Vision taking shape for business park

At the Warm Springs Community Action Team, Chris Watson recounts this incident:

Some years ago he and his wife and parents-in-law were travelling along the highway, when they saw a chance to stop for some refreshments and a short break from driving.

It was a small convenience park operated by a Northwest Indian tribe. In the café they ordered something to drink, and then his parents-in-law purchased $250 in Native American crafts.

The point is this: Just getting some of the highway drivers to stop—even if it's only for a cup of coffee—can open the door to any number of small business opportunities.

And that is the idea behind the Community Action Team Small Business Incubator project.

Mr. Watson and his team have been carefully planning and working on this idea for some time, with large funding components now in place.

The Administration for Native Americans, the Oregon Community Fund, the Collins Foundation are examples of the diverse funding sources so far.

nated design services.

Additional funding requests are pending, with a great chance for success, bringing the project just within reach. And the closer a project of this kind is to its goal, the more likely other sources are to help see it through.

The business park

The main offices and business space of the Small Business Incubator project will be in the building known as the Old Commissary. The building will be wholly renovated, and moved across campus to the property at Highway 26 and Paiute Avenue.

The café will be a central feature on the ground floor, along with other businesses. Upstairs will be offices and the small business support staff.

The Old Commissary is a 5,000 square-foot, two-story wood frame building, built in the early 1900s or possibly earlier. The historic structure has not been in use since 1998, when it housed the tribal Natural Resources Branch.

Canoes ready for Paddle to Puyallup

The N'Chi Wanapum Canoe Family of Warm Springs is beginning the Power Paddle to Puyallup Tribal Canoe Journey.

They leave this Thursday, July 19 for Wallowa Lake. About a week later, on July 29, they will arrive at the final destination, Puyallup in the Puget Sound region.

At Puyallup—in the Medicine Creek Territory of Puget Sound—they will meet with the host tribe, the Muckleshoot, and many other tribes: Warm Springs is one of 99 tribal canoes that are registered to make the Power Paddle to Puyallup 2018. The journey concludes with a week-long celebration.

The very first Northwest tribal Canoe Journey was in 1989, with just four canoes. Warm springs joined the Journey in 2010, after the tribes acquired the 36-foot N'Chi Wana canoe in 2009.

Over the years they have paddled to Makah, Swinomish, Squaxin, Nisqually, among other destinations. They practice regularly in the months leading up to the Journey.

The N'Chi Wanapum Canoe is a project of the Museum at Warm Springs, Health and Human Services Branch, and the tribes. The canoe revitalizes the tribal tradition that suffered after 1855, when the tribes were relocated from the Columbia River to the reservation.

Fair and Rodeo are next week

There will be new carnival attractions at this year's Jefferson County Fair and Rodeo, starting next Wednesday, July 25.

This year the carnival will feature a new 3D Haunted House ride. So far this summer at other fairs: "This ride has been a big hit," said Brian Crow, fairgrounds coordinator.

"For the kids we're also bringing in the Kids Fun Faire, and the Bouncy House Safari," Mr. Crow said. "This area will include face painting, and all kinds of family fun." Another new feature will be a 300-foot zip line, plus the traditional carnival rides.

On the fair schedule: Honoring Veterans Day is Wednesday, July 24. Kids Day is Thursday; Seniors Day is Friday, and Can Cancer Day is on Saturday, July 27.

The rodeo starts at 7 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday in the Corwin Arena.

There will be all kinds of show livestock, food vendors and barbecue, and entertainers from around the region.

From Warm Springs, Blue Flamez will perform on the Les Schwab Main Stage at 5 p.m. on Saturday, July 28. The Rock Bottom Boys play that Saturday night.

The Fair and Rodeo includes an ice cream eating contest, lawnmower races, exhibits in the Exhibits Hall, and more.

Tribal Council will decide future course for Kah-Nee-Ta

Tribal Council has taken no action on the future operation of Kah-Nee-Ta Resort and Spa, and the potential operator continues to seek funding that would allow the resort to stay open.

The Kah-Nee-Ta board will make a presentation soon to Tribal Council, presenting various options. Reports that Kah-Nee-Ta will close on September 5 were based on a public notification requirement, and the reports were perhaps premature.

Regarding the notification: The federal Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act applies to companies that employ 100 or more employees, such as Kah-Nee-Ta.

The WARN act says the company must give notification if 50 or more employees are going to be laid off for more than 30 days.

The notification must be given 60 days before the expected lay-offs. Kah-Nee-Ta gave this notice early in July with September 5 as the potential lay-off date. This was done in the worst-case scenario of Kah-Nee-Ta actually closing.

However, Tribal Council has made no decision; so the matter is pending, said Jim Manion, Kah-Nee-Ta board chairman.

In the worst-case scenario, there are options: A partial closure, a temporary closure, or a permanent closure, Mr. Manion said. And there remains the hope that the potential operator will secure the necessary funding.

The potential investor-operator, Accent Ventures, wants to invest up to $16 million in Kah-Nee-Ta, under a long-term lease of the property with the Confederated Tribes. Securing the funding has taken longer than expected, but could still happen.

The option that the Kah-Nee-Ta board would not recommend to Tribal Council would be continued operation of Kah-Nee-Ta without at least a break-even bottom line.

"Kah-Nee-Ta has been a financial drain on the tribes for years," Mr. Manion said. "We have to come up with a model that is self-sustaining."

Weighing the potential closure options is happening at the same time that Tom Hansen, chief executive officer of Accent Ventures, is actively seeking the funding that would resolve the matter.

Kah-Nee-Ta opened in the 1960s. The tribes built the Lodge in the early 1970s.

This summer there are about 170 employees working at the resort.

Indian Head, Plateau update at Tribal Council

It's been close to four months since the Confederated Tribes and Indian Head Casino opened the Plateau Travel Plaza.

The new venture is proving to be a great addition to the tribal enterprises, said Jeff Carstensen, Indian Head general manager. Mr. Carstensen and Eric Angel, Plateau general manager, met with Tribal Council last week for an update.

Since opening in mid March, the travel plaza has sold over 400,000 gallons of gasoline and diesel. The volume of sale is increasing steadily month by month, Mr. Angel said.

Meanwhile the casino and travel plaza are working on additional promotion strategies for the enterprise. Other news from the recent update:

There are 75 employees at the Plateau Travel Plaza: 56 percent are tribal members; 3 percent are married into the tribes; 13 percent other Native; and 28 percent non-tribal. And as of last week there were 12 open positions.

Rail spur matter

Meeting with the Indian Head Casino team, Tribal Council also passed a resolution, as recommended by the team, regarding a land matter at the travel plaza property. The situation can be summarized:

The 10-acre Plateau property, which is trust land, once was part of the tribal lumber mill. Some years ago the mill operation included the transfer of finished wood to a warehouse that once stood on the property.

The wood would then be loaded on rail cars for further transport. At the time the property included a rail spur.

After the mill operation no longer used the property, the rail spur strip eventually reverted from the railroad to the city of Madras.

The tribes have since bought the property in question, holding it so far in fee. The Tribal Council action last week is part of the process to bring the rail spur strip into trust, making the entire lot trust land.

Care was taken during the planning of the travel plaza to ensure that no gaming aspect of the plaza was located on the rail spur area, said Howie Arnett, tribal attorney.

Archive project preserves historic photos

The history of the tribes is captured visually on thousands of photographs housed at the Culture and Heritage Department. Some of these photos are 100 or more years old, others from more recent times.

There are landscape shots, some at the traditional tribal land at the Columbia River, and images of community events and community members.

The images exist as developed photographs, as negatives and slides. Culture and Heritage director Val Switzler has seen the need to preserve these historic images in a more permanent form. A digital archive of all of the photographs would accomplish this.

Ms. Switzler worked with the University of Oregon to secure a grant that has funded an initial phase of the digitization project.

The grant paid for a specialized camera, a computer, lighting and photograph table. Creston Dana Smith is working on digitizing the images. He has also worked on organizing the Culture and Heritage Department archives room, filled with all kinds of tribal history—films, transcripts, oral histories, actual tribal items, etc.

Mr. Smith this summer completed a program at San Diego State University, hosted by the Western Archives Institute. So far he has digitized several hundred of the photographs.

The process requires precision, using the specialized equipment from the University of Oregon. The project is housed in the Education building.

As there are thousands of images, the process will take some time. The current grant will allow for only an initial phase of the project.

In time the archives team would like to have as much information as possible for each of the photographs, the reason for the tribal photo night this Wednesday evening, July 18, at the Greeley Heights community building.

Community Photo Night

Culture and Heritage will host Community Photo Night this Wednesday evening, July 18 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Greeley Heights community building.

Photographs from the Culture and Heritage archive will be on display. The hope is to gather information about the photos: Where they were taken, and when, who are the people in the pictures, and who might have been behind the camera.

There will also be an information presentation on digitizing and preserving historic photos. Culture and Heritage will hear community comments on what people think of the presentation, and whether they would like to see more such events.

Huckleberry Feast on Sunday

The tribes will celebrate the Huckleberry Feast this Sunday, July 22 at the HeHe Longhouse.

Culture Camp Naimuma moved to into August

Culture and Heritage moved Camp Naimuma to August, as there was a scheduling conflict this weekend with the Huckleberry Feast.

The 2018 Camp Naimuma will be August 5-9, with the registration deadline now August 3. The camp is open to the first 50 boys and 50 girls who sign up.

The camp is for students in grades 3-8 (during the 2017-18 school year).

Native student pre-college academy

The University of Oregon will host the Native American Pre-College Academy, July 30-August 5 at the Eugene campus.

The academy aims to create a cohort of college-bound Native American students. The academy will focus on preparing high school juniors and seniors for the college admissions process.

Over the course of the seven-day program, the students will get acquainted with the University of Oregon campus, facilities, students and staff.

Students will stay in the new Kalapuya Ilihi residence hall, and get first-hand experience living and learning on a college campus.

The program is free. Eligibility: Open to all Native American high school students who will be in grades 9-12 in the coming school year. Priority is given to rising juniors and seniors. Apply online at:

Action Team update well received at Council

Thirty-five people have cars on the reservation who would not have the vehicles without the help of the Warm springs Community Action Team Individual Development Account program.

Eighteen individuals and families have made home purchases through the IDA program, the majority in recent years.

The IDA program was one of the highlights of the Community Action Team annual update this week at Tribal Council.

One-hundred and eighteen people have graduated from the IDA program, said Chris Watson, Action Team director.

The IDA program is a financial incentive program, whereby a person can save a certain amount of money, which in time is matched many times over.

The money can be used for the purchase of a vehicle or home, a home renovation or improvement, education, among other uses.

“There are 35 cars driving around the reservation that would not be here without the IDA program,” Mr. Watson said. “I think it gives our staff a good feeling seeing these cars driving around.”

He reviewed some other programs of the Community Action Team—Financial skills programs, the Outdoor Market, Small Business Incubator and Tananawit, for instance. His report was well received. “You’re to be commended. You have a track record of success,” said Councilman Jody Calica.

To find out more about the IDA, or any other program of the Community Action Team, stop by their office at 1136 Paiute Avenue on campus; or call 541-553-3148.

Head Start, Early Head Start fall hours

Warm Springs Head announced new start days and hours for this coming fall.

The program hours will be Tuesday through Friday, 7:45 a.m. to 3 p.m. Head Start is closed on Mondays.

Earliest drop-off time for Tuesday-Friday is 7:45 a.m. No admittance after 10 a.m. without prior arrangement with Family Services staff by 9 a.m.

Get your applications in now: Enrollment selections will be in August.

Outdoor Market this Friday

The Warm Springs Outdoor Market is open Friday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. in front of Re-Use It Thrift Store.

Featured are fresh produce, value-added foods, Native art and more.

Then on Saturday the market is set up on campus by Kalama’s Fry Bread

Fuels project

The Sunflower Flat Hazardous Fuels Reduction Project is seeking input on potential hazardous fuel reduction in 11,000-acre part of the Coyote Creek watershed. There are two public meetings this Thursday, July 19.

The first is at noon in the Greeley Heights community building; and then at 6 p.m. at the Simnasho Longhouse.

The Project involves lands at the north reservation border east of Highway 26.

Second suspicious blaze in recent weeks

A fire broke out late Monday afternoon, July 16, off Highway 26 at Cemetery Road.

The Ben Lane fire, driven by the wind, moved in the direction of the intersection of highways 26 and 3.

Fire fighters successfully worked to protect two residences and the Catholic Church.

Previously dug dozer lines had been set in place by Fire Management earlier this year.

These helped keep the wildlife from the Miller Heights subdivision.

The Ben Lane fire appears to have been human-caused, and investigators consider the situation suspicious. This blaze burned about 300 acres.

The Mecca fire of two weeks ago, starting on July 3, also appears to have been human-caused, and is suspicious.

This was the blaze that burned in high winds across Highway 26 and toward the Greeley Heights neighborhood.

Investigators located a can of flammable substance used to heat food.

Especially during high fire season, residents are asked to report any suspicious activity. You can report anonymously at 541-553-2202.

Ancestry of William 'Billy Chinook' Parker

In his time William 'Billy Chinook' Parker, born in 1823, traveled from the Northwest to California and the East Coast.

Originally from the mid Columbia River region, Mr. Parker spent his later years on the Warm Springs Reservation, farming and raising his family.

Today, he has many descendants: Some of them are here in Warm Springs; others hail from New Jersey, Texas, among many locales.

How many people—all of these generations later—can trace their ancestry to Billy Chinook?

We will have a general idea of this great diversity of ancestry in August, when Richard Macy hosts the family gathering, welcoming all who trace their heritage to Billy Chinook and wife Annie Holliquilla Parker.

The gathering will be at the Community Center social hall, all day on Saturday and Sunday, August 18-19.

In memory

In Memory of Norman A. Nathan ~ Six years in Heaven ~ August 8, 1937- July 18, 2012

The moment that you left me, my heart was split in two.

One side filled with memories, the other died with you.

I often lay away at night when the world is fast asleep,

Then take a walk down memory lane with tears upon my cheek.

Remembering you is easy, I do it every day,

But missing you is a heartache that never goes away.

I hope you tightly within my heart and there you will remain.

You see Norm, life has gone on without you

But will never be the same.

Tananáwit artists group to have shop at small business center

Tananáwit is an artists' project, working in partnership with the Warm Springs Community Action Team.

Tananáwit artists will have a first-floor store at the Small Business Incubator building, with artist work space on the basement floor.

The group this spring received its non-profit 501(c)3 status. The board members are chairman Gerald Danzuka, Tamera Calhoun, Marge Kalama, Shayleen Macy EagleSpeaker, Tamera

Moody and Aurolyn Stwyer.

Emily Courtney will be working with the Community Action Team to establish the Tananáwit shop at the new business center. Leah Guliasi is the Community Action Team liaison to the Tananáwit board and membership.

If you would like information on joining Tanaáwit—meaning ‘Our People’ in Ichishkeen—stop by the Community Action Team office, 1136 Paiute Avenue, or call 541-553-3148.

In the basement will be space for artisans to produce their work. Outside would be a variety of food carts in the food court pavilion; and the nearby service building.

This will all be done in phases, with the main Commissary work in the initial phase. The Community Action Team began the project a few years ago, with an open house and information and opinion gathering session with the community.

People mentioned more retail space and business offices, and small business support, as among the biggest needs in Warm Springs. The Old Commissary—once relocated to a new site—was identified as the best option for an incubator project.

The team studied two different sites, and with more community input they identified the highway-Paiute Avenue site as the best. A benefit is its close proximity to the highway, and there is infrastructure already in place.

Tribal Council gave their support, and provided the Community Action Team with a 10-year lease of the Old Commissary.

The Community Action Team has hired Marissa Ahern as the Small Business Incubator project manager.

Ms. Ahern is a graduate of the University of Colorado, where she studied Environmental Design in the Architecture program, and is completing her Master's Degree in Community and Economic Development.

Examples of small business incubators

What is a small business incubator? One definition reads:

Business incubators are organizations that offer startups shared operation space.

In doing so, entrepreneurs enjoy a collaborative work environment with invaluable mentoring and networking opportunities, funding support and shared equipment. In short, they offer fledgling young companies a warm, safe place to grow and prosper.

There are many examples in Oregon, each one a little different.

The Warm Springs Community Action Team has looked at several, such as the Gaucho Collective of Klamath Falls.

The Gaucha Collective features working space, laptop stations, a

Purpose statement of incubator project

The Warm Springs Community Action Team states the purpose of the Small Business Incubator with these observations:

Currently, small businesses on the Warm Springs Indian Reservation provide fewer than 200 jobs for Warm Springs tribal members, far below the estimated 1,000 needed to stabilize the job market and create a healthy economy on the reservation.

To address this problem, the Warm Springs Community Action Team seeks to develop a small business incubator that will serve as an anchor for small business in the Warm Springs downtown area.

The Small Business Incubator project will be the first effort in decades designed to improve the small business environment for community members in Warm Springs.

This project will address a community need for places and spaces where community members can meet, and where social and economic relations may be intertwined.

The Summer Youth work program includes trips to Willamette Falls and Sherars Bridge for eeling. The students collect the eels from the falls, and then learn the techniques of drying and preparation. Summer Youth with Prevention, and the Emergency Management Department made a trip this month to Willamette Falls and Sherars Bridge. Students in the Social Dance Group went along as well. They cleaned for two days, and tried their hand at night eeling.

Youth football camp

The Madras High School football program will host a youth football camp for all students, kindergarten through eighth grade. The camp, from July 31-August 2, will be hosted by the high school coaches, and high school players. They'll cover fundamental skills and basic knowledge of the game, as well as fun games. At the end of each evening there will be a barbecue, so bring the family. There is a charge of just $30 per student. Camps will be each day from 5:30-7 p.m. Dress in shorts and t-shirt, and cleats. Fuels management with fire is essential to forest health

by Bob Sjolund
*Fuels Planner – Fuels Division
Warm Springs Fire Management*

It may be suggested across the nation that fire and hazardous fuels management on tribal forestlands is misguided. The suggestion may be that management offers an approach based on road closures, defensible space, replacing combustible roofs and limiting the spread of non-native grasses and “sprawl” in areas prone to wildfire. Critics proclaim this approach is not fully informed by sound science, citing historical documents from land surveys done in the mid 1800s.

We all agree that the top priority for fire management is the protection of lives and property.

We also support defensible space around homes, agree that fire has a positive ecological role in natural forests, and share their concern for the potential invasion of non-native vegetation.

However, we know that forest thinning and the reduction of hazardous fuels do indeed address forest health.

Surviving fires

Those of us who spend time in the forests have probably noticed fire-burned trees, charred logs, and charcoal.

Evidence of previous fires is observed in virtually every forest stand in Indian country.

Prior to settlement and before there were barriers to fire such as roads and farmland, fires would burn across the landscape, sculpting the forest with every pass.

We know many trees survived dozens of fires. In fact, by repeatedly thinning stands and reducing competition for the established trees, it was fire that created the possibility for trees to survive and grow.

History shows

Research conducted into the history and frequency of fires reveals that nearly every old-growth forest stand on the reservation has experienced multiple fires, and many older stands survived six or more fires each century.

Because of these frequent fires, trees became large enough and accumulated bark thick enough to survive low-intensity fires, leading to park-like stands that were not nearly as novel as claimed by past experts.

With fires excluded, forests continue to grow, becoming denser and accumulating fuel. This dynamic has been the subject of many studies, including a recent study, which measured a 10-fold increase in forest density since the 1800s.

... Uncharacteristically high tree density, coupled with a huge increase in homes, creates an environment where high-intensity fires are not desirable for the forests and not compatible with current management objectives.

Fire intensity

Similar numbers have been documented across the neighboring forests that border the reservation on the north, south and west.

Practically all the increases are a consequence of fire exclusion over the past century.

Fire intensity effects on forests and tree mortality are likely the most studied concept in the field of fire ecology.

There are more than 30 models in use today that incorporate real data on potential weather, topography, fuels, structure, moisture and quantity of available fuel.

They all agree that more fuel leads to more extreme fires, which mean greater tree mortality regardless of size or age.

Tribal land managers recognize the ecological role of fire.

Prescribed burns, thinning

The Warm Springs Fire Management department has the experience to combat wildland fires for the safety of the reservation. Because Indian country is primarily used for everyday living and cultural needs, the objective for all fire starts is full suppression Fire management agencies have robust prescribed fire and thinning programs that treat thousands of acres each year, and Warm Springs Fire Management is a leader in this field.

The typical burn or thinning project may not take place directly adjacent to developments.

They are designed to strategically treat areas that will allow for the protection of all tribal properties should a large fire become established during the long, hot and sometimes windy days of summer.

Fuel specialists and ecologists believe the pre-settlement forests were “a patchwork of densely grown areas intermixed with oak woodlands and scrublands.”

They advocate that management is not necessary because high-intensity fires are natural and beneficial to the forests. There is no doubt that under the right conditions and in the right fuel types, high-intensity fires did occur.

However, we now have a completely different forest than was present in the late 1800s.

Uncharacteristically high tree density coupled with a huge increase in homes creates an environment where high-intensity fires are not desirable for the forests and not compatible with current management objectives.

The Warm Springs Fire Management department is responsible for about 650,000 acres of tribal land, most of which is managed for multiple objectives via the Natural Resources Branch.

For example, watersheds are often managed for wildlife habitat, clean water, recreation, and riparian and stream values while generating both economic and cultural benefits. These objectives are designated by tribal council and the tribal members and implemented through local plans and policies.

Thinning and fuel treatments are designed to promote and protect these values and objectives by reducing the chances of high-intensity fires.

Given the potential for intense fires, the responsibility for the protection of lives and property, the commitment to preserving and enhancing wildlife habitat, and the obligation to manage these lands for multiple objectives, we simply cannot afford to treat fire and fuels on the tribal lands cavalierly. To do so is not in the best interest of the forests or tribal members and their resources.

Community notes...

The Warm Springs Outdoor Market is open this Friday, July 20 from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on campus by Kalama’s Fry Bread.

The Madras Saturday Market is open from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Sahalee Park.

The Warm Springs Boys & Girls Club is having a penny drive through the end of summer. The proceeds will go towards incentives, supplies, a playground and other things for the club. Stop by the Club to donate or contact Club Director June Smith if you have questions.

The Warm Springs Youth Center facility is now shared with the Prevention and Family Preservation programs.

They are located on the South end of the building. To ensure youth safety during Boys & Girls Club program hours, all adults going to the Prevention or Family Preservation offices need to use the south entrance doors off of Wasco Street.

Public notice - Ground Water Rule - Failure to Take Corrective Action Within Required Time Frame

Important notice about your drinking water:

The Warm Springs Community Water System violated a drinking water requirement. Although this incident was not an emergency, as our customers, you have a right to know what happened and what we are doing to correct this situation.

A routine inspection conducted on January 27, 2015 by the US Indian Health Service on behalf of the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) found deficiencies as listed below. We have developed a corrective action plan and anticipate resolving these deficiencies in the next 90 days.

Uncorrected Significant Deficiencies	Corrections to be Made
Source – Deschutes River: Improper turbidimeter calibration	Needed part ordered and installed. Sampling pumps to be repaired. Provide maintenance records of quarterly calibration.
Treatment – Treatment: Improper instrumentation or process controls	Repair streaming monitor. Provide maintenance records that operators are regularly verifying coagulant doses through jar tests or charge analyzer.
Distribution – Distribution: Improper contact time before first customer.	Provide maintenance records that sludge has been removed from sedimentation basin.
Treatment – Treatment: Sedimentation basis needs settled solids removed.	Provide maintenance records that settled solids have been removed.
Finished storage – Finished storage: Corrosion on tank vent stack welded area in need of repair.	Trees to be removed from tank foundation, tank to be inspected to determine if corrosion penetrates through the tank and repair if needed.
Treatment – Treatment: Septic system has failed and surfacing wastewater is flowing toward backwash basins and river.	Repair or replace septic tank and determine if the drain field is still failing with runoff in close proximity to the backwash reclamation basin.
Treatment – Treatment: River intake air scour system inoperative.	COMPLETE – air scour has been replaced.

As required by EPA’s Ground Water Rule, we were required to take action to correct these deficiencies. However, we failed to take this action by the deadline established by EPA.

What should I do?

· There is nothing you need to do. You do not need to boil your water or take other corrective actions. However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor.

· If you have a severely compromised immune system, have an infant, are pregnant, or are elderly, you may be at increased risk and should seek advice from your health care providers about drinking this water. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA’s Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

What does this mean?

This is not an emergency. If it had been, you would have been notified within 24 hours.

For more information, please contact Travis Wells, Branch of Public Utilities General Manager, at 541-553-3246 or:

travis.wells@wstribes.org. This notice is being sent to you by the Warm Springs Public Water System. State Water System ID#: 104101247. Date distributed: July 9, 2018.

Prevention youth explain tobacco law

by Perseus E. Bradley, Silas W. Howtopat Jr, Khayree Smith
Warm Springs Prevention
Summer Youth Interns

Governor Kate Brown in 2017 signed Senate Bill 754 into law. Under this law, you have to be 21 or older to buy tobacco products in Oregon.

The enforcement of this law began on January 1, 2018 and it applies all throughout the State of Oregon.

Some steps prior to January 1, 2018, before this law took effect have been related to the following:

- Talk to employees and customers regarding tobacco products.
- Train employees on educating customers about tobacco products.

- Support smoking employees in various ways.

The law, at least with the two retail outlets that were checked with here on the Warm Springs Indian Reservation—the Shell Station and Warm Springs Market—requires that a person be 21 years of age in order to purchase tobacco products. And these businesses will card you if they suspect that you are underage.

Some people in Warm Springs may object to following this state law, because the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs is a federally recognized tribe. The Confederated Tribes signed an agreement, nation to nation with the United States government in 1855, four years prior to Oregon became an official state. People may feel like we do not need to follow the state law here since we are a sovereign nation.

Tobacco 21 protects Warm Springs residents and tribal members, in addition to other non-Native American Oregonians, from to various health issues related to tobacco product use and second-hand smoke.

Bottom line: You can't buy tobacco products until you are 21.

A resource number, if you want to quit smoking, is 1-800-784-8669.
