Proposed changes to enrollment requirements

Referendum in February 2019

A tribal referendum set for February 15, 2019 will ask tribal members to vote on changes to the how blood quantum is determined for the purposes of automatic enrollment.

Specifically, the referendum will ask: "Should Resolution 12,157 determining the blood quantum for the purpose of automatic enrollment be approved?"

In April 2016, the Twenty-Sixth Tribal Council adopted Resolution 12,157, changing the rules for determining blood quantum for automatic enrollment.

The change would be the addition of the 1980 census to the list of baseline census years for determining the Confederated Tribes blood quantum.

Sinnasho District Tribal Council representatives invoked Article VI of the Constitution and By-Laws to call for a tribal referendum on the resolution.

The Twenty-Seventh Tribal Council approved a referendum date seeking input from the membership on the proposed change.

Warm Springs Enrollment Ordinance 94 outlines the requirements for automatic enrollment and adoption.

Currently, an individual is eligible for automatic enrollment if they have at least one-quarter of Confederated Tribes blood; that is, Warm Springs, Wasco, or Paiute.

Resolution No. 10,934, passed in September 2008, allows individuals to also consider blood quantum from neighboring tribes based upon valid traditional kinship and ancestral ties that can be documented and confirmed as traceable to legitimate treaty and pre-treaty family affiliation connected to the Warm Springs (Sahaptin or Ichiskin); Wasco (Chinookan or Kiksh); or Paiute (Shoshonean or Numu).

Adoption enrollment

Individuals who do not meet the automatic one-quarter blood quantum requirement may get enrolled through the adoption process.

To be eligible for adoption, individuals must have one-eighth blood quantum of Indian blood, descend from a current or former tribal member, meet the residency requirement, not be enrolled in another tribe, and receive the majority of the vote in an adoption referendum.

Recent tribal adoption referendums have failed for not meeting the required 50-percent voter participation requirement. This includes the June 13, 2016 referendum—987 votes of the required 1,600 votes—and the May 15-16, 2007 referendum.

The last adoption referendum to meet the 50-percent requirement occurred on October 16, 1996.

Report outlines water options

Testing shows the Warm Springs domestic water is perfectly safe to drink. That is the good news.

On the other hand, the tribes are facing critical and expensive issues regarding the future of the Warm Springs domestic water system.

The Dry Creek Water Treatment Plant must be expanded and improved, or replaced entirely by a new plant, according to a recent study.

Meanwhile the water distribution lines are leaking, most clearly shown by the many small wetland areas in neighborhoods and around the community. There are likely many more leaks that are not immediately visible.

As a result of leakage and over-use, the Warm Springs system consumes relatively much too much water.

An investment of $16-to-$22 million would provide a water system serving the community for decades to come, said Alyssa Macy, chief operations officer.

There is no longer a choice as to whether or not to make this investment. "We're really beyond the point of no return," said tribal Utilities' Chico Holiday.

Tribal Council, management and Utilities have been working toward a solution, the challenge and goal being the necessary funding.

This week the tribal committees met with management, Utilities, and commission officers and engineers with the Indian Health Services.

The tribes are working with IHS, and other federal agencies such as the EPA and HUD, on finding a solution to the problem.

Community meetings will happen over the coming months and years as the tribes develop and implement a long-term solution.

The joint tribal committee meeting this week was called to review a newly published engineering report on the existing water treatment plant, and options to consider for the future. IHS commissioned the report, produced by Century West Engineering based in Coeur d'Alene.

An initial evaluation was the identification of the potential sources of domestic water for the Warm Springs community.

Groundwater is not an option, as this could not come close to meeting the demand, the report says.

The report also looks at the possibility of using either Shitike Creek or the Warm Springs River as a new source of domestic water.

Both of these options, though, have significant drawbacks. In time the demand would require removing a large percentage of the flow from the Warm Springs River, and especially from Shitike Creek.

Costs of building these new treatment plants would also be prohibitive.

Peewee bareback rider earns spot at Finals

Siddalee Spino-Suppah has been riding bucking ponies bareback for two years now.

She had a hectic start to her young rodeo career, at first trying sheep riding. She did that maybe twice, then switched to calf riding—winning her first event in 2016.

Next, Siddalee went right into riding mini-broncs bareback and steers, competing in the Northwest Youth Rodeo Association.

So when it comes to Junior Rodeo, Siddalee has seen and done it all, with one goal in mind: To win a buckle for Mini-Buckers.

That goal had gone unachieved but not forgotten—until Friday, August 3 at the Yuba-Sutter County Fair in Yuba City, California.

At the Yuba-Sutter Rodeo, Siddalee overcame the odds, riding against six boys, all competing for a chance at the Junior National Finals Rodeo.

Siddalee not only successfully won the West Coast Regional Finals for Peewee Bareback, she achieved her dream, earning a spot to compete in the Junior National Finals Rodeo, ranking with the top peewee bareback riders across the country.

However, that was not her initial goal: At first she just wanted the chance for her three siblings and herself to see and experience new things and places. And this will surely happen at the National Finals in Las Vegas.

Her aunt Paleena Spino explains how it's all come about:

"The paperwork for the Junior Rodeo Association for Siddalee was just something we thought we'd try out, when she attended Wild West Buckers Saddle Bronc and Bareback clinic in Yuba City, just to see just how far she could make it."

"She's ended up earning herself a spot in the Junior NFR," Paleena says. "This is an accomplishment in itself, with so many youngsters gunning for the same opportunities."

Siddalee's family is now preparing for her trip to Las Vegas for the Junior Finals in December. They will be holding fundraising events and sales in the near future, so Siddalee can represent the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs in the 2018 Junior National Finals Rodeo. All of your support will be greatly appreciated!

River lawsuit dismissed against tribes, PGE

A federal judge this month has ruled in favor of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and Portland General Electric, in a lawsuit alleging violations of clean water regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge Michael H. Simon ruled that undisputed evidence showed that the tribes' and PGE's Pelton Round Butte hydroelectric project is operating consistently with conditions of its water quality certificate from the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality.

The specific legal action by Judge Simon was to dismiss a motion for partial summary judgement from the plaintiff Deschutes River Alliance, while granting motions by the tribes and PGE.

With that action, the judge dismissed the lawsuit.

The tribes and PGE are co-owners and operators of the Pelton-Round Butte system, including the selective water intake tower designed to facilitate fish passage above and below the dams.

"Salmon and steelhead runs on the Deschutes are at the heart of our culture. They're a basic necessity for us to continue our traditional way of life," said Robert Brunoe, the tribes' Branch of Natural Resources general manager, after hearing the judge's ruling.

"We understand the heartfelt concerns of the lawsuit's supporters," Mr. Brunoe said.

New phase for W.S. Chamber of Commerce

There is a great need for more small businesses on the reservation: A recent study found the local small businesses provide fewer than 200 jobs. That is far below the 1,000 small business jobs that would make a stable and healthy local economy.

Small business development is a focus at the Warm Springs Community Action Team. A noteworthy milestone at the WSCAT: The Warm Springs Area Chamber of Commerce is now an official non-profit organization serving the tribal business community.

The non-profit 501(c)3 designation is essential for many areas fundraising. In getting started, goals of the Chamber are to have an executive director, and an office building probably on campus, said Dustin Seyler, Community Action Team small business coach and financial counselor.

The Chamber office would serve as a one-stop service center for business people, Mr. Seyler said. This would be for existing and potential businesses, and for people who are visiting the reservation. The Chamber will also serve as the advocate of business interests among its members.

The Warm Springs Area Chamber of Commerce is unique in that it is the only Chamber in the U.S. located on a reservation.

While the Chamber just received its non-profit status, the idea of a Warm Springs Area Chamber goes back some years.

Achievement Award for health care advocate

For some years now, Janice Clements has been a great advocate of tribal health care.

She speaks on behalf of Confederated Tribes health care interests, and those of other direct service tribes in the Northwest area.

“She can be counted on when a strong voice is needed on an issue, or for her stories and sense of humor, which can have you in stitches. Those who know her would agree that she is a thoughtful powerhouse.”

That is from the Outstanding Achievement Award from the Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee.

Mrs. Clements received the award at the Advisory Committee annual meeting this summer at St. Paul, Minnesota.

“The award honors her tireless commitment over many years of service as an advocate on health care issues.”

Janice has serviced for many years as chairwoman of the Confederated Tribes’

Health and Welfare Committee. With Cassie Katchia, she has been a member of the Advisory Committee since its creation in 2005.

The Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee advises the Indian Health Service director on the development of health policy.

The committee participates in IHS decision-making that affects the delivery of health care.

And the committee offers advocacy and policy guidance by regularly providing recommendations to the agency.

The Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee is comprised of elected and appointed tribal leaders from ten IHS areas with direct service tribes. Technical assistance for the committee is provided by IHS headquarters and area-level staff.

Ryan Smith takes the oath of office at the office of the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission. Administering the oath were CRITFC vice-chair Jeremy Red Star Wolf (right), and commission secretary Leland Bill.

Ryan Smith of Warm Springs took the oath of office of the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission, becoming the forty-first CRITFC chairman.

Smith assumed the chairmanship from Casey Mitchell, of the Nez Perce. The chairmanship rotates annually between the four CRITFC member tribes.

Mr. Smith works at the Branch of Natural Resources, and is on the Confederated Tribes’ Fish and Wildlife Committee.

The CRITFC officer oath reads as follows:

I do solemnly swear that I will perform with fidelity the duties of the office to which I have been called to serve, and which I am about to assume.

I do solemnly swear to faithfully support the Constitution of the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission and the sovereignty of each of its member tribes: the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Tribes and Bands of the Yakama Nation, the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, and the Nez Perce Tribe. I will constantly strive to honor the trust that these tribes have placed upon me.

I will, to the best of my ability, strive to ensure a unified tribal voice in the management of Columbia River fishery resources and to protect each tribe’s reserved treaty right to fish, that their members may exercise this fundamental right in all usual and accustomed places now and in perpetuity.

Artist honoring her ancestors

Lillian Pitt creates contemporary art that is rooted in the Wasco, Warm Springs and Yakama traditions of the Columbia River. With each work of glass, metal, jewelry or public art, she honors her ancestors.

Lillian brings the same notion to Confluence: Her belief is that students today must have the opportunity to do hands-on art projects that connect them to an inclusive understanding of the Columbia River, a story that begins with Indigenous voices.

This is why Confluence created the Lillian Pitt Education Fund, to honor this amazing artist’s ongoing legacy to define the Columbia River ecosystem first and foremost as a Native place.

Lillian is the artist behind key features of the Confluence Land Bridge in Vancouver.

She’s also a featured speaker at our 10 year anniversary celebration of the Land Bridge, along with Maya Lin’s Bird Blind.

This will be the Tenth Anniversary of the Land Bridge and the Bird Blind. The celebration will be in September at the Evergreen in Portland. The evening will also feature the architect Johnpaul Jones; plus a performance the Hawtmiima Family Dancers.

Visit the Confluence website for information. The contact is Sarah Mackenzie Longiro.

Also noteworthy: Lillian, artist in residence at the Museum of Contemporary Native Arts, will be the speaker at the museum’s Brown Bag It artist talk. The museum is located in Santa Fe.

Chamber: Area includes the reservation and the Ceded Lands

In the 1990s the tribes’ Small Business Center organized an early version of the Chamber.

The organizers created the charter in 2003, said Gerald Danzuka, who helped with the project at the time. This Chamber was active for a number of years, up until about a decade ago, Mr. Danzuka said.

The new Warm Springs Area Chamber of Commerce has a board of directors, and a charter, based largely on the original one. The charter defines the ‘area’ of the Warm Springs Area Chamber of Commerce:

“The Warm Springs area shall mean and include the communities within the boundaries of the Warm Springs Indian Reservation, including those lands referred to as ceded in the treaty of Wasco, Columbia River, Oregon Territory with the Taih, Wyam, Tenino and Dock-Spus Bands of the Walla Walla, and the Dales, Ki-Gal-Twal-La, and the Dog River Bands of Wasco of 1855.”

The Charter says: “The Chamber is organized to promote the progress, growth, well-being and improvement of the business, professional and civic community in the Warm Springs area.”

The board meets the once a month at the Community Action Team office. The board members are Dustin Seyler, Shawnetta Yahtin, Amanda Smith, Yvette Leecy, Scott Kalama, Anthony Anderson and Brutus Bacz. For information on the Warm Springs Area Chamber of Commerce, stop by the Community Action Team office on campus; or call 541-553-3148.

“Yet we also understand that a lot of factors influence conditions on the river. We believe strongly that collaborative, science-based decision-making remains the best way we can help the fish, and we’re continuing this approach, working with our many partners in the basin. Together with PGE, we welcome good-faith participation from those who want to join in this effort.”

Lisa Kaner, PGE vice president, general counsel and corporate compliance officer, commented:

“Judge Simon’s decision reflects the complex work we’re doing to restore salmon and steelhead runs and improve water quality at Pelton Round Butte and throughout the Deschutes River Basin.

“His objective evaluation confirms we’re on the right track as we work with our regulators to fulfill the requirements of our water quality certificates.”

Water

The report indicates the site of the existing Dry Creek water plant appears to be preferred.

Before any final decisions happen, the community will be engaged and fully informed, Ms. Macy said.

The engineering report gives background on the tribes’ current water system serving the Warm Springs area:

The Dry Creek Water Treatment Plant was built in 1980, using the standard design for the treatment of surface water. The plant replaced the earlier system that relied on Shitike Creek for the water source.

The Dry Creek plant “continues to produce quality drinking water on a consistent basis,” the report says.

“A review of treatment records indicates the plant is operating within design capacity, and meeting treatment requirements.”

Nevertheless: “As the treatment plant approaches 40 years of service operation, many of the components are nearing the end of their service life.

“As more components continue to age, the frequency of breakdown, and the cost of repair will rapidly increase. Major improvements to the treatment plant, or total replacement will be needed to replace the aging infrastructure.”

Either option—improvement and expansion, or total replacement—will happen in stages.

Preliminary steps will be needed in order to reach the point of successful financing.

An issue that will need to be discussed is some form of a water user fee, likely requiring the installation of water meters.

This can be a necessary component of qualifying for certain kinds of funding, Ms. Macy said.

River notes...

Dioxin at The Dalles

The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission and its four member tribes are calling on the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality to launch a "comprehensive investigation" into dioxin contamination at a Union Pacific-owned Superfund site in The Dalles.

CRITFC spokesman Chuck Hudson says DEQ should renew its dioxin investigation at the site, even though three decades have passed since the search ended.

"We strongly urge DEQ to conduct further investigation," Mr. Hudson said. "Given the broad area, both on land and river bottom, known to be impacted by the decades of contamination a comprehensive investigation is needed."

The public has reason to be concerned about the extent of dioxin contamination at the site: Widespread dioxin contamination has been found at similar railroad tie treatment sites in many other states.

At least some of these sites have been contaminated with the most dangerous type of dioxin. TCDD, an impurity found in the Vietnam-era defoliant Agent Orange, is about 2500 times more carcinogenic than hexavalent chromium, the highly toxic compound made infamous by the movie Erin Brockovich, according to the EPA.

Drugs and fish

Potent drugs found in West Coast sewage threaten chinook salmon, a study reveals.

An expert in environmental contaminants who has linked flushes of treated sewage into Washington state estuaries to higher juvenile chinook salmon death rates suspects human drugs found in fish put them at risk.

James Meador of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said he believes pharmaceuticals found in the contaminated water—such as amphetamines and antidepressants—are in part to blame.

Back to school at Academy next week

by Sue Matters, KWSO

It's almost back to school time at the Warm Springs Academy and here's some information families should check out.

Kindergarten families should have received letters for conferences with teachers, coming up this Friday, August 17 and Monday August 20.

If you haven't received a letter, your child might not be registered for school.

The office opens this Wednesday August 15. You can reach them at 541-553-1128. If needed, you can come in to register and pick up your kindergarten conference letter.

If you are wondering about the long school supply list (below), know that many supplies will be provided to Warm Springs Academy classrooms again this year.

Families may want to wait to do back to school supply shopping until after the first week of school, to find out what items are still needed from your teacher or teachers.

If you do shop, you can't go wrong with a backpack, pencils, pens and paper. And remember—It's great to have some supplies at home as well as in the classroom.

First- through eighth-grade students start back at the Warm Springs Academy on Monday August, 20. It's a late start Monday so school starts at 9:45 a.m. Rise & Shine kids can come at 8 a.m.

Kindergarten students start at the Warm Springs Academy on Tuesday, August 21.

On regular school days kids should arrive at school by 8:05 a.m., pick up breakfast and go to classrooms for an 8:15 a.m. start time. Breakfast closes at 8:25.

From Monday, August 27 through Friday, August 31 there is no school for a teacher in-service week.

The Back to School Barbecue and Family Information Fair is Thursday, August 30 at the Academy. This is an opportunity for school staff, students, families and the community to share some time together. The meal is free.

The Family Information Fair will be in the cafeteria and gym. If you visit all the booths, you will be entered into a raffle drawing. It's a great opportunity to learn about community resources, offer feedback., learn new things, make new connections, and have some fun.

There is no school on Monday, September 3 because it's Labor Day.

Tune into KWSO weekday mornings just after 7 a.m. for the latest Academy information on KWSO Eagle News.

Enrollments: planned well in advance

Tribal Council added the baseline census year concept for automatic enrollment purposes in 1975.

Adding the census baseline meant that all applicants for enrollment would have blood quantum determined by examining the parent/grandparent whose name appears on the 1940 census.

For those on the 1940 census list, all of their Indian blood would be considered Confederated Tribes blood for the purposes of enrollment.

Tribal Council later added the 1960 baseline for enrollment purposes in 2008.

For example, consider the child of a biological tribal member parent born in 1958 who was one-quarter Warm Springs, one-quarter Navajo, one-quarter Choctaw and one-quarter white, and whose name appears on the 1960 census.

Using only the 1940 census as the baseline, the child would only be one-eighth Confederated Tribes blood, and would not eligible for automatic enrollment.

However, using the 1960 census as the baseline, the tribal member parent has a total of three-quarters Indian blood, all of which would be considered Confederated Tribes blood.

Thus, the child could be automatically enrolled as having one-quarter or more Confederated Tribes blood.

The February 2019 referendum asks tribal voters to add the 1980 census to the list of baseline census years for determining the Confederated Tribes blood quantum.

The Twenty-Seventh Tribal Council approved the referendum well in advance of the February 15, 2019 date to ensure that Vital Stats has enough time to have voters update registration information and to mail out and receive ballots.

Additional information will be provided in the coming weeks to assist Tribal members with making an informed vote.

Overview of tribal enrollment changes

April 2016: Resolution 12,157 provided policy clarification of amended Article III, Section 2(a) of the Constitution as follows:

“In determining the quantum of blood of the Confederated Tribes for application for enrollment, all the Indian blood of enrollees of the Confederated Tribes as show on the census roll of the 1940, 1960, or 1980 shall be included as the blood of the Confederated Tribes.” Simnasho District representatives invoked Article VI of the Constitution and By-Laws to call for a tribal referendum on the resolution.

September 2008: Resolution 10,934 provided for an expanded interpretation of Article III, Sections 1 and 2, specifically, “shall be interpreted to include the lawful and valid membership blood quantum from a member or former member of the Ichiskin (Sahaptin or Warm Springs), Kiksht (Chinook or Wasco) and/or Numu (Shoshonean or Pauite): People wherein a close ancestral affiliation can be documented and confirmed by formal Tribal Council action.”

September 2008: Resolution 10,933 provided policy clarification of amended Article III, Section 2(a) of the Constitution as follows: “In determining the quantum of blood of the Confederated Tribes of an application for enrollment, all Indian blood of enrollees of the Confederated Tribes as show on the census roll of 1940 or 1960 shall be included as blood of the Confederated Tribes.”

January 1975: Resolution 4,301 provided policy clarification of amended Article III, Section 2(a) of the Constitution as follows:
