Siddalee Spino-Suppah has won riding bucking ponies bareback for two years now. She had a hard start to her young rodeo career, at first trying to compete in bareback riding. She did that maybe twice, then switched to calf riding—winning her first back in 2016. Next, Siddalee went right into Mini Buckers and done it all, with one goal in mind—to see just how far she could go. In the Mini-Buckers.

That goal had gone unsatisfied and unresolved—until Friday, August 3 at the Yuba-Sutter County Fair in Yuba City. At the Yuba-Sutter Rodeo, Siddalee overcame the odds, riding against on boys, accomplishing something for a chance at the Junior National Finals Rodeo.

Siddalee’s success can be attributed to the non-profit 501(c)3 designation of the Warm Springs Area Chamber of Commerce. The chamber is the only unique chamber in the U.S. located on a reservation. The Warm Springs Area Chamber goes back some 27 years and serves the Warm Springs community.

The Warm Springs Area Chamber was the only chamber in the country to support the Junior National Finals Rodeo. They will be holding fundraising events and sales in the near future, so Siddalee can represent the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs in the 2018 Junior National Finals Rodeo. If you can support it, you will greatly appreciate it.

New phase for W.S. Chamber of Commerce

A federal judge this month has ruled in favor of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and Portland General Electric, in a lawsuit alleging violations of clean water regulations. U.S. District Court Judge Michael H. Simon ruled that undisputed evidence showed that the tribes and PGE’s Pelon Round Butte hydroelectric project is operating consistently and that the proposed entity is not a threat to the Warm Springs River, and other federal agencies such as the EPA and HUD, on finding a solution to the problem.

The tribes are working with IHS, the Dry Creek Water Treatment Plant must be expanded and improved, or replaced entirely by a new plant, according to a recent study. Meanwhile the water distribution lines need to be replaced from the few small wetland areas in neighborhoods and downtown Warm Springs community. There is likely many more leaks that are not immediately visible. As a result of leakage and over-use, the Warm Springs water consume relatively much too much water. An investment of $16-to-$22 million would provide a water system serving the community for decades to come, said Alyssa Macy, chief compliance officer. There is no longer a choice as to whether or not to make this investment.

Community meetings will happen soon to inform the public as the tribes develop and implement a long-term solution.

The third committee meeting this week was called to review a new proposal for a water treatment plant on the existing water treatment plant, and options to consider for the future. HS announced the results of the feasibility study, presented by Centrally West Expedition and StrategicVision.

An initial evaluation was the identification of the potential sources of domestic water for the Warm Springs community.

Commissioners not an option, as this could not come close to meeting the demand, the report says. The report does state the possibility of using either Shinkle Creek or the Warm Springs River as a new source.

Both of these options, however, have significant drawbacks. In this case the demand would require removal of a large percentage of the flow from the Warm Springs River, and especially from Shinkle Creek.

Costs of building these new treat- ment plants would also be enormous.

Test-showing the Warm Springs domestic water is perfectly safe to drink. That is the good news. On the other hand, the tribes are facing critical and expensive issues regarding the warm Springs domestic water system. The Dry Creek Water Treatment Plant must be expanded and improved, or replaced entirely by a new plant, according to a recent study.
Achievement Award for health care advocate

For some years now, James Clements has been a great advocate of tribal health care.

She spoke on behalf of Confederated Tribes health enterprises, and those of other direct service tribes in the Northwest area.

"She can be counted on when a strong voice is needed on an issue, or for her stories and sense of humor, which can ease you in stitches. Those who know her would agree that she is a thoughtful powerhouse."

That is from the Outstanding Achievement Award from the Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee:

Mrs. Clements received the award at the Advisory Committee annual meeting this summer at St. Paul, Minnesota.

"The award honors her tireless commitment over many years of service as an advocate on health care issues."

James has served for many years as chairwoman of the Confederated Tribes Health and Welfare Committee. With Connie Katchia, she has been a member of the Advisory Committee since its creation in 2005.

The Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee advises the Indian Health Service director on the development of health policy.

The committee participates in IHS decision-making that affects the delivery of health care.

And the committee offers advocacy and policy guidance by regularly providing recommendations to the agency.

The Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee is comprised of elected and appointed tribal leaders from the IHS areas with direct service tribes. Technical assistance for the committee is provided by the IHS headquarters and area-level staff.

This summer at the annual meeting of the Direct Service Tribes Advisory Committee: Janice Clements, Warm Springs Health and Welfare Committee chairwoman; Rear Admiral Michael Weahkee, acting director of the Indian Health Service; and Cassie Katchia, Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Joint Venture Representative.

Dioxin at The Dalles
The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission and its four member tribes are calling on the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality to launch a “comprehensive investigation” into dioxin contamination at a Union Pacific-owned Superfund site in The Dalles.

CRITFC spokesman Chuck Hudson says DEQ should renew its dioxin investigation at the site, even though three decades have passed since the search ended.

“We strongly urge DEQ to complete further investigation,” Mr. Hudson said. “Given the broad area, both on land and river bottom, known to be impacted by the decades of contamination a comprehensive investigation is needed.”

This public has reason to be concerned about the extent of dioxin contamination at the site. Widespread dioxin contamination has been found at similar railroad treatment sites in many other states.

At least some of these sites have been contaminated with the most dangerous type of dioxin, TCDD, an impurity found in the Vietnam-era defoliant Agent Orange, is about 2500 times more carcinogenic than hexavalent chromium, the highly toxic compound made infamous by the movie Erin Brockovich, according to the EPA.
