. The program first opened in 1992, one of the original Head Start programs in the U.S.

Warm Springs Head Start now employs nearly 100 people, providing comprehensive services including year-around child care, preschool, early intervention, integrated special education, and Head Start, both full and part-day.

Housed in the Early Childhood Education Center, services also include after-school care, infant care, parent education, the infant follow along program, home base program, and various outreach services.

Graduation

The Head Start graduation is coming up on June 10 at the community center.

This year there is a large class of 74 of graduating students, who will be moving on to kindergarten in the fall.

UAS at KNT looks to break ground

A key part of the Warm Springs Ventures unmanned training center at Kah-Nee-Ta. This will help with Ventures' goal of developing a Center For Excellence in Fire Fighting on the reservation.

The work at Kah-Nee-Ta will involve remodeling the aerial systems program is the lower floor area, and creating conference and classrooms, and a UAS training simulator.

> There is a chance the ground-breaking for this work could happen in the next two to three weeks, said Aurolyn Stwyer, Ventures business and marketing director. Funding is coming through a state grant program.

Funding for tribes to prosecute non-Indians

For the first time since the Violence Against Women Act became law in 2013, tribes will be able to obtain federal funds to help them exercise jurisdiction over non-Indians.

The landmark law recognizes the "inherent" authority of tribes to arrest, prosecute and sentence certain non-Indian offenders for some domestic violence crimes. But Congress never

Oregon Gov. Kate Brown signed a proclamation making the week of May 14-21, American Indian Week. The proclamation reads in part:

Our state's efforts to build a healthy environment, strong economy and thriving communities will be strengthened by consulting with an tapping into the historical knowledge and traditional expertise of the First Oregonians.

funded a program that was designed to help tribes strengthen their justice sys-

That's finally changing now that Congress included some money in a fiscal year 2016 appropriations measure. The Department of Justice is now accepting applications for the new Grants to Tribal Governments to Exercise Special Domestic Violence Criminal Jurisdiction Program.

The lack of federal funding hasn't stopped tribes from writing new laws, improving their courts and making other changes that enable them to comply with Violence Against Women Act.

The law requires tribes to protect the constitutional rights of all defendants if they choose to participate in the special domestic violence criminal jurisdiction program.
