Mandatory minimum sentencing proposal

Prevention and treatment are on the front line in the battle against illegal drugs and alcohol on the reservation. With prevention and treatment the tribes also enforce drug and alcohol laws on the tribal land.

The tribes' Justice Team has a draft resolution requiring mandatory minimum sentencing for drug violations of tribal criminal code. Another aspect of the resolution would be exclusion from the reservation of any non-member found in violation of the tribal drug code.

The Justice Team last week held the first public meeting on the proposed resolution. The initial response from the public is in favor of the proposal, said Corey Clements, Justice Team member and deputy prosecutor at the Tribal Court.

In fact, community member response has prompted the Justice Team to increase the initially proposed mandatory minimum sentences. Regarding drug violations on the reservation, a paragraph in the original draft reads:

"Tribal Council amends the (tribal criminal code) provision to include a mandatory minimum sentence of incarceration for offenders convicted of this provision to carry a) minimum 30 day sentence on first conviction; b) minimum 60 day sentence for second; and c) third and subsequent to have a minimum 90 day or more sentence..."

After the first public meeting on the proposal, Ms. Clements said, the Justice Team is suggesting doubling the minimum sentences from 30, 60 and 90 days to 60, 90 and 120 days.

The Justice Team—representing departments of the Public Safety Branch, tribal court, Health and Human Services, Housing, IHS, elected leaders, management and other community members—will meet again this month to go over the changes to draft resolution.

The team will then meet again in January with the community members on the revised proposal.

The Justice Team first began working on the mandatory minimum sentencing resolution at the direction of Tribal Council. Various factors were involved in the Council decision.

Tribal Council nominations

Nominations are coming up for candidates in the spring 2019 Tribal Council election.

Wasco Chief J.R. Smith announced the evening of Wednesday, December 12 for the Agency District nominations.

The meeting will start with dinner at 6 p.m., nominations at 7 at the Agency Longhouse.

The Simnasho and Seekseequa district meetings will also be soon. Specific dates were not yet known at press time for this publication.

Listen to KWSO 91.9 FM for updates. The nominations will be for the Twenty-Eighth Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs.

Ballot mailing planned for baseline referendum

A tribal referendum is set for February of next year, asking tribal members to vote on a change to the how blood quantum is determined for the purposes of automatic enrollment.

Ballots will be going out soon, though a specific date is not yet known. Lynn Davis, tribal Administrative Services director, was an integral part of the tribal election balloting process. Her passing in November has meant that others are working diligently to replace Ms. Davis' invaluable service during tribal elections.

The February referendum will ask specifically: 'Should Resolution 12,157 determining the blood quantum for the purpose of automatic enrollment be approved?'

In April 2016, the Twenty-Sixth Tribal Council adopted Resolution 12,157, changing the rules for determining blood quantum for automatic enrollment.

The change would be the addition of the 1980 census to the list of baseline census years for determining the Confederated Tribes blood quantum.

Warm Springs Enrollment Ordinance 94 outlines the requirements for automatic enrollment and adoption.

Currently, an individual is eligible for automatic enrollment if they have at least one-quarter of Confederated Tribes blood; that is, Warm Springs, Wasco, or Paiute.

Individuals who do not meet the automatic one-quarter blood quantum requirement may get enrolled through the adoption process.

Over the decades, the baseline for determination of blood quantum has been adjusted to 1940 and 1960, with the 2019 referendum suggesting a new baseline of 1980.

Beaded wonder at show

These images are from the beautiful and amazingly detailed beaded vest by artist Barbara Starr. The vest—it truly must be seen in person to be believed—won the Judges Choice Traditional Award at the 2018 Tribal Member Art Show at the Museum at Warm Springs.

The museum will host the Grand Opening of the 2018 show at 5:30 p.m. this Thursday evening, December 6.

CP Enterprise pursuing new strategy

The Warm Springs Cannabis Project team—CP Enterprise—met with tribal members last week regarding a new proposal for a cannabis growing and extraction project. Community response to the presentations was very positive, said Laurie Danzuka, of CP Enterprise and Warm Springs Ventures.

Ventures was scheduled to present the plan and community response at Tribal Council this Tuesday afternoon, December 4 (after print time for this publication).

CP Enterprise and Ventures were seeking a resolution of support from Tribal Council. Funding for the project—suggested location is tribes' Schoenhagen property—would then be provided through the Carbon Sequestration program, also a Ventures-Tribal Council endeavor.

The new proposal is scaled-down from the earlier proposal, and does not involve high-THC recreational cannabis, at least not during this first phase. Instead, the focus is on a CBD hemp product, most often used medicinally.

This product is expected to become regulated as a more standard agricultural crop early next year. This would relieve the strict regulation of the high THC recreation cannabis. Shipment across state lines, for instance, would be allowed for CBD hemp product.

Factors that led to the change in approach included the difficulty of finding an outside partner that did not make unreasonable demands—a significant part of revenue, for instance—the tribes would not approve. More recently, the saturation of the recreational cannabis market makes the previous proposal untenable.

Ms. Danzuka and CP Enterprise gave a summary overview of the new proposal. As stated in the overview:

"Due to changes in the market, the project has been downsized to a small start-up."

Behavioral Health advocate joins Development Council

The Youth Development Council support the state's education system by developing state policy, and administering funding to community and school-based youth development programs, services and initiatives.

The goal of the Council is to support educational success, and career and workforce development with a focus on positive youth development.

The newest member of the Oregon Youth Development Council is Andy Leonard, of Warm Springs Behavioral Health.

Mr. Leonard is the ado-

Andy Leonard

lescent after-care specialist, certified recovery mentor, and prevention support specialist at Behavioral Health.

He has been with the department for nine years.

Because of its mission, the Youth Development Council truly requires a Native youth advocate among the membership. This became clear earlier this year at a Prevention meeting of the Nine Oregon Tribes.

Mr. Leonard then submitted his application, and was soon asked to join the Council. He took the oath of office November, and his first meeting with the Council will be later this month.

The Oregon Legislature created the Youth Development Council in 2012-13.

The Council's mandate:

To help youth who face barriers to education and the workforce get back on the path to high school graduation, college and a career.

The Council ensures implementation of best practices that are evidence based.

These practices are to be culturally, gender and age appropriate; address individual risk factors, and build upon factors that improve the health and well-being of children and youth.

Tribal best practices are a specific factor. Mr. Leonard's appointment to the Council is a great step toward achieving this mandate.

The geology around Kah-Nee-Ta may support a moderate sized geothermal energy plant.

Warm Springs Power and Water Enterprises for the past few years has successfully pursued two grants that have confirmed this assessment. The grants—through Department of Interior energy exploration programs—have been substantial:

The first in 2014 was for $340,000, and was used for an initial study of surface features of the area to determine the likelihood of finding a geothermal source.

The second grant last year was for $760,000 to drill test wells to better research the potential sites.

The results show that an area near near Kah-Nee-Ta could be suitable for a geothermal energy plant of 3 to 5 megawatts, said Jim Manion, Power and Water general manager.

There was discussion last year of using the energy to power the resort, bringing a significant savings on electricity.

Mr. Manion last week updated Tribal Council on the project. He was seeking approval to pursue a third Department of Interior grant to develop a more detailed assessment of the geothermal potential. Council approved the request, asking for updates every couple of months.

CP Enterprises: New approach as market is changing

Dave McMechan/Spilyay

Ventures and CP Enterprise hosted input meetings last week at the Greeley Heights community building.

“Phase 1 will include the construction of a greenhouse, a 10-acre outdoor (hemp) grow area, and purchase of an extraction machine.” Some other points in the summary:

The goal is to develop a 100-percent tribally owned, operated and regulated tribal cannabis cultivation and extraction facility for medical and hemp product.

The proposal says that 10 percent of net profits would be dedicated to tribal member public health, safety and welfare.

Site development: The project will consist of one 2,160 square-foot greenhouse, a storage container for drying and packaging, a storage container for extraction services, and a modular office space.

What does the change from recreational to hemp production mean? The licensing requirements are not as strict. There are no special banking requirements. Growing hemp is less labor intensive. Security requirements are reduced. Regulation is reduced.

The tribes have their own regulatory body, the Cannabis Commission, that would provide the oversight. Employment: Four full-time positions, plus six seasonal.

Water pipeline project delayed

The Dog River—a clear water tributary of the East Ford Hood River—is within the Ceded Lands of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs.

A few years ago the tribes' Natural Resources Branch re-introduced spring chinook salmon into the Dog River. Maintaining a healthy river—with adequate in-stream flow—is a priority of the tribes.

The Dog River also is a source of domestic water for The Dalles. The Dalles has proposed the construction of a pipeline to replace the current delivery system. The current system is a ditch, a century old, made of wood and leaking.

The proposed new system—on Forest Service land within the Ceded territory—would conserve water. The Confederated Tribes have commented that water saved from leakage should be maintained in-stream, as provided in state law, restoring some flow to the Dog River.

The Dalles applied for $1 million grant to construct the pipeline. The state last month delayed the funding, setting a final decision for 2019.

Meeting proposed on KNT

Tribal leaders have suggested a community meeting soon on the future of Kah-Nee-Ta Resort.

The tribes have received three proposals from outside investor-partners. Details of the proposals are subject to confidentiality agreements, common business practice under the circumstances.

Kah-Nee-Ta shut down in early September, with the loss of many local jobs. And there is an ongoing cost of keeping the resort secure and maintained during its closure.

Sentencing: factors leading to the policy

As an example: The Agency Longhouse was found to be contaminated with methamphetamine residue. Decontamination was very expensive. Other departments, and the Housing Authority in particular, contend with meth contamination of buildings.

This led to the formation of the Meth and Opioid Task Force. From the task force, Council requested data regarding the incidence of drug use in criminal cases at Tribal Court.

The conclusion is that an overwhelming number of crimes on the reservation involve illegal drugs or alcohol.

Council then requested a proposal regarding sentencing for drug cases, prompting the work by the Justice Team on the mandatory sentencing guidelines.

This would be similar to the provisions that currently exist for cases of DUII on the reservation, adopted five years ago.

The draft resolution includes a summary of how the mandatory sentencing proposal came about:

“Whereas Tribal Council has already taken active efforts to promote more positive prevention and intervention for health, safety and stability for all drug related issues, specifically methamphetamine on the reservation...

“Whereas Tribal Council identified the need to better support the membership and community through housing, healthcare, reduction of substance abuse and improvement of public and community safety...

“Whereas on April 8, 2018 Tribal Council by motion approved funding to clean up and abate damages to the Agency Longhouse related to methamphetamine contaminations, and....

“Whereas Tribal Council has already implemented mandatory sentencing for offenders who commit violations of... Driving Under the Influence of Intoxicants, and...

“Whereas Tribal Council has identified that all controlled substances defined (in the Tribal Code) are believed to a current and ongoing issue that poses a threat to the health, safety, sustainability and future of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, its members, structures, resources and assets....”

The Council directs the development of mandatory minimum sentencing for illegal drug violations on the reservation.

2019 Pageants together

The Miss Warm Springs Pageant and the Lil’ Miss Warm Springs Pageant will be held together in 2019.

The pageants will be in March. Candidates who are interested in running for Miss Warm Springs 2019 should have their application in by February 15.

You can download the application online at: warmsprings-nsn.gov/program/miss-warm-springs/

Younger candidates interested in the Lil’ Miss Pageant can stop by the Community Center and talk with Norene. Or call her at 541-553-3243. Norene can also help if you have questions about the Miss Warm Springs Pageant.

Having the two pageants together will have many benefits to both programs, and the candidates, said Alyssa Macy, Chief Operations Officer.

The Lil’ Miss girls will become more familiar with the Miss Warm Springs program. This will help increase interest and the number of potential candidates for Miss Warm Springs, Ms. Macy said.

These are some of the guidelines for Miss Warm Springs:

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 24, or reach the age of 18 before the Pageant. Applicants cannot have been married or cohabitated, or have dependents. The candidate must be alcohol and drug free throughout the duration of her reign.

Candidates must be enrolled members, and residents of the reservation at least one continuous year before participating.

Regarding residency, there are arrangements that can be made for candidates who are attending school away from the reservation.

Car Light Parade & more for holidays

The Christmas Light Parade—the theme this holiday is The Mickey & Friends Car Light Parade—will brighten the evening this Thursday, December 6. Line-up begins around 4 p.m. in front of the former elementary school. The judges will tour the parade entries starting at 5, and the procession begins at 6.

The parade will make its way over to the Community Center for a family evening of Christmas joy. The evening is hosted by Recreation and the Health and Human Services Branch.

The Mickey & Friends Car Light Parade is the start of many holiday events around the reservation. Here are some more of them:

Taking smoke detector sign-ups

These are the simple Christmas safety tips from Warm Springs Fire and Safety, Warm Springs Fire Management and Warm Springs Red Cross:

Fire and Safety recommend that you keep your live Christmas tree filled with water to prevent your tree from drying out and catching fire.

Check your Christmas lights for possible exposed wires: This can short out and start a fire. Replace them.

Keep all your doors closed in the inside of your house, so if a fire does break out the fire has no where to go.

Fire Management suggests that you keep the area around the home clean of bushes, trees, twigs—anything that can catch fire.

Both agencies recommend that you keep your chimney cleaned out, because debris from burning wood such as sap can build up on the inside of your chimney, thus causing a fire.

Red Cross is currently taking smoke detector sign-ups to install detectors, if your home does not have any, or if the ones in your home are 10 years or older.

There are smoke detectors for the hard of hearing and blind persons, once the person is given a test to see if he or she qualifies for a special smoke detector. These are free to the person who needs a special detector.

Vincent Simtustus and Bend Red Cross have already installed over 570 units in Warm Springs. This is about 34 percent of Warm Springs homes. Thank you Vincent and Jack from Bend Red Cross for making a difference to our Warm Springs Community.

Taking sign-ups now, our target date to install detectors is December 15, between 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. This is a one-day only service.

If you would like to sign up, please call 541-553-4955; or if you see Vincent or Mushy, ask to be placed on the list for a smoke detector.

So have a safe and Merry Christmas, and let us try to make your home a little safer with a smoke detector in your home. Thank You.

Students plan exciting adventure to Tomi City, Japan

Next summer, four students from Madras High School will make a grand journey to the town of Tomi, population about 29,000, located in central Japan.

Kiandra Smith of Warm Springs is a senior at the high school, and will join three classmates—Kimberly Juarez, Katherine Parodi and Elan Rios of Madras—for this rare experience.

The chaperone on the trip will be Andrew Smiley, language arts teacher at the Warm Springs Academy middle school.

The June 2019 trip will mark the third year that Madras High School students will visit Tomi, the Sister City of Madras. In turn, students from Tomi visit Madras, as a cultural exchange and learning adventure.

Mr. Smiley joined the Sister City exchange program two years ago, and the trip in June will be his first time visiting Tomi.

The student exchange opportunity is open to juniors and seniors at the high school. Last year two students from Warm Springs made the trip to Tomi.

The June 2019 visit will happen during the Yunomaru Highland Azalea Festival at Tomi. The town in the winter is a ski resort.

In June the ski lift is used as transport to the highland area, which features a volcano crater lake, an excellent view of Mt. Fuji, and the azaleas.

Clearly, the students will have a learning and memorable experience; and toward this goal, for the rest of the school year, the students will be hosting fundraising events to help pay for the their trip.

Meanwhile, the Madras

Sister City group will be looking for more students to make the Tomi, Japan trip in the summer of 2020. You can learn more about the program at their Madras Sister City Facebook page. Or talk with Mr. Smiley. You can reach him at 541-460-0186. Or his email is: asmiley@509j.net

Higher Education

All students can start applying for 2019-20 FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) now with your 2017 tax return. Contact Carroll Dick at Higher Education, 541-553-3311, if you have any questions or need any assistance.

Apply now through March 1 to earn more grants for school. Tribal scholarship recipients are required to apply for at least five other scholarships in addition to the FAFSA. Higher Education has a list you may qualify for.

For veterans

A Jefferson County Veterans Service Outreach officer is in Warm Springs at the Warm Springs Senior Center on the third Tuesday of each month. In December the Outreach officer will be in Warm Springs on Tuesday, December 18.

Appointments are available for the morning by calling 541-475-5228. Otherwise, the Veteran’s Service Officer will be available to answer questions during and after the senior meal that day.

Homefront

Operation Homefront provides veteran and active duty military families with stocking stuffers for military children.

There is a stocking stuffer event on Monday December 24 at the Madras Senior Center at noon.

Advocate

A Jefferson County Victims Assistance advocate comes to Warm Springs on the third Wednesday of every month at the Victims of Crime Services office located at 1108 Wasco Street.

Folks can get help with things like case assistance, paperwork, and other resources. Appointments can also be made for other times. For information call Ken Clark at 541-475-4452 or VOCS 553-2293.

Many Warm Springs youth have participated in and completed YouthBuild, with great and lasting success.

Members in our program divide their time between classroom, the field—home construction sites—and leadership development.

Through AmeriCorps service at YouthBuild the youth can earn the AmeriCorps Segal Education Award worth $1,566 towards post-secondary goals.

There is a 12-month commitment to the program, followed by a year of follow-up services.

We will be hosting information sessions starting on December 11 at Bridges High School in Madras. Later sessions in January will be at our Cloverdale location; and on January 10 at Heart of Oregon’s new Prineville Facility.

Mental Toughness—YouthBuild orientation—begins January 21. If you know of any youth who may be interested, and have not been successful in a traditional high school setting, please encourage them to attend.

You must attend one of the information sessions to be considered for the YouthBuild Program.

Please bring a government issued photo ID, birth certificate, and Social Security card to the information session.

For information contact Katie Bauer, program assistant, by replying to this email or call 541-526-1380 to sign up for one of the following information sessions:

• Tuesday, December 11, 10:30-11:30 a.m., Bridges High School, Madras.

• YouthBuild program, Tuesday, January 8, 5-6:30 p.m., 68797 George Cyrus Road, Sisters.

• Thursday, January 10, 5-6:30 p.m., Prineville.

• Tuesday, January 15, 5-6:30 p.m., YouthBuild in Sisters.

Healing the Orphan’s Heart at Ride Out the Storm

Pastor Titus Upham shared Healing the Orphan’s Heart—a message of hope, healing and restoration—at the Ride Out the recent Storm conference.

Warm Springs Behavioral Health—through the Health And Promotion Prevention Initiative—hosted the conference last week at the Community Center.

Pastor Upham is Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor, with a degree in Social Work and Human Services. He traveled to the Ride Out the Storm conference from his home in Browning, Montana.

The Pastor shared these key passages from Healing the Orphan’s Heart:

There is a spiritual orphanage amongst the People. We search to fill that void in our lives, through alcohol, drugs, relationships, money, gambling, shopping and eating.

In our places of worship we teach our People how to be members, but not how to be children of a Loving Father.

Native American hearts are hardened, because of the way the Gospel was presented to them.

Titus has been assigned to re-present the Gospel to Native Americans, because it was presented wrong. He says:

I see orphans in the eyes of our People, especially those locked up.

We feel abandoned, rejected, discarded, no Indian Name, hurt, abused and divorced. We don’t belong anywhere. We have become disconnected.

Titus shared the refrigerator story:

If your electricity gets shut off and your food is not removed from the refrigerator, it will spoil and stink. You can clean the refrigerator out, and throw all the stink food out.

At the conference Patsor Titus Upham shares the message Healing the Orphan’s Heart.

But if you put more fresh food in the refrigerator and it’s not connected to a power source, the fresh food will go bad, no matter how much you cleaned it out, it will go bad. You have to connect the refrigerator to a power source.

This is the same for us: We cannot keep going to treatment, counseling, shopping, etc., and expect our lives to be good, if we are not connected to a power source.

We don’t know the pain others are enduring until we have walked the same path. Connecting spiritually is important to someone who has a history of addiction. We need to help each other find this connection to truly heal.

We need to demonstrate the true love of our Father to the many orphans, and this can be done through each of us. Many reservations, including Warm Springs, have suffered multiple deaths. In a close knit community, one death can affect the whole community.

Sarah Frank, from Behavioral Health, shared this story on the beginning Ride Out the Storm conference:

In 2004 I attended a funeral for an Elder. I heard a lady share her story, and then sang the song Ride Out the Storm.

A vision came to me to have the Ride Out the Storm conference. I didn’t know how to coordinate a conference, so I ignored the vision.

Through the years I kept being prompted to do this conference. Then on October 17 I knew it was time to have the conference. Doors opened, I met Pastor Upham, and he agreed to come to Warm Springs.

I met with Living Hope Pastor Brigham Brown, who with his board’s support agreed to financially support this event.

Through the planning of the event, my father passed away, so the storm became real and became a part of the birth of this conference.

Other presenters who shared were Kenny Scabby Robe—previous leader of Blacklodge, a well-known Drum Group—and Pastor Leah Smartlowit of the Yakama Reservation. Also: Eanestine Ennick of Tulalip, and local Elder Viola Governor.

Titus Upham, Kenny and Louise Scabby Robe, and Pastor Leah also went into the tribal jail on December 1 to share with four separate groups.

We thank the many participants and supporters of this event: Warm Springs Police Department and Corrections, the Living Hope Christian Center, Warm Springs Meth and Opiate Work Group, the Hurtado Family, Edna Tufti family, the Warm Springs Baptist Church, Easton Aguilar, Ralph Aguilar, Warm Springs Recreation, and the Warm Springs Jail Ministry Group.

In 1975, Billy Graham gave a speech to Native American Leaders: “You are the sleeping giant, the original Americans. You are now awakening. Just around the corner, you may become a spiritual super power in this country that could change not only America, but the world.”

The Ride Out the Storm conference was a first-time event, and definitely a learning process.

We hope to have other events similar to this, and I would appreciate feedback from all participants with hopes of planning future successful events!

— Sarah J. Frank

Tribes, university collaborating on tribal higher education

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and the University of Idaho have signed an agreement to collaborate on improved education opportunities for Native American Students.

Tribal Council met in November with university representatives and, after discussion, the parties agreed to work together on the program.

The agreement calls for the tribes to advise the university and President Chuck Staben on educational and service issues aimed at bolstering university-tribal relations. The university has similar agreements with other tribes in the region.

“This latest agreement will build upon the university’s strong relationship with the region’s tribal nations, and will help promote collaborations among Native students, tribes and the university,” said Yolanda Bisbee, the school’s chief diversity officer and executive director of tribal relations.

“We look forward to working with the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs Reservation to further promote these efforts.”

The university first entered into a tribal agreement in 2007, starting with the Coeur d’Alene Tribe. Other tribes to agree are the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation, the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, the Kalispel Tribe of Indians, the Kootenai Tribe of Idaho, the Nez Perce Tribe, the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes, the Shoshone-Paiute Tribes of the Duck Valley Indian Reservation and the Spokane Tribe of Indians. The Confederated Tribes and Bands of the Yakama Nation became the tenth signatory in 2015, and the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs are now the eleventh tribe.

As outlined in the agreement, the university president’s Native American Advisory Council meets twice a year to discuss issues related to Indian education, economic development, natural resources and other areas of interest to the tribes.

Fish platform decision draws opposition

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs—and other treaty tribes of the region—oppose a state decision regarding a fishing platform at Willamette Falls.

The Yakama Nation and Confederated Tribes of Umatilla join Warm Springs in opposing the state approval of the Grand Ronde fishing platform at the falls.

The Grand Ronde have no treaty fishing rights. Yet, “Every time they gain back some sort of recognition—like getting permission from the state for this platform—it creates a reality that they have certain rights,” said Louie Pitt, Warm Springs’ director of Governmental Affairs.

Earlier this fall Oregon Department of State Lands director Vicki Walker approved the Grand Ronde plan to build the scaffold, made of metal and concrete.

The state gave the approval without consultation with the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. In a letter to the state, Warm Springs tribal attorney John Ogan wrote:

“The Warm Springs Tribes are extremely disappointed by the conduct of the state for their inexplicable departure from government-to-government consultation procedures.”

After the treaty tribes voiced their opposition, the state reconsidered the decision; and then in late November re-affirmed the approval.

A native perspective on climate change

Jeremy FiveCrows, a spokesman for the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission, remembers fishermen pulling sockeye from the Columbia River—fish that were infested with a strange white fungus.

As he walked the banks of the river in 2015 near Celilo, the banks were choked with dead sockeye. “We would see whole schools congregating in cold-water refuge areas,” Mr. FiveCrows said. “But they were trapped there.”

It’s not just the fish, either. First foods—vital resources the tribes of the Pacific Northwest have relied upon for centuries—have been changing as well. Root harvests come earlier. The elevations at which huckleberries grow has been climbing.

“We’ve been witnessing climate change effects a lot longer than most people have been aware,” Jeremy says. “Being so connected to the land, it’s made us much more aware of the changes that have been invisible to a lot of people.”

Indigenous knowledge systems can play a role in advancing understanding of climate change, and in developing more comprehensive climate adaptation strategies. This knowledge is valuable in part because a focus is on understanding relationships of interdependency, relying on multi-generational knowledge of ecosystem phenology—the study of cyclic and seasonal natural phenomena—and ecological shifts.

Indigenous adaptation planning, including considerations of issues such as flooding and water rights, benefits from a greater focus on participatory planning in natural resource management.

This planning incorporates local knowledge and values from conception through implementation in ways that ensure the protection of indigenous knowledges, and indigenous peoples’ rights not to share sensitive information. In this way, traditional ways of knowing are contributing to sustainable land management practices under changing environmental conditions.

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, through the Natural Resources Branch, has completed many Report critical of federal prosecution rate

In 2017 the U.S. Department of Justice declined to prosecute more than a third of cases referred to them in Indian Country.

A recent report reveals that U.S. attorneys’ offices left 37 percent of referred cases from Indian Country unprosecuted in 2017.

Federal crime data has long suggested that Indian reservations have higher rates of violent crime than the national average, especially when it comes to violence against women.

Of the cases that went unprosecuted, over a quarter were allegations of sexual assault against children and adults.

Tribal housing at river going forward

The tribal housing project at the Columbia River has resumed.

The decision by the federal government comes after more than a year of delay.

The obligation to build the housing dates back more than 80 years, when tribal housing was flooded by dams on the Columbia.

The Oregon and Washington Congressional delegation sponsored the bill that would provide the funding for the housing. This was done with support from the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Yakama Nation, Umatilla and Nez Perce.

The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission has been another advocate.

With the funding in place, the Corps of Engineers can plan the housing construction. At that point funding would be needed for the actual construction.

Meanwhile, a separate bill is proposed that would fix the existing 31 fishing sites on the Columbia. The sites are maintained and operated by the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission, which took on the task because no one else was doing it. The fish commission largely focuses on salmon restoration and managing tribal fishing on the Columbia River.

The money to maintain the sites is quickly running out because it was created with estimates that undercounted how many people would use the sites.

The Columbia River In-Lieu and Treaty Fishing Access Sites Improvement Act would allow the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs to evaluate what improvements are needed at the sites and how much money it would take to bring them up to a safe, sanitary standard.

The bill has already passed out of the Senate and is with the House, awaiting a vote. From there, it would go to President Trump for approval.

Native woman missing in Wash. after going to casino two months ago

Rosenda Strong, a member of the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, has been missing for almost two months in Washington state.

Strong, a 31-year-old mother of four, went to the Legends Casino on the Yakama Nation on October 2. She hasn’t been seen by family since.

“Bring her home! That’s all anybody ever wants,” Roxanne White, an advocate for missing and murdered Native women and girls, said at a prayer walk and vigil for Strong on the reservation.

A new law in Washington requires the state to identify Native women who have gone missing. A report is due June 1, 2019, in hopes of addressing what advocates have called an epidemic.

A Year in Review ~ 2018 ~

January

The year began with the crowning of Miss Warm Springs 2018 Thyreicia Simtustus.

The Miss Warm Springs Pageant was a part of Thyreicia’s busy schedule. She goes to college in Bend two days a week, studying to become a professional helicopter pilot, and was working in Prineville on the other weekdays.

The tribal royalty part of her new position—skill at horseback riding, for instance—will be familiar to Reicia: She was the 2017 Miss Lincoln’s Birthday Powwow Queen, and the 2014 Miss Pi-Ume-Sha Princess.

Thyreicia is a 2017 graduate of Madras High School. Thyreicia now goes to Central Oregon Community College, where she studies in the COCC Aviation program, focusing on commercial helicopter piloting.

Thyreicia became the Forty-Second Miss Warm Springs. As an ambassador of the Confederated Tribes, she represents Warm Springs at powwows and other community events. In other news from January 2018:

The New Year saw job fairs hosted by the Plateau Travel Plaza and Indian Head Casino. Jobs are available at the casino, and soon will be open at the Travel Plaza, set to begin in early spring. Elsewhere this month:

The school district 509-J is engaging Warm Springs families in developing Impact Aid Indian Policies and Procedures. The district conducted a survey about the draft policies and procedures. Results were shared in early January with the Warm Springs community. And this:

Tribal Council began the year with enterprise updates—including the latest on Kah-Nee-Ta Resort. Elsewhere:

One of the memorable activities at the Winter Prevention Camp was the building of a natural fire, using only sticks and a bow strung with parachute chord. From Warm Springs, Silas Howtopat was able to get the fire going.

“You have to have a positive mind set and a good heart to accomplish that,” said Scott Kalama at Prevention.

A remote camera set up in the forest and monitored by the tribal Branch of Natural Resources shows two wolves on the Warm Springs Reservation.

This is the first time multiple wolves have been confirmed in the northern portion of the Oregon Cascade Mountains, since the animals returned in the late 2000s. Confirmation of multiple wolves together is significant.

There have been many reported sightings over the years of single wolves in the region. A single wolf traveling alone could indicate the animal is moving through the area, looking for a more permanent territory.

More than one wolf—a pair or pack—could indicate the animals are living in the region more permanently, and possibly breeding.

Seals and sea lions ‘out of control’

For the first time in decades, a small-scale seal hunt is taking place on Canada’s West Coast—all in the hopes that it leads to the establishment of a commercial industry to help control booming seal and sea lion populations and protect the region’s fish stocks.

In early November, a group called the Pacific Balance Pinnipeds Society started using First Nations hunting rights as part of a plan to harvest 30 seals.

The society plans to test the meat and blubber to see if it’s fit for human consumption and other uses.

“We can look at opening up harvesting and starting a new industry,” said Tom Sewid, the society’s director, member of the Kwak-waka’wakw group of Indigenous peoples, and a commercial fisherman. “Since the [West Coast] seal cull ended in the 1970s, the population has exploded.”
