Health team earns national recognition

Immunization vaccination is an important part of health promotion and disease prevention.

A vaccine, or immunization, is a way to build up the body's natural immunity to a disease. Especially for young people this helps prevent the contracting and spreading a disease.

The Confederated Tribes' Community Health Nurse team works with the nursing and medical teams of Warm Springs Indian Health Services in assuring that children and adolescents receive scheduled vaccinations.

Recent data by Oregon Immunization Alert—comparing immunization rates in the state—demonstrate the success of this partnership.

Warm Springs Comprehensive Immunization rates for 24-month-old children was 81 percent. This exceeds the Health People 2020 goals. By comparison the Jefferson County rate for this was 71 percent.

For adolescent immunization the Warm Springs rate also exceeded the Health People 2020 goals for all required immunizations.

Eighty-four percent of Warm Springs adolescents had up to date HP (human papillomavirus) vaccinations—a significantly higher rate than the Jefferson County rate of 57 percent.

Meningitis vaccine rates for Warm Springs adolescents was 98 percent in contrast to the 87 percent for all Jefferson County.

Clearly, the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Community Health nurses with the IHS medical and nursing teams are working together to keep children and adolescents healthy.

For this effort, the team has received national recognition, earning the 2019 IHS Area Director's Award—Fostering Relationships. The award presentation will be in June.

The Confederated Tribes Community Health team includes the program manager Katie Russell. The Community Health Nurses: Marc Mason, Sandra Franks, Brenda Howe and Jane Seaders.

The IHS Medical Providers: Dwight Carpen, Thomas Creelman, Raneva Dowty, Rachel Locker and Ruth Willis.

Boarding schools focus of upcoming exhibit

Today, the Chemawa Indian School near Salem is the only Indian boarding school in the Northwest.

An accredited high school, Chemawa is now the oldest continuously operated off-reservation boarding school in the U.S.

In the late Nineteenth century the situation was different.

At that time there were a number of the Indian boarding schools: On the Warm Springs Reservation, at Umatilla, Siletz, Grand Ronde and Yakama, for instance.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs built the Warm Springs Indian Boarding School in 1874.

A typical daily schedule at a boarding school began with an early wake-up call followed by a series of tasks punctuated by the ringing of bells.

Students were required to march from one activity to the next. There were regular inspections and drills, outdoors with platoons organized according to age and rank. Everything happened by bells, 'triangles' they were called.

The Museum at Warm Springs will examine the Indian Boarding School, and Warm Springs schools in particular,

GEE Lindquist Native American Photographs - Columbia University with a new exhibit opening in June.

The exhibit is Resilience: The Boarding School Experience of Warm Springs and beyond. According to the museum literature leading up to the exhibit opening:

Boarding Schools have had lasting impacts good and not so good for many Native American children.

You will see and hear first hand observations from some that have lived the boarding school experience.

Some memories will be heart-felt, poignant, sad, bitter, but most important, it will be the truth, as remembered by the students, now parents and grand parents.

In the decades past, families were not given the choice for their children to attend boarding schools. Over time, it became a choice, tribal high school students are now opting to attend boarding schools, finding positive learning experiences. You will see and hear their memories as well.

You do not want to miss this meaningful, candid account of Boarding Schools, then and now.

The museum will open Resilience on June 27.

Tribal Council hearing organization reports

The Twenty-Eighth Tribal Council has been at work becoming familiar with all of the departments, enterprises and projects of the Confederated Tribes. By the end of May they will have met in chambers with the department, enterprise and project heads.

On the agenda this week, for example, are Natural Resources, Health and Human Services, Education, Public Safety, Development and Tribal Court; gaming, TEERO, and Kah-Nee-Ta.

They met earlier this week with Warm Springs Ventures, the economic development corporation of the Confederated Tribes. Ventures includes Construction, TERO, Geo Visions, Eagle Tech, and projects such as carbon sequestration and cannabis.

Eagle Tech is the unmanned aerial systems project of the tribe, established a few years ago, when the FAA designated the reservation as a UAS, or drone testing area.

This project is taking time, as the FAA has not yet established full regulations for the commercial use, as opposed to hobby use, of drones. It could be a few years before the regulatory system is in place, said Ben Bisland, of Warm Springs Ventures.

Once the rules are established—expected to be extensive—the demand for use of the reservation for testing will be great, Mr. Bisland said.

Laurie Danzuka updated Council on the cannabis project. This will be a non-THC grow and extraction facility at nearby tribal trust property.

The non-THC hemp products, or CBDs, will be much less regulated than recreation marijuana, able to moved across state lines and overseas, Ms. Danzuka said.

An issue is that the USDA has not yet developed the regulations implementing the 2018 federal Farm Bill, which established the CBD products as similar to regular agricultural crops.

This might not happen until 2020, she said. So there is another waiting element in implementing the 2015 tribal cannabis referendum. Until the USDA Farm Bill regulations are approved, a tribal CBD operation at the trust Schoenhagean property would have to follow the more stringent THC-cannabis regulations, Ms. Danzuka said.

Meanwhile, Ventures is minimizing costs associated with the project, while working on opening a bank account for the project. This would allow negotiation toward the financial transaction that would fund the start-up of the CBD project.

The $2 million start-up money for the grow and extraction operation would come from the carbon sequestration revenue, which over time is expected to bring in several million to the tribes.

Court victory in treaty rights case

The U.S. Supreme Court this week handed down a decision respecting and protecting off-reservation treaty reserved hunting rights.

The case, Wyoming vs. Herrera, originated in Wyoming, but the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs were among the several tribes paying close attention to the outcome.

The language of the 1868 treaty in Wyoming vs. Herrera is similar to the Confederated Tribes Treaty of 1855; so the court decision in the case could have precedent for Warm Springs and other Northwest tribes.

Warm Springs and these other tribes in the region filed a legal brief supporting the tribal interest in Wyoming vs. Herrera.

The facts of the case center around the Crow Tribe Treaty of 1868, and the right reserved by the Crow to continue to hunt off-reservation on "unoccupied lands."

The lands that Wyoming claimed were now "occupied" are the Big Horn National Forest adjacent to the Crow reservation. Clayvin Herrera is an enrolled Crow tribal member.

The court held that the hunting rights for the Crow tribe under a 19th Century treaty did not expire when Wyoming became a state. Mr. Herrera faced charges for off-season hunting in Bighorn National Forest in Wyoming. Similarly, the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Treaty of 1855 pre-dates Oregon statehood by four years. So Wyoming vs. Herrera could have set a controlling precedent effecting Warm Springs off-reservation hunting, fishing and gathering rights.

Tribal Council authorized legal counsel to support

Herrera and the Crow tribe in the case.

"We felt it critical to support the Crow Tribe," said tribal attorney John Ogan. A decision in favor of the state of Wyoming, Mr. Ogan said, could have had "terrible potential negative consequences for the Warm Springs off-reservation hunting rights."

Specifically, for instance, the Whitman and Deschutes National Forests could have been deemed as "claimed" and no longer available to tribal member hunters.

In a 5-4 vote, with Trump appointee Gorsuch siding with the "liberal" wing of the Court, the majority ruled that:

Admission of a state into the Union does not imply abrogation of treaty hunting rights; and Congress simply creating a "forest reserve" by establishing a national forest does not render that land "occupied."

The Eighth Annual OSU-Cascade commencement ceremony is coming up at 4 p.m. on Sunday, June 16 at the Les Schwab Amphitheater in Bend.

"Alyssa is a vibrant leader," said OSU-Cascades Vice President Becky Johnson.

"She has experience and qualities that will resonate with today's graduates," Ms. Johnson said. "She's a strong communicator, a convener of people from different backgrounds, and an innovator with skills to adapt in changing environments."

Alyssa is of Wasco, Navajo and Hopi descent, and member of the Confederated Tribes.

She graduated from Madras High School, earned her Bachelor's degree from Arizona State University, and is working on her Master's degree with the University of Minnesota.

She returned to Warm Springs in 2014 following a decade in which she served in communications, governmental affairs, economic development, and advocacy positions for organizations such as the Native Arts and Cultures Foundation, the World Conference on Indigenous Peoples and the International Indian Treaty Council.

Among her achievements, Alyssa was recognized in 2014 with a '40 Under 40' award from the National Center for American Indian Economic Development, as one of the Indian Country's emerging leaders making significant contributions in business and communities.

She also played a key role in mobilizing indigenous peoples' participation in the first-ever United Nations World Conference on Indigenous Peoples in 2014. This project included organizing a global team of indigenous visual and written content creators to document the process.

As chief operating officer of Warm Springs, Alyssa has provided leadership, management and vision to tribal operations including natural resources, health and human services, public safety, public utilities and education.

She also participates in several community and nonprofit activities focused on youth, culture and art.

Apologies

This is a letter of apology to Lucille. I would like to let everyone know I'm truly sorry. I will try harder next time. Thank you. Glenn Whiz Jr.

I'm writing this letter to let Mrs. Whiz and the Warm Springs community know from the depths of my heart that I am truly sorry and apologize for all my faults, short-comings and struggles with my addictions. I know they have caused problems in many people's lives, including mine. I want to be the best man and person I can be. I'm tired of being you antagonist and making life hard for you and myself. I say this because everything in my existence revolves around you and our family. I just want you to know that, and without you there is no meaning and substance to my life. This is our fifth time going through this very long and drawn out rodeo. I'm exhausted and you must be too. You and our children don't deserve any of this. I apologize. Glenn Max Whiz Jr.

Fire season

Wildfires happen. To ensure you have the best chance of surviving a wildfire, protect your home with defensible space. The space is a 30-foot perimeter around your home.

Clean up any combustibles and yard debris before fire season. Debris can be taken to the landfill or you can get a burn permit at Fire Management.

Warm Springs Fire Management.

Class Reunion

I'm trying to reach Virgil Culps, who would be about my age, 68.

We are planning the Sandy Union High School Class of 1969 Reunion, and would like to invite him to our activities.

My name is Susan Drew and I live in Sandy. Thank you.

Salmon, Native celebration at COCC

The First Nations Student Union at Central Oregon Community College welcomes Warm Springs to the 2019 Salmon Bake and Native American celebration.

The salmon lunch is free. There will be traditional dancing, drumming and singing, vendor tables and auction.

There are still spaces available for vendors. Receive a free vending space with a donation to the auction. All proceeds go towards the First Nations Student Union scholarship fund, and First Nations Flag Fund.

"We want to purchase, and hang in the campus center, the flags of the nine federally recognized tribes of Oregon," said Michelle Cary, COCC Native American program coordinator.

You can reach Michelle at 541-233-8305. Her email is mcary@cocc.edu

The Salmon Bake and Native American celebration will be from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, June 1 at the COCC athletic field at the Bend campus.

The COCC First Nations Student Union and Native American program provide cultural learning opportunities for Native students at the college.

The union and program provide a support system and networking opportunities; recruitment and retaining Native American students. They promote equality and fairness through cultural sharing.

State Champion in 110 Meter High Hurdles

Trevin Del Nero on Saturday won the 110 Meter High Hurdles—by two-hundredths of a second—at the Class 4A State Track Meet last weekend at Mt. Hood Community College.

Trevin, a tribal member, is the son of Zach Del Nero and Jessie Esquiro.

He is a junior at Philomath High School.

His track performances improved greatly this year as the season progressed; and he posted a fast time in 2019 in the 110-High Hurdles that is a full 1.5 seconds faster than his best time last year.

The race on Saturday was so close that Trevin at first was not sure he had won. He now is the Class 4A State Champion in the 110 Meter High Hurdles.

Pike another threat to Columbia salmon

Northern pike are some of the most troubling aquatic invasive species in the Northwest. So far, they haven't made it past Washington's Lake Roosevelt. Two dams stand in their way. And lots of people trying to stop them.

If the fish make it past Chief Joseph Dam on the Columbia River, they could greatly harm imperiled salmon downstream.

"In a lot of ways, the fight to save the Columbia River as we know it is going to be won and lost on Lake Roosevelt," said Justin Bush, executive coordinator of the Washington Invasive Species Council.

American Indian tribes are joining with the state and public utility districts in what's being billed as the largest coordinated event of its kind in the state. The groups are working for a week to catch northern pike on the lake.

"We are at a critical moment in time where northern pike have not spread into salmon habitat," said Kelly Susewind, director of the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife, in a statement. "If northern pike move downstream, the State of Washington will consider this an environmental emergency."

Northern pike are non-native to the Northwest. They were illegally introduced here in the 1990s and have made their way down the Pend Oreille River into Lake Roosevelt.

They are extremely aggressive and can wipe out fish populations in waters where they aren't native. In Alaska and California, northern pike have reduced some fish runs so much it's effectively crashed fisheries, Bush said.

"Northern pike prey on fish that we value, such as trout, salmon and steelhead," Bush said.

One problem is that Lake Roosevelt is so big (151 miles long) that it makes it hard for biologists to find and kill the invasive fish.

Right now, the fish have been spotted about 12 miles from Grand Coulee Dam. That's 90 miles from where anadromous fish are in the Columbia River, Bush said.

"There have been some new areas found to be colonized within Lake Roosevelt. I think we're near seeing some really devastating effects within Lake Roosevelt," Bush said. In other areas that have faced northern pike problems, fishery communities have "totally flipped in terms of what was present," Bush said.

Before the fish made it to Lake Roosevelt, they'd invaded the Pend Oreille River. Using gill nets placed in northern pike spawning grounds, the Kalispel Tribe of Indians was able to suppress the northern pike population in that river's Box Canyon Reservoir.

Officials are asking anglers to report any northern pike they catch and turn them in for a bounty of $10 a head. Reports help biologists know where the fish are in Lake Roosevelt.

Salmon Camp applications due soon

The Nez Perce Tribe will host the Salmon Camp 2019, August 11-17. Applications are due on May 31. Go to critfc.org to apply.

Salmon Camp fosters youth interest in natural resources careers, and closing the academic achievement gap for Native American youth.

Salmon Camp is a component of the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission's Tribal Workforce Development program.

The annual camp focuses on providing culturally relevant science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) experiences to foster an interest in natural resources careers and close the academic achievement gap for Native American youth.

Twenty incoming sixth-eighth grade students from the four Columbia River tribes are selected to attend the free camp.

Meals and lodging are provided and, after the program is successfully completed, a stipend is offered.

The week-long camp is held during the summer in tribal homelands. The four tribes take turns hosting Salmon Camp. The seven-day, overnight camp exposes the students to a blend of Western science and traditional ecological and cultural knowledge.

Salmon Camp Participants:

- Learn about the science and lifecycle of salmon.
- Work on salmon restoration projects.
- Explore Traditional Ecological Knowledge.

· Meet tribal professionals working in the sciences.

· Learn from tribal elders and cultural experts.

· Gain unique and valuable hands-on experience.

Salmon Camp Staff Positions: The success of Salmon Camp depends on great people who are committed to and enjoy working with kids.

CRITFC is currently seeking applicants to participate in the Junior Counselor program. The Junior Counselors are Warm Springs, Yakama, Umatilla, or Nez Perce youth who are incoming 9-12 graders or who graduated high school this spring (ages 16-18).

The junior counselors help the camp counselors with Salmon Camp and get an opportunity to gain leadership and mentoring experience.

Mariah Stacona's family, and Spilyay photographer Jayson Smith, visited Kirkland in May for Mariah Stacona's graduation ceremony. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree in Business Administration.

Bonneville Power Struggles as salmon runs decline

As some Northwest salmon seasons are closing before they even begin, Bonneville Power faces a financial crisis.

BPA has thirty-one power-generating projects in the Columbia Basin. The dams on the Columbia and Lower Snake Rivers are major suppliers of carbon-free energy to the northwest, especially Oregon and Washington.

But all of that energy is expensive in today's market, and Bonneville Power is losing market share to newer alternative energy sources.

Congressman Mike Simpson says he's determined to find a way to save a struggling BPA, while also bringing Idaho salmon back to sustainable numbers.

Economist Tony Jones suggests Bonneville Power rid itself of assets that are losing money, in particular, the four dams on the Lower Snake River in Washington.

"It probably costs roughly forty to forty five dollars per megawatt to produce power at the four Lower Snake Dams, all of which sells for twenty dollars or below," said Jones. "So the Lower Snake Dams are losing on the order of one hundred million dollars per year. If they were owned by a private agency, rather than a federal agency, the private agency would have a backhoe up there this afternoon starting to take them down."

Childbirth Education classes at center

Childbirth Education Classes are Wednesdays from noon to 1 p.m. at the Family Resource Center.

This is a 3 week series that focuses on Pregnancy, Labor and Delivery, and Mom and Baby Care.

A treaty question during changing times

Can tribal nations successfully sue the federal government over climate change-related violations of treaties? And if so, what would that look like?

To tie climate change to treaty rights, a case must point to the actual treaty language. While possible, "it would probably be quite difficult to find something in a treaty that places a duty on the United States to do something, or refrain from doing something, connected to climate change," said Robert Coulter, executive director at the Indian Law Resource Center and citizen of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation.

And, whenever a tribe uses treaty rights in a courtroom, there is some risk that the treaty could be diminished. Because of that, tribal governments are cautious about when to pursue a case with treaty rights.

One plausible example, though, is the right to fish "at usual and accustomed grounds."

That phrase appears in at least seven treaties with dozens of Pacific Northwest tribes—including the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs.

What if, due to species shifting from climate change or erosion from rising waters, that right could no longer be fulfilled?

Species shift is a major side effect from climate change: One study shows how salmon shifting north to colder waters means First Nations fisheries could decline by almost 50 percent by 2050.

Such a case has not been tried, and may not play to the strengths of the U.S. judicial system.

Good to know about Warm Springs Holistic Health

by Alicia Oberholzer
W.S. Holistic Health

The journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step. - Lao Tzu

Warm Springs Holistic Health opened its doors in October of 2016, making acupuncture and physical therapy accessible on the Warm Spring Campus.

Since that time, our clinic has grown in terms of space, staff, specialties and patients.

As we look forward to further integrating into the community, we would like to address some commonly asked questions regarding the Physical Therapy experience.

What is Physical Therapy?

Physical therapy is a con-

Alicia Oberholzer

servative medical approach used to reduce pain, restore movement, and optimize function.

Our specialties include orthopedics, sports injuries, women's health, balance, and cardiovascular rehabilitation.

Physical therapy is appropriate for people of all ages who need help getting back to their normal daily activities and improving their quality of life.

What should I expect at my first visit?

The initial evaluation is a one-on-one consultation with a Doctor of Physical Therapy.

The appointment will be in a private treatment room, lasting approximately one hour.

Your physical therapist will listen to your story, perform diagnostic tests, and measure your baseline level of function.

You will collaborate with your physical therapist to create meaningful goals and design a plan that supports a safe and efficient recovery.

What can I expect at a physical therapy treatment?

Treatments are one-on-one sessions with your physical therapist, generally one to two times per week.

Our current treatment locations include Warm Springs Holistic Health, Warm Springs Community Center, and Madras Aquatic Center. Sessions are typically a combination of education, hands-on care, and exercise structured around your needs and goals.

How long will I need to go to Physical Therapy?

It depends. Our approach is not cookie cutter, and each physical therapy program is designed based on a patient's individual symptoms, ambitions, and lifestyle.

Your physical therapist will be your guide and your teacher.

Our expectation is that once your goals are met, you will also be empowered with tools to prevent re-injury, self manage symptoms, and continue your journey towards long-term wellness and independence.

How do I get started?

The physical therapy services at Warm Springs Holistic Health are accessible to all individuals eligible for managed care.

Your experience starts with a visit to your medical doctor, who can write a referral if they determine that you would benefit from physical therapy.

Once your referral is approved by managed care, you will receive a phone call from the physical therapy office to schedule your initial evaluation.

I still have questions. How can I learn more?

Please feel free to contact Warm Springs Holistic Health at 541-777-2663 for more information. Our operating hours are Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Community notes...

The Boys & Girls Club of Warm Springs is enrolling now for its summer program.

Membership forms are available at the club.

The Summer Program will be available weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., meals provided through the summer.

The member fee is $25. For more information call 541-553-2323. Scholarships are available through Warm Springs Housing. Stop by their office to apply.

Canyon Ranch Kids Camp is coming up in June. It's a Christian Camp for boys and girls ages 8-13. Girls camp is June 18-20 and boys camp June 21-23. For more information contact Gladys Grant, 541-325-2650.

Pastor, wife return, start new church

Greetings Warm Springs,

Please allow me to introduce myself, and-or reintroduce myself.

My name is Desmond 'Desi' L. Wheeler (Osaias). Many of you know who I am and many don't.

I am from Warm Springs, a tribal member, and I have been away from home for many, many years.

I did not stay away from home just to stay away. As many of you know, I am a Pastor, and my wife Ranece and I have been very busy.

About our Father's business

Pastoring has taken me around the world and state side. I have just returned from Tanzania, East Africa—five years there—where we left a strong church. Then we felt it was time to come back to the Northwest.

Little did I know that God was going to bring my wife and I back to Warm Springs.

We have been home for about three months, and currently I have started a new church. We are The Door Christian Fellowship Church. We are located at the old Full Gospel Church location.

When you come to visit you will see our church sign. Our heart is to serve our community, to preach Jesus, and see your lives and families strengthened through Christ Jesus.

I look forward to seeing many old friends and making new ones. Brothers and Sisters, it is good to be home and we look forward to seeing all.

Pastor Desi Wheeler

Douglas Ray McConnell ~ 1945-2019

Douglas Ray McConnell passed away suddenly from heart-related problems on May 13, 2019 at the age of 73.

He was born September 5, 1945 in McMinnville to Lowell and Beatrice McConnell.

He was a proud graduate of McMinnville High School, and served in the Army National Guard for six years.

On August 28, 1971, he married the love of his life, Pattee Fox, of Willamina. In 1977, they had one daughter, Angela, his pride and joy.

The three shared a special and close relationship.

Doug worked for Mt. Jefferson Plywood in Madras, US Plywood in Willamina, and Warm Springs Forest Products Industries, running the lathe initially and then as a millwright.

He retired in 2007 after 42 faithful years. He was a hard working, disciplined man who never took short cuts and always got the job done right.

After retirement, Doug enjoyed not going to work, delivering Meals on Wheels, working around the house and yard, and going on various adventures; but, his favorite things were camping at the Metolius River with dear friends, the Oregon Coast, and fishing in Alaska.

He was an avid hunter and fisherman, Green Bay Packer fan, model train enthusiast, loved old rock and roll (especially Neil Diamond), and enjoyed cooking and baking.

He loved making a fruitcake every Christmas and sharing it with the few who would eat it.

Doug was always active in his community, generous with his time, and available to help others whenever needed. He was kind, patient, respectful, selfless, and steadfast. He was a big man with a big heart, big morals, and high integrity.

Doug and Pattee shared a beautiful marriage which was admired by many, and full of love, respect for each other, laughter, compassion, and compromise. They always took care of each other and ended each day with a kiss goodnight.

He loved listening to Pattee play the piano and would stop whatever he was doing to listen.

Although his absence leaves an aching hole in the hearts of many, may the pain be slightly less knowing he was doing something he loved to do: enjoying a beautiful day on a country drive with his dear wife.

He is survived by his beloved wife Pattee, daughter Angela, niece Jan Snyder, cousins Sheree Mauro and Colton Harper, and cat Whiskers.

He will also be sorely missed by many nieces, nephews, extended family, and dear friends.

A memorial service is planned for May 31 at 2 p.m. at the Metolius Train Depot. A reception will follow at the Madras Senior Center. Packer attire welcome.

A graveside service will be held at a later date at the Dundee Pioneer Cemetery.

Census jobs will be opening in W.S.

A U.S. Census is coming up in 2020, and the Census Bureau is seeking to fill census taker positions, including jobs here in Warm Springs.

The application process is easy. You can apply online at:

2020census.gov/jobs

As part of the application process, you will be asked to respond to questions that relate to your educational, work and other experience. If you need help, just call 1-855-562-2020.

If hired, your work schedule will depend on your position. Generally, hours for field positions are flexible. Some positions require day hours, and others evenings and weekends.

Supervisory positions require employees to be available for certain day, evening and possibly weekend shifts.

The goal of the Census Bureau is to place the Census takers in his or her own community.

Employees are paid weekly. Field employees will be reimbursed for authorized work expenses like mileage, incurred while conducting Census work. Pay during the training period is a slightly lower rate.

On Honor Seniors Day

The Warm Springs Seniors Program and Confederated Tribes in May hosted the Thirtieth Annual Honor Seniors Day, featuring the Early Childhood Education Mini-Powwow.

Pi-Ume-Sha soon turning 50

The tribes will host the Pi-Ume-Sha Treaty Days in June—this year marking the 50-year milestone of the powwow. The first Pi-Ume-Sha was in 1969, during the height of the Vietnam War.

Honoring veterans was one of the reasons why the first Pi-Ume-Sha Committee organized the powwow; and this remains a central theme of the weekend.

The main theme is the Treaty of 1855, signed on Monday, June 25 of that year. This year the anniversary date of the signing will be the Tuesday before Pi-Ume-Sha weekend.

Then on Wednesday before the powwow is the Pi-Ume-Sha Health Fair, hosted by Community Health. The theme this year is Just Move It! Health providers will be offering a variety of services, screenings and gifts.

Another healthy event at 2019 Pi-Ume-Sha will be the Super Man—Wonder Woman Challenge, with cash prizes for the top finishers in each division. This is an outdoor 3.3-mile rugged terrain foot race and 9.3-mile bike ride on pavement. You can pre-register by calling Azar Spino at 541-460-3511; or Raydine Spino at 541-325-1495. The challenge honors Eugene ‘Cougar’ and Norene Greene. All are welcome to participate.

The Fiftieth Annual Pi-Ume-Sha will feature the individual and team dance competitions, Ol’ Style and other specials, Men’s round Bustle and Women’s Shell Dress. The Traditional Parade is Saturday morning, June 29.

The Warm Springs Outdoor Market will be open during Pi-Ume-Sha, hosted by the Warm Springs Community Action Team and the Tananawit artisans group.

The Endurance Horse Race is Saturday morning starting at the Shaker Church. Warm Springs Recreation and Juvenile Crime Prevention are hosting the Pi-Ume-Sha Fun Run on Saturday. There will be boxing, men and women’s softball, and golf.

The Pi-Ume-Sha Rodeo began at the same time as Treaty Days; so this year the rodeo is also celebrating its Fifty Year Anniversary. The rodeo committee invites families of past and still living cowboys and cowgirls of Warm Springs.

Anyone interested in sponsoring an event, in your family member’s name, is welcome.

Please call me for more information, 541-460-0110.

Roots trailer project helps homeless vets

Students with the Roots program has worked with Warm Springs Utilities to renovate a trailer.

The trailer was once used as an office providing legal services for members. The structure had been unused for quite sometime, and was scheduled for demolition.

The Roots plan was to re-purpose the trailer into a two bedroom home for homeless veterans.

After removing the skirting and disconnecting it from utilities, the trailer was moved over to the Roots building.

Many items used in the project were recycled from homes near the school that were scheduled to be demolished.

Doors, windows, moldings, plumbing fixtures, hardware items, and even 2-by-4 studs were collected from these homes and reused.

Rotten floors, old doors and windows were reframed and replaced.

Damaged siding was replaced and the exterior of the trailer was cleaned, painted, and trimmed out with exterior trims and accents.

Interior partitions were redesigned, framed, sheet rocked and painted. Doors, moldings, cabinets, and flooring finished out the project. The project resulted in a wholly renovated building that can house homeless veterans of the community.

Bill to help protect Native women

Native American women have gone missing or been killed at much higher rates than non-Native women.

An estimate is that the rate of Native women going missing or being killed is ten times that of non-Native women.

One problem is the confusion by law enforcement over who has jurisdiction to pursue these cases, leading to lax pursuit and insufficient data.

Oregon is home to nine federally recognized tribes or confederations of tribes.

The state has now joined a movement to account for and solve more of the crimes.

Gov. Kate Brown, meeting with tribal leaders, including from Warm Springs, recently signed a bill directing state police to study how to increase and improve criminal justice resources on these cases.

For the past few decades, Patricia Whitefoot of the Yakama Nation has been a main advocate of reform to address the problem.

At the signing ceremony, Ms. Whitefoot said that her sister, Daisy Mae Heath Tallman, was 29 when she went missing.

She was Whitefoot's youngest sister and lived with her in Washington state.

She would be gone for long periods, fishing for salmon in traditional spots along the Columbia River, and visiting relatives on the Warm Springs Reservation.

Then in the autumn of 1987, she never returned to her home in White Swan.

The case was never solved. Patricia was involved in the effort to pass the bill in Oregon, and a similar one in Washington state earlier.

Travis Hampton, superintendent of the Oregon State Police, told attendees, many of them Native American women, that he was emotionally invested in bringing results.

He said he had been concerned about a lack of state police jurisdiction in Indian country, but that it would be compensated for with collaboration among federal, state and local law enforcement.
