Miss Warm Springs 2019 Charisse Heath

Charisse Heath gave a demonstration of skills—one of them rare and potentially life-saving, the other lighter and more familiar—at the recent Miss Warm Springs Pageant.

She first demonstrated her skill in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, a life-saving technique she learned at school. She followed this with the more familiar Native youth skill of basketball, which Charisse excelled at in high school.

At the Pageant last week she also gave a talk on traditional foods, and food preservation techniques. Charisse is the 2019 Miss Warm Springs.

A graduate of Yakama Nation Tribal School in Toppenish, she now attends Yakima Valley Community College.

She first became interested in being Miss Warm Springs some years ago. “When I was younger we would go to the powwows, like Lincoln’s Powwow,” Charisse says. “And I always looked up to the powwow royalty.”

Her friend Thyreicia Simtustus, 2018 Miss Warm Springs, suggested Charisse give this year’s Pageant a try. And the judges agreed that she would make a great 2019 Miss Warm Springs.

Members choose new Council

In choosing the Twenty-Eighth Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes, the membership elected an almost wholly new Council.

Six new Council members will join two members who were re-elected, plus the three Chiefs who serve for life.

The turnover on the new Tribal Council is the biggest among at least the past several recent Council elections.

This week the Tribal Council and Election Board are finalizing the overall final tally. This will process will not effect the outcome in terms of who was elected.

Swearing-in of the new Council is planned for the first Monday in May. These are the members of the Twenty-Eighth Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes:

Agency District: Anita Jackson, Glendon Smith and Lola Sohapp.

Simnasho District: Captain Moody, Lincoln Jay Suppah and Raymond Tsumpti.

Seekseequa District: Brigette McConville and Wilson Wewa.

First Chamber business conference

The Warm Springs Area Chamber of Commerce will host its Inaugural Business Conference on Saturday, May 4 at the Warm Springs Community Center. Topics for discussion will be:

Small businesses on the reservation; business success; and resources available for business success on the reservation. The conference begins at 8:30 a.m.

For more information contact Dustin Seyler at the Warm Springs Community Action Team, where he is the small business coach and financial counselor, 541-553-3148.

In another item with Community Action Team, the Tananawit community of Warm Springs artists will host their membership kick-off event on Thursday, April 18 at the Museum at Warm Springs. Dinner will be at 5 p.m.

The evening will include a silent auction, vendors, artists recipients awards ceremony, and guest speaker to be announced. Call the Action Team for information.

No flood damage

Consecutive days of rain early this week caused some worry about flooding on the reservation. Rivers and creeks were running high, but there were no reports of serious damage.

During a peak river time this week, Power and Water Enterprises reported the Deschutes River flowing at 9,750 cubic feet per second. For comparison: The flood of 1996 saw 19,000 cubic feet per second at the re-regulating dam.

Plan forms for new water plant

The tribes have made recent improvements to the domestic water treatment plant, located in Dry Canyon on the Deschutes River.

These significant improvements have allowed the tribes to continue to provide the safe drinking water that currently serves the membership.

The improvements—a cooperative effort of Council and management, Utilities and federal agencies—were designed to prolong the life of the treatment plant. The long-term solution for the growing community, though, will be a new treatment plant.

The process to answer some initial questions about the new plant began in 2017, said Alyssa Macy, Chief Operations Officer.

Ms. Macy, tribal Utilities manager Travis Wells, and Mathew Martison and Derek Hancey of the Indian Health Services reported this month to Tribal Council.

The new plant will cost at least $30 million, Macy said. There are outside funding sources—IHS, HUD and the BIA, for instance—but the tribes will share in some of the costs. And once the new plant is online the Utilities Branch would need a budget to reflect the added responsibility.

Steve Courtney knows the water plant as well as anyone, as he has worked there since it opened.

Utilities has seen a mostly flat budget of $2.2 million for many years, Macy said. This in itself has led to some problems associated with deferred maintenance, ultimately costing more to address, she said.

According to the timeline, construction of the new plant would begin in 2022, and come online the following year. In the meantime will be the work on funding, planning and design. “So the time frame is short,” Macy said.

After their report, the project team asked Tribal Council for action on some preliminary questions. For instance, Council approved the recommendation that the new plant use the Deschutes River for the water source. This was the viable option of several that were looked at.

Other decisions: The new plant will be located next to the existing one; and will use the best available technology in order to provide the membership and businesses with “safe and pleasing water.”

Book examines legacy of Cascade Locks project

A new book—Power in the Telling by Brook Colley—examines the story of the Warm Springs Tribes, inter-tribal relations, and the effort to build a casino on Ceded Land at Cascade Locks.

The author is now the assistant professor of Native American studies at Southern Oregon University. Brook spent several years researching and writing Power in the Telling. She is known to many on the reservation, as she interviewed many members for the book. Her heritage is Wasco/Eastern Cherokee, enrolled in the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.

Since its publication, Power in the Telling, published by the University of Washington Press, has been well reviewed. The opening sentences set the stage for the narrative that follows:

This story begins with a place. The Cascade Falls is a geographic location in the Columbia River where it flows westward between present-day Oregon and Washington states, in an area known as the Columbia River Gorge. It was identified in two treaties negotiated in the 1850s between the United States and Native peoples who would afterward become the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde and the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. The section of the river that contains the Cascade Falls, sometimes called the Cascade Rapids, runs alongside the present-day city of Cascade Locks, located approximately halfway between Portland and the city of The Dalles, accessible from Interstate 84. It was here, in Cascade Locks, that the Warm Springs tribe proposed to build a casino, the Bridge of the Gods Columbia River Resort Casino, in a bid that would extend for fifteen years....

Yakima Valley student government president

Jaren Wallulatum is in his junior year at Yakima Valley Community College. Working on a double major in Public Policy and Economics, Jaren is serving as president of the Student Government for the college Yakima Campus.

He grew up in Warm Springs, and graduated with the Madras High School Class of 2014. After high school Jaren first went to technical school, studying the mechanics of Diesel Engines.

Working in tribal government, and advancing tribal higher education are among his long-term goals. The retention rate among Native students, and transition to higher education—making the transition easier for the student—are key points of interest.

At Yakima Valley last

year Jaren got involved with the student diversity center, and served as a student ambassador. He then ran a successful campaign for president of the Yakima Campus student government.

His experience since high school has given him a great insight into how to succeed at higher education. A first rule to keep in mind, he says, “Is find something you’re passionate about.”

Follow your passion and things can fall into place. “It’s kind of like learning to swim,” Jaren says. “You have to go at your own pace. And don’t be afraid to ask questions along the way, and find the help you need.”

Getting started, he said, working with Carroll Dick at tribal Higher Education was a great help. “She was always proactive in helping with things like funding and scholarships.”

Jaren is one of six kids. His mother is Josie Wallulatum. “I’m thankful to my brothers and my mother, and everyone else who has helped lead me in the right direction.”

You can purchase a copy of Birding Without Borders at the Warm Springs Library, or the Jefferson County Library.

Jail services

We as inmates are reaching out for leadership from our community, to bring forth Washut Services, Shaker meetings, Traditional meals once a week, a food handlers class, AA and NA meetings.

We’ve been requesting this to the corrections lieutenant, and it’s all been approved. His response has been that it is going to take the community to reach out and work out a schedule.

These services were provided before, for instance when Washut services were brought in every Sunday, others would come in for AA meetings, and for Traditional meals.

Shalina Charley and friends.

We as inmates are reaching out for services here in the tribal jail. We’ve been approved by Lt. Ron Gregory for religious services to come in. Lt. Ron’s response was, ‘The Community needs to reach out to work out a schedule, and clarify the ones who will be conducting the services.’

We’ve asked and got approved for Washut, Shaker Church, and Traditional meals once a week. And this will take leadership from the community to work with Lt. Gregory to work out a consistent schedule.

We’re asking and reaching out to Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous to come and share their experiences, strength and hope with us. As of now Saturday, Sunday and Mondays are some long days sitting here. We’re asking the tribes to see if they would allow IHS food handler’s class to give us job skills when released. Please and thank you.

Edward Weaselhead III and friends.

Long time ago

Long time ago I was a holy man. We lived in a snow world. We had a snow bridge. My mate came from a rich family from the other side. They had many hides. Holy spirit used me to doctor the sick. One day as I sat at home I heard a loud rumble. Our bridge was going to drop—a change of life is coming. Holy spirit told me to warn the people. My in-laws were preparing for a massive giveaway. I called the people together to warn them, ‘You have to choose a side.’

Nobody wanted to hear. Everyone was preparing for my wife’s family’s giveaway. I sat in my hogan. My mate came in gathering her things. She told me, ‘Husband, I will listen to you all my life. This once I can’t.’

She turned and left. I sat and prayed. After a while I heard a loud roar. Our bridge caved in. Nothing but silence. I lost everyone. I put on my fur. I walked out into the grey mist alone. Cooney nye.

Talks to Spirit on Mountain—Le Roy Bobb.

On keeping a health diary

Keeping a health diary can you can see what foods may have caused your blood sugar to spike, and how exercise may help bring it back down again.

Health logs raise your awareness of the choices you make that impact your weight.

They can help you deter from bad habits like mindless eating in front of the TV and grazing. On the flip side, health diaries can also promote better health habits.

Studies have shown that keeping a daily food diary as part of a diet plan can double a person’s weight loss, as compared to people who don’t log food intake.

That makes logging your meals really pay off.

For those that are more comfortable using their smartphones and apps, there are lots of great apps and trackers that can be used instead of a traditional journal.

This message for Healthy Living is brought to you by the Warm Springs Diabetes Program.

A form of control

(This article is presented in recognition of Sexual Assault Awareness Month.)

Sexual violence can be difficult to talk about. Some people feel uncomfortable when the subject comes up, which—intentionally or not—sends a message to survivors of sexual abuse and sexual assault that they won’t be believed if they come forward.

Sexual assault is any type of sexual activity or contact that you do not consent to.

In an abusive relationship, some partners might sexually assault their partner or force them into unwanted sexual activity as a means of control. This type of violence can be one of the most traumatic forms of relationship abuse.

Across the nation, more than half of Native American women—56 percent—and about one-third of Native men—28 percent—have experienced sexual violence in their lifetime, according to a recent report.

The report also found that Native women—our mothers, grandmothers, daughters and sisters—face nearly two times the risk of sexual violence when compared to non-Hispanic white women.

Sexual abuse in a relationship

There is a strong connection between colonialism and sexual violence.

As Native people, we know any form of violence such as sexual assault and sexual abuse is unnatural and goes against our traditional ways.

Sexual violence was introduced into our communities through colonization, as Native women were often violently targeted, humiliated, degraded and terrorized as a way to undermine the very foundation of Native communities.

As a form of domestic violence, sexual abuse is used to assert power and control in the relationship. The behaviors can range from:

- Calling you degrading sexual names.
- Fondling, grabbing or pinching the sexual parts of your body.
- Constantly pressuring you to have sex when you don’t want to have sex.
- Becoming angry or violent when refused sex.
- Demanding or normalizing demands for sex by saying things like, ‘I need it. I’m a man.”

• Drugging or restricting you to where you are unable to consent to sexual activity.

• Forcing you to have sex or engage in unwanted sexual activity.

• Using weapons or other objects to hurt the sexual parts of your body.

• Records or photographs you in a sexual way without your consent.

• Intentionally tries to pass on a sexually transmitted disease to you.

• Threatening to hurt you or your children if you do not have sex.

• Demanding you to dress in a sexual way.

• Forcing you to watch pornography.

Lasting effects of sexual violence.

Sexual assault can affect your spirit in many ways, including feelings of depression, fear or anxiety, difficulty sleeping, and post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD).

Some survivors may experience flashbacks of the attack or may disassociate from what happened entirely to cope with the trauma.

When there is ongoing sexual abuse in a relationship, trauma and other negative impacts can worsen.

Some survivors may become very sensitive to touch or struggle with intimacy in their relationships.

It’s important to recognize not all survivors will react the same way and often report a range of feelings about the experience.

After a sexual attack, you may feel alone, ashamed or believe you did something to provoke the attack or that you somehow ‘deserved it.’ You may also feel that your community is not a safe place anymore. However, you are never to blame for rape, sexual assault or any form of abuse that happens to you.

Finding hope and healing

Recovering from sexual assault or sexual abuse is a process and one in which you decide every step of the way. There is no timeline for healing; it is entirely up to you.

It is important to know that in the aftermath of sexual assault or abuse, you do not have to face your healing journey alone.

When you are ready, there are people available to help you if you have been sexually assaulted or are being sexually abused by a current or former intimate partner.

Advocates at StrongHearts Native Helpline—1-844-762-8483—can offer emotional support and a connection to culturally-appropriate resources and legal options where available.

It is always anonymous and confidential when you call. You can also find sexual assault service providers here.

While your healing journey may be painful, remember you were born with the inherent strength and courage of your ancestors to survive.

We believe you. We are here for you every step of the way.

Kindergarten Readiness—Social and emotional skills

Research into human brain development is proving that parents truly are their children’s first teachers.

In the first three years of life, children’s brains grow to 90 percent of their eventual adult weight.

Families can help their pre-school children prepare for kindergarten by supporting their Reading, Writing, Language and Math skills at home—but it is also critical to understand the importance of their social and emotional development.

Skills that help children develop relationships, navigate new environments, and participate in learning activities are just as important as the development of academic skills.

To ensure a successful transition to kindergarten, families should understand these expectations and work with your child to practice these skills:

- Getting along with others.
- Understanding that hurting others is not okay.

- Be able to name feelings.
- Ability to take care of self and dress self.
- Use the bathroom independently.
- Be able to watch, listen and participate.
- Stay awake all day without a nap.
- Understand how to wait their turn.

At the Pageant the CPR and basketball demonstrations were no problem for Charisse. Her goal now, she says, is to become a great public speaker, a worthy challenge for anyone with aspirations.

At Yakima Valley, Charisse is studying Business Management, and Creative Technologies.

Over the course of the next year she will also be representing the tribes at powwows, fairs and rodeos, and other gatherings.

She plans to be on hand for the swearing-in of the Twenty-Eighth Tribal Council, and at the Lil' Miss and Junior Miss Warm Springs Pageant, coming up in May.

Charisse has many relatives among the Confederated Tribes, and at Yakama Nation. Her aunt and uncle are Colleen and Anthony Johnson, who she lives with in Washington. Her parents are atwai Christopher Heath Sr. and Irman Wahneetah.

On the centennial the tribes held a pageant to select the Treaty Centennial Queen. Atwai Kathleen Heath was selected in that capacity, and is considered to be the first Miss Warm Springs.

The tradition resumed in 1969. In that year atwai Dorothy “Pebbles” George was selected as Miss Warm Springs. Since then, the pageant has been held annual with few exceptions. To date, 43 women have served as Miss Warm Springs, including the current title holder, Charisse heath.

percent—Indian preference.

Award information: The award will be made to the most well designed proposal, most experienced, best priced and most responsive, responsible bidder using the approved Tribal Contracting process.

Schedule: Sealed proposals due Friday, June 28. Proposal review completed by Friday, July 19.

In the event that only one proposal is received, the Confederated Tribes reserve the right to negotiate with the bidder who turned in the bid. Electronic statements of work will be considered. Photos can be accepted with proposal via email or regular mail.

At the Ft. Hall Classic

The Ft. Hall Classic is among the most popular and long-running basketball tournaments.

And the atmosphere at the tourney is the friendliest, with the whole community offering its welcome.

Some players have been competing in Ft. Hall Classic for decades. So the weekend is also a chance to see old friends, and catch up on family and the latest news from around Indian Country.

This year JT Ball of Warm Springs played for the Cali Cold Ones, who won the championship game, 40-and-over. Cali Cold Ones beat a great team, Iron 5, in the thrilling over-time championship. Delson Suppah of KWSO accomplished the impressive feat of playing the weekend tournament in three different age brackets. The Classic draws up to 150 players from all around of Indian Country.

Native youth day at university

Nix Ma'ycqi/Pa'chway/Kwla'awit, Dv-laa-ha.

That is, Good morning/afternoon/evening and hello.

Warm Springs parents are invited and encouraged to bring students and youth, grades 5-8, to the annual Youth Movement field day at the University of Oregon.

The field day will be on Friday, May 3 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This will be the Seventh Annual Youth Movement field day at the U of O.

The day begins at the Many Nations Longhouse on campus in Eugene; and will end at PK Park, the university baseball stadium.

New this year: The university will provide a limited amount of hotel rooms for those who have to travel far. First preference is for tribes that have to travel 3-plus hours.

Youth Movement

The mission and goal for this event is to bring Native American youth in middle schools together from across the states of Oregon and Washington.

The program strives to celebrate culture, inspire students to further their education, and to make healthy lifestyle choices.

The feeling is that when one generation realizes their potential, future generations are much stronger for it.

The Youth Movement field day strives to enable the seventh generation to realize their potential as athletes, students, and community leaders.

“We want this day to be a celebration of the histories of the Northwest’s Native American tribes, while empowering our youth to build new friendships through sport,” said professor Rebecca Dobkins, curator of Native American Art, and chairwoman of the American Ethnic Studies program, Department of Anthropology.

Executive coordinators are the Nike N7 Youth Movement 2019. You can email for information: uo.youthmovement@gmail.com

Indian Head Casino is a long-time support of the Jefferson County Relay for Life—the community-based fundraising event for the American Cancer Society.

The Relay itself will be in July, but the staff at Indian Head stay active in the effort throughout the year.

They ask, Would you like to take a stance on the fight against Cancer? You can start by volunteering for Jefferson County Relay for Life.

During the Relay, teams camp out at the county fair grounds complex; and at least one team member is on the track at all times—because cancer is a disease that never sleeps.

Most fundraising is done prior to the event, but some teams also hold fundraisers at the event. Teams can include former and current cancer patients, those who

Making it easier to quit smoking

Tobacco use among the Native American people is among the most important—and among the more complicated—health issues in Indian Country. On the one hand, according to the Centers for Disease Control:

American Indians face a higher risk of experiencing tobacco-related disease—due to a higher rate of cigarette smoking and other tobacco use—than any other ethnic group. The diseases include lung cancer, heart disease and diabetes.

On the other hand, from time immemorial some Native groups have used tobacco for ceremonial, religious and medicinal purposes.

The serious health risks to Indian people come from the use of commercial tobacco—cigarettes and smokeless tobacco—rather than the ceremonial and religious use, incidence of which is infrequent to the point of non-addicting.

The health services that are available to tribal members are in regard to the commercial use of tobacco products. Quitting this use is a challenge for all people, Indian and non-Indian.

The good news is that ser-

vices are readily available to tribal members who wish to quit cigarettes or smokeless tobacco, or any other form of commercial nicotine-based addictive substance.

With tribal Health and Human Services Prevention, the Tobacco Prevention Specialist is Farrellyn Bellanger; and at the Indian Health Services Pharmacy the Tobacco Cessation Clinic Manager is Jessie Casberg, Clinical Pharmacist.

Ms. Bellanger in February joined Health and Human Services as Tobacco Prevention Specialist. She works in cooperation with Ms. Casberg.

An initial project Farrellyn is working on is an outreach program with the phone Quit Line, based in

Pharmacy Cessation Clinic

The IHS Pharmacy Tobacco Cessation Clinic offers a variety of options for tribal members who are interested in quitting smoking, or quitting smokeless tobacco.

A person can make an appointment through a referral from a physician, nurse or other care provider; or a person can come in on his or her own. Over the four years that Ms. Casberg has been with the program, many members have made use of the service.

At any given time 25 to 30 patients may be receiving the service. Some people complete a program in six weeks, and some may take six months—it depends on the individual, Jessie said.

A person can use the patch, a pill, or some other kind of cessation aid. The initial consultation to determine the need usually takes 30 to 45 minutes.

The client then checks in regularly, such as every two weeks, to keep the prescription current. The person can check in personally at the clinic, or it can be done by phone to the Pharmacy. The clinic tries to make the Tobacco Cessation service as accessible as possible to the membership. You can reach the clinic at 541-553-1968.

Portland, that is established to work specifically with the Oregon Native American demographic. Making the Quit Line easily accessible to the membership is the goal.

Another and more long-term project will be working with the tribes and the Housing Authority on addressing the use of tobacco in the tribal and HUD housing units.

Tribal Council in recent years has prohibited smoking within 25 feet of the doors and windows of tribal public buildings. Extending some regulation to the tribal and HUD units would be another health benefit, Farrellyn said.

Plan for summer youth work

Health and Human Services, Natural Resources and the tribes are planning for the Warm Springs student summer work program. This is open to high school students and college students of the tribes.

Applications need to be submitted to the Work Experience Development Department at Education Building.

The deadline to apply is May 23. This is for Native students ages 14-24, enrolled in traditional and alternative high school, or college.

College students of any age may apply, and have until June 27. Contact the WEDD office at 541-553-3324 for details.

On Tribal Election Day

Jayson Smith/Spilyay

Rosemary 'Mushy' Alarcon casts her ballot at the Tribal Council Election station.

Tribal Councilman Suppah met recently with Congressman Greg Walden, to discuss federal legislation that would officially nullify the Huntington document of 1865. The Huntington 'treaty'—acknowledged by courts and federal agencies as a fraudulent act committed against the tribes—purports to nullify aspects of the Treaty of 1855, the controlling document in the tribal-U.S. relationship. Federal lawmakers, with support of Gov. Brown, are considering officially repealing the Huntington document.

Killing sea lions boosted steelhead numbers: State

Imperiled Oregon steelhead runs appear to be making a comeback thanks to an Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife program that kills sea lions.

The department says the native fish species was nearly extinct before the agency began killing sea lions. Now, over 2,400 steelhead have migrated past Willamette Falls—the highest count since 2016 and up significantly from 2017, when 822 steelhead were counted.

ODFW writes in a statement: “There has been an unprecedented effort among Northwest states, federal agencies, tribes and private citizens to protect and recover salmon and steelhead...”

“If predation by sea lions at these environmental pinch points is not addressed there is a high risk that these investments will fail and additional fish runs will be extirpated.”

Feds meet tribes at Columbia

Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs Tara Sweeney and Deputy Assistant Secretary Mark Cruz of the Department of the Interior met with leaders from the Columbia River Tribes and the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission late in March.

Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation Director of Communications Chuck Sams says they met to discuss fishing access sites, and ended up going back to Washington, D.C. with an unforgettable taste of Columbia River life.

“Secretary Sweeney said this has been the best tour ever,” Sams said. “She actually got to shoot a shotgun and throw sound bombs out at the sea lions to distract them from our fish passage areas.”

“We really had to talk about the upcoming issues: natural resource protection, salmon production, making sure that we have steady salmon returning, not only just up the big river, but up the tributaries like the Umatilla,” Sams said.

W.S. American Legion Auxiliary invitation to Girls State program

by Warm Springs
American Legion Auxiliary

The American Legion Auxiliary Girls State program—first presented in the late 1930s—is one of the most respected experiential learning programs in the United States. About 16,000 young women participate in weeklong American Legion Auxiliary (ALA) Girls State programs across the nation each summer. Each state’s American Legion Auxiliary manages its own ALA Girls State program, so they may vary in content and method of procedure, but each adheres to the same basic concept: Teaching government from the township to the state level. Using a nonpartisan curriculum, participants assume the roles of government leaders, campaigning as ‘Federalists’ and ‘Nationalists’ to become elected officials in their mock ALA Girls States. During the immersive-learning program, delegates live in ‘cities’ within a dormitory on a college or university campus. The knowledge, memories, and friendships they take home last a lifetime. The American Legion Auxiliary Girls State program develops leadership and pride in American citizens. ALA Girls State educates citizens about our system of government; and instills a greater understanding of American traditions. The program stimulates a desire to maintain democratic governmental processes within our republic. If you are interested in registering your currently enrolled high school junior, contact the American Legion Auxiliary at info@wsala48.org

Roadmap for condor return to Northwest

The California condor—known also as the Thunderbird—is a traditional legendary and mythological bird of Native American communities, especially the Wasco.

The condor was the bird of storms, arriving inland from the ocean. The image of the thunderbird—with its giant wingspan—is featured on pieces of tribal artwork. An example is a cradle board with beadwork at the Museum at Warm Springs.

Condors were common in the Pacific Northwest, including along the Columbia River, until the last century. Pesticides were a main cause of the birds' disappearance.

In 1985 the condor had spiraled down to the brink of extinction, with only 22 birds remaining.

These remaining birds were taken into captivity in a last ditch effort to save the species. That effort paid off. Today, thanks to three decades of dedicated work by a range of partners, 290 condors now fly free in the wild, all in the Desert Southwest and northern Baja Peninsula. Now, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Yurok Tribe of Northern California and National Park Service are taking the next big step in the condor's recovery with a proposal to reintroduce America's largest land bird to parts of the Pacific Northwest.
