Plan for renovating the ballfields

The Warm Springs baseball fields are in need of extensive renovation. And once this work is done, the new fields will need ongoing maintenance. Young players, and adult softball teams, require this amenity here in Warm Springs.

Tribal executive management and community development have developed a detailed plan that would accomplish the goal, bringing the fields up to a highest quality standard.

As the health of tribal youth is a community priority, the Tribal Council by resolution this month endorsed the plan.

The endorsement allows management and community development—with Warm Springs Recreation as project sponsor—to pursue the necessary funding for the work, which will be extensive.

One immediate source of funding—one prompting the recent Council resolution—could be the Oregon Parks and Recreation. The Parks and Recreation grant would be in addition to the tribal match, and other potential sources.

The Council resolution states

the need for action to restore the fields, noting: “The existing 41-year-old ball fields complex is due for extensive renovation and redevelopment... “ The resolution continues with some details of the project:

A new orientation and relocation of all four current ball fields—three Little League baseball, and one adult softball field—shall be repurposed to create a total of four new Little League baseball fields in a typical four-plex ball fields layout.

An additional two adult softball size ball fields would be constructed adjacent to the four-plex ball fields.

Other amenities: New chain-link fencing, synthetic turf for infields and outfields, spectator seating, dugouts with players benches, combination restroom, food concession and picnic shelter, landscaping, pedestrian walkways, handicapped accessibility, parking areas, underground utilities, scorekeepers booths, other related ancillary items. (See the conceptual drawing of the project on page 8.)

Powwow, new exhibit for Museum anniversary

Twenty-five years ago this week the tribes celebrated the opening of the Museum at Warm Springs.

That week saw the realization of a vision—a museum preserving and honoring the tribal history, culture and traditions—first conceived in the 1960s.

Some ensuing milestones were Tribal Council approval of the charter, and membership approval of the referendum.

The ground-breaking happened in 1991, and the doors opened to the public this week in March 1993.

To celebrate these first 25 years—the Silver Anniversary—the Museum at Warm Springs will host a powwow, and the opening of a new exhibit.

This Saturday, March 17 the museum will host a traditional powwow and opening of the new exhibit, T'wanat—Celebrate Our Legacy. Events begin at 2 p.m.

There will be commemorative gifts, door prizes and refreshments. Miss Warm Springs will be on hand.

The new exhibit is a celebration of the tribal culture and the museum. Items on display will be rarely seen items from the Museum at Warm Springs Permanent Collection.

Getting ready at the Plateau Travel Plaza

These are busy days at the Plateau Travel Plaza—busy and exciting as the 70 employees are getting ready for the opening.

The goal is to have all of the staff on opening day working as smoothly as though they have been there for years, said Eric Angel, Travel Plaza general manager.

The employees are running through all facets of the operation—from the kitchen and dining area, to the convenience store, fuel stations, gaming area, security, maintenance and more.

The Travel Plaza will open to the public on Saturday, March 24, with the grand opening planned for Friday, April 6.

The enterprise has already created many new jobs for tribal members: close to 75 percent of the workers there are members. “I’m really happy about that,” said Jeffrey Carstensen, Indian Head Casino Chief Executive Officer.

The Plateau is a new business, though it is a project of Indian Head Casino. And the two will complement one another.

The Travel Plaza—off Highway 26 at Cherry Lane in the Madras Industrial Park—will be the first new business enterprise of the Confederated Tribes in several years, and one that has taken diligence and time to realize.

“We started in October of 2013, so it’s been more than four years,” Mr. Carstensen said.

The Travel Plaza will be a 24-hour operation, working in three shifts. There will be many customers from the industrial park, which employs more than 1,000 people.

Just off the highway, and near the intersection with Highway 97, the vehicle traffic will also bring in many customers.

Clearly, this month will mark a milestone in the economic future of the Confederated Tribes.

Photos show 1950s era harvests

The Culture and Heritage Committee shared a recently compiled book of photographs of tribal members in the 1950s harvesting huckleberries and edible lichen, and digging roots. The publication also has pictures of the 1953 Huckleberry Feast at the HeHe Longhouse.

Michelle Steen-Adams from the University of Washington shared the publication with the tribal Natural Resources Branch, who shared with the Culture and Heritage Committee.

The photograph images in the publication are from glass slides, originally in the collection of David and Katherine French, now at the University of Washington. The glass slides allow for reproduction of the highest quality: Many of the photographs are sharp and brightly colored. Some are in black and white.

The publication is the result of U.S. Forest Service project to study the effect of fire on the health of the forest, specifically how the Native people used fire to maintain healthy habitat for traditional foods.

Culture and Heritage Committee chairwoman Myra Johnson-Orange shared the publication with Tribal Council, during her committee update.

Another topic was the Agency and other longhouses. Committee member Carlos Calica said the tribes should consider having an official longhouse and meeting policy to deal with people who are disruptive or under the influence.

Parade, expo will honor Vietnam veterans

The ThirdAnnual Welcome Home Vietnam Veteran’s Parade & Expo will be held in Warm Springs on April 28.

The public event, hosted by the Eugene “Cougar” Greene Sr. American Legion Post and Auxiliary #48 honors veteran’s who served between February 28, 1961 thru May 7, 1975.

The day’s events include a parade, an honor ceremony, a meal, and an expo. Free per-registration is required at: www.WSala48.org.

The purpose of the event is to show support and recognition to Vietnam era veterans. It’s no secret that American’s who opposed the war in Vietnam were cruel to those in uniform.

Decades later society has made efforts to change the message to these very veterans.

In Oregon, March 28 is Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day. Warm Springs held the first event on that day but it was too cold. Since 2017, the event has been held at the end of April when the weather in the high desert is warm.

Event check-in begins at 8 a.m. on the campus lawn at the tent visible from highway 26. Parade lineup is at 10 a.m. As an education venue the parade will be canvassed with facts about the Vietnam War.

Military organization floats are required to post facts about the war or their community of Vietnam veterans.

General floats are required to include a message of gratitude to the Vietnam veterans. A quiet interview section will be set up for students and the media who wish to interview veterans.

The expo will be held at the end of the parade route in the Community Center gym. Setup begins at 8:30 a.m. and will be opened to the public from 12 to 5 p.m.

A Wall of Honor will be displayed of Vietnam veterans who have passed on. Everybody is invited to post their 4x6 photos framed in white paper frames by 10 a.m.

The American Legion family is joined each year by area veteran organizations, enterprises, small business, and the Tribal Council of Warm Springs to host this long overdue tribute.

Details of this drug, alcohol, and firecracker free event can be found at WSala48.org. For sponsorship inquiries or questions contact the organizers at 541-460-8212.

Culture and Heritage working on Native curriculum

The Culture and Heritage Department is working on a Native American curriculum that will be taught in the Jefferson County School District 509-J.

The curriculum will be taught to all district students, kindergarten through twelfth grade, with different content designed for the various grade levels.

Last week, Culture and Heritage was working on curriculum units geared toward students in upper elementary grades. Unit topics will include First Foods, languages, beadwork, rock art, feasts and celebrations, stories and legends, hunting and fishing, for example.

Units are expected to be about 20 pages long. The full curriculum could be ready for the 2018-19 school year.

This Native American curriculum project is a partnership between the school district and the tribes, with Culture and Heritage serving as the expert consultants and authors. They are working with Mary Cadez, an tribal

The new curriculum could be used as the 509-J compliance with the 2107 state law SB 13, said Deanie Smith, Culture and Heritage Language program director.

After its passage last year, SB 13 now requires school districts to develop curricula that explain, from the perspectives of tribes, the Native American experience in Oregon.

The SB 13 curricula are to be implemented at least by the 2019-20 school year. The tribes and 509-J are ahead of the schedule, as they are began developing the new curriculum even before passage of SB 13.

Culture and Heritage director Val Switzler, and Government Affairs director Louis Pitt were advocates who spoke on behalf of the new law.

Each of the nine Oregon tribes will work on their own curricula for the districts in nearby proximity to the particular tribe. This is so the history part of the curricula will reflect the experience of the local tribe or tribes.

Warm Springs Culture and Heritage already teaches tribal lessons at the high school, and especially at the Warm Springs Academy.

Tribal languages last year became available to students during the regular school day.

Three are more than 320 students at the Academy who have enrolled in the language classes, Deanie Smith said.

Parents are saying the students are looking forward to going to school because of the language classes.

One of the goals of bringing tribal culture learning to the district is to help address absenteeism and reduce the drop-out rate, Ms. Smith said.

For Math the registration is Tuesday or Thursday of the week of April 2, one day mandatory to attend. Registration will not be accepted after April 5.

Small business incubator project going forward

The Warm Springs Community Action team is making good progress on the small business incubator project.

The plan calls for development of a small business center on the campus near the highway.

The businesses, and the Community Action Team small business assistance center, would be housed in the historic commissary building.

The building will be wholly renovated, and moved from its location by the police station to the area of the Kalama's fry bread cart.

The Community Action Team has already raised significant funding toward this project, plus secured the services of an architectural firm.

Most recently, the Community Action Team is recruiting to fill two new positions, said Chris Watson, Community Action Team executive director.

One of the new positions is the business incubator bookkeeper, and the other is the small business incubator project manager.

Both positions are paid for through an Administration

“The small business incubator manager will be integral in helping us turn the old commissary building into a beautiful, functioning small business incubator serving the Warm Springs business community.”

for Native Americans grant that lasts through September 2020.

“The small business incubator manager will be integral in helping us turn the old commissary building into a beautiful, functioning small business incubator serving the Warm Springs business community,” Mr. Watson said.

The small business bookkeeper will be responsible for designing bookkeeping systems for the commissary businesses, and other small businesses participating in the Community Action Team's Warm Springs Small Business Promotion Project. The small business promotion project is also made possible by an Administration for Native Americans grant.

The bookkeeper will also assist business owners in becoming more skilled at financial management.

The hope is to fill the positions by mid April, Mr. Watson said.

Land Buy-Back

The Office of the Special Trustee for American Indians encourages you to consider using this important information, as one tool to help you make an informed decision about participating in the Land Buy-Back program.

Please remember the program is completely voluntary.

If you receive an offer and decide to sell your land, the sale cannot be reversed, therefore it is important to have adequate information for your decision making process.

For information cal Randy Scott at 541-615-0997; or Charles Jackson at 541-553-2442. Some frequently asked

The Warm Springs IHS medical clinic is open Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.: There is no late clinic at this time.

How did I get my land? The common ways you obtain ownership are through inheritance from a family member or a gift deed from a family member. If you want more information, please contact your local BIA Probate and Real Estate office for more information.

Where is my land located? View the maps you received with your offer to find the location of your land. You may wish to visit the land area, to understand the location and what is on the land.

How much land do I own? Understanding how much fractionated undivided interest amount you own is important. For example, you may own 1 percent land interest in the allotment, and 99 percent is owned by the other 300 landowners in the allotment; thus, if you do not consent to a lease and the other 300 landowners do consent to the lease, then the lease may be approved.

Land interest ownership can be found on your quarterly and annual Individual Indian Monies Statement of Performance, Individual Trust Interest Report and the Purchase Interest Inventory in the Buy Back offer packets.

What can the land be used for (can I live on it)? The land may be used for a residential lease or other developments. Owning an interest in an allotment does not necessarily mean that you control land use decisions. For example, you may own 1 percent and others own the other 99 percent: In that case you will need to obtain consent from the other landowners. Recognize the consent requirements that must be followed in accordance with 25 USC 2218.

What is on my land? View your quarterly and annual Indian Individual Monies Statement of Performance to see what encumbrances you have on your land. Three may be pending developmental applications, renewals and projects with the BIA Realty Office for leases or rights-of-way on your land. What is the land worth? Before a purchase offer is made, an appraisal is completed on your property to determine fair market value. Read the Indian Land Tenure Foundation brochure that you received in the mail for more information. To determine the value of the entire allotment, divide your offer by your fractional ownership interest.

Indian Business Talk

Needs and wants when calculating potential business success

*By Bruce Engle
Loan officer
W.S. Credit Enterprise*

We talk about ‘Wants and Needs’ for credit clean-up and budgeting, when credit counseling, or teaching financial literacy and homebuyer classes.

We can take a similar approach for helping Indianpreneurship students and business operators to assess their existing or proposed markets.

Questions to be asked might include:

What are your probable and possible customers?:

- Wants?
- Needs?
- Average household annual and disposable incomes?

The big questions are:

- Do they really need your product?

- Are they already purchasing your product or a similar product?

- Do they only want it?
- Can they afford it?
- Will they buy it?
- For what price?
- Can you afford to offer those goods for that price?

- Who will be your competitors?

- Is there a market trend going on? Steady? New? Peaking? Dying out?

Be prepared—learn and plan.

Do—Business.

Keep on learning.

Success—keeping on learning.

Failure—more lessons to learn.

Then, Do again!

Remember Yoda—“Do or don’t do; there is no try.”

Start the morning with Jitters Java on the Go

Victoria Godines has opened a new business serving the Warm Springs community.

Jitters Java on the Go is a moving coffee trailer serving hot and cold drinks made with fresh roasted coffee beans, ground and brewed daily. She uses Opal Spring water, and whole milk or almond.

On the menu are hot and iced lattes with a variety of savory flavors, such as huckleberry, caramel, vanilla, French vanilla, chocolate, and raspberry to mention just a few.

“We make it to your perfection,” Victoria says. “If you ask for mixed flavors or more shots, there is not an extra cost.”

A 16-ounce latte is $4, and a 20-ounce is $5. “If you enjoy a good cup of java,” she says, “We also serve espresso for $2 and a house coffee for $1.”

If you are looking for a sweet jolt, Jitters Java on the Go also makes infused Redbull, with flavors such as strawberry, blackberry and vanilla, raspberry and cherry. “Or as with the lattes,” she says, “tell us how you want it.”

Jitters Java also serves homemade baked goods such as chocolate chip cookie bars or brownies. And they offer packaged snacks.

Victoria works the mobile coffee shop with her parents Victor and Maria Godines.

They’ve set up Jitters Java on the Go at the IHS clinic, and also at the Community Center and administration. They’ve been working out which of the spots is most convenient and centrally located for the community. If you have suggestions on where you would like them to set up, please text Maria at 541-350-8667 with location and the contact person.

Maria, Victoria and Victor all have Food Handler certificates and a business license, and have made contact with the appropriate tribal staff regarding their business venture. They would like to say:

We wish to thank chief operations officer Alyssa Macy, tribal planner Lonny Macy, IHS clinic director Carol Prevost, Community Health Resource director Russell Graham, Recreation organizer Carol Sabme, Natural Resources general manager Bobby Brunoe, Vital Statistics and the Community Action Team staff for providing us with the information, services or guidance to get Jitters Java on the Go here in Warm Springs.

No smelt in Cowlitz this season

The smelt season on the Cowlitz didn’t happen this year.

The Confederated Tribes opened a season, but apparently no one caught any smelt.

Meanwhile, the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife closed the recreational smelt season on the Cowlitz.

There were far too few smelt returning to the Cowlitz to allow for a season, the state officials determined.

This was the first time in five years that there was no smelt dip netting on the river.

A commercial test fishery conducted in February in the Columbia River showed that area smelt abundance was too low to warrant a recreational fishery.

Smelt were listed in 2010 as a threatened species from Washington state to the Mexican border under the federal Endangered Species Act.

Growing impact of sea lions

A new study from the Northwest Power and Conservation Council reveals that Sea lions consumed 9 percent of an already-low steelhead run at Bonneville Dam in 2017. That is of top of a sea lions eating their fill of spring Chinook, sturgeon, and lamprey.

From May to early June of 2017, sea lions consumed an estimated 1,800 adult salmonids. That is more than three time the ten year average for the same time period, according to the study.

From January 1 to June 2 of 2017, sea lions consumed an estimated 5,000 adult salmonids at the dam.

Klamath Chinook possible ESA listing

Federal fisheries officials said last week they will consider putting the Pacific Northwest’s once-flourishing wild spring-run Chinook salmon on the list of threatened or endangered species.

The National Marine Fisheries Services plans a 12-month review on whether to give protected status to the salmon in and around the Klamath River.

California’s Kuruk tribe, which joined the Salmon River Restoration Council environmental group in petitioning for more protections for the fish, say the species is nearly extinct throughout much of its range in Oregon and Northern California.

The tribe blames Klamath River dams for blocking the fish from their spawning grounds.

Work Force: given Tribal Council support

Spirituality will be a big part in finding a lasting solution, Councilwoman Miller said.

Family and community, not just government measures, are also essential, said Councilwoman Brigette McConville.

Council chairman Austin Greene Jr. said he will work to bring back the inter-tribal meth task force, as other tribes are experiencing this epidemic.

Warm Springs Chief Delvis Heath noted the Yakama Nation has taken unprecedented steps to contend with the problem, even discussing disenrollment, and reservation exclusion of convicted drug dealers.

Work Group statement

The Meth and Opiate Work Group has met a number of times in recent months. Their first meeting, with 14 members attending, was in November. Some meetings have seen up to 30 members present.

This week the group asked for a statement of support from Tribal Council, who were unanimous in support.

“We as the Meth and Opiate Work Group would like to ask our Chiefs and Council representatives to openly support and speak out against the epidemic of methamphetamine, alcohol and other drugs,” the letter to Council says. “We need the support of our Chiefs and leaders in order to eliminate the issues surrounding meth, alcohol and other drugs.”

Some of the requests are as follows:

Strong encouragement against the use of meth, alcohol and other drugs.

Ensure appropriate levels of funding are provided to support programs that are currently trying to combat the issue through education, treatment, prevention, healing and activities. Ensure collaboration among the programs.

Attend assist with and appear at events, classes or projects that are being held locally that are addressing meth, alcohol and other drugs.

Enforce current tribal laws and update the Tribal Code to allow law enforcement, tribal Court and other tribal entities to hold offenders accountable for damage and property loss caused by the use of meth, alcohol and other drugs.

Enforce curfew. Return to unwritten Indian laws, and restore cultural teachings.

There need to be clear standards and healthy beliefs in the jurisdiction of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. We must hold each other accountable for our actions as a community. All tribal codes regarding meth, alcohol and other drugs are in immense need to be updated to hold accurate accountability.

We as a tribe need to create and foster an environment that supports healthy norms through encouragement, promotion, recognition and modeling. It’s only through a joint effort and commitment of the leaders and community that will help shift to a positive change.

The Warm Springs Meth and Opiate Work Group.

The mission of the Meth and Opiate Work Group is “To bring awareness and education for our community about the dangers caused by meth and opiate use. To

Getting ready for 2018 fire season

Warm Springs Fire Management is getting ready for this year's fire season.

Fire Management will host camp crew training this month. The trainings will begin on March 26.

For information call William Wilson or Bob Medina at 541-553-1146. The first step in the process is filling out the application, followed by the safety trainings and a physical test.

The fire season usually begins in June. Around Pi-

Ume-Sha time Fire Management initiates 24-hour coverage.

Use of drones

Last year, the Western U.S. experienced one of its worst wildfire season in years. An area the size of Delaware burned within California alone.

Those fires, along with a trio of devastating hurricanes that hit the opposite coast, made 2017 the costliest year on record for natural disasters in U.S. history.

In response, the federal government relied on unmanned aircrafts, which are increasingly cheaper to buy and deploy, more than ever to aid the efforts of firefighters on the ground.

Meanwhile in Congress, lawmakers are frozen in a political stalemate over how to fix a system for funding firefighting efforts that both parties agree is broken.

Last year, Interior, which leads interagency efforts on unmanned aircrafts outside the Pentagon, flew 707 drone missions on 71 wild-fires.

In total, the department conducted nearly 5,000 flights altogether for various purposes, including drawing maps, surveying wildlife and conducting search-and-rescue missions.
