District nominations for Tribal Council

Certification that the nominee is eligible is also required. (A copy of the form is on page 8 of this publication.) The Tribal Business Department maintains the voter lists for the three districts. The lists show the number in which each voter has voted in the past to the best ability of Vital Stars. The department also maintains a current voter list that may be made available for inspection, considering the covid protocols now in place within the organization. Any person may change voting districts by filling out the district change form. However, any registration change must be filed more than 60 days prior to any election in order to be effective for that particular election.

Tribal Council establishes the date, time, and location of polling booths. Polls shall be open.

Council posts notices of the election in two or more public places.

The upcoming election is for the Twenty-Ninth Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs.

From the Lincoln’s Committee

Many of you have been looking forward to the news of our powwows. Anticipating the time to visit friends, powwow family and enjoy a good time of singing and dancing at the 2022 Lincoln’s Powwow.

Unfortunately, there has been an upsurge of positive covid cases throughout the country. In order to keep our community, staff, and powwow family safe from exposure, the Lincoln’s Powwow Committee has made a decision to cancel the 2022 powwow in Simnasho.

We hope to help slow the upsurge of cases and hope we will be able to move forward in 2023. Thank you for your continued support. Watch for us out and about as we continue our fund raising for the powwow.

Sincerely, Lincoln’s Powwow Committee

Community update

The early and mid January spike in Covid-19 cases has diminished some in recent days, allowing the organization to re-open.

There were 108 people with active covid in the community, as of January 24, 2022. Community Health updates on January 25. There were 46 individuals being monitored daily as close covid contact.

There were five people in the hospital on January 25 with complications from the virus.

Early this week there were 33 new positive cases reported, from 123 tests completed. For a vaccination appointment call 541-553-2313.

Vaccination appointments are available for walk-ins through Friday in the Warm Springs Community Health Clinic. For anyone currently in quarantine due to covid, you have to wait until you are out of isolation or quarantine to make your vaccine appointment.

If you are looking for the best ways to protect yourself, your family and your community from covid illness, along with masking and distancing, and avoiding crowded gatherings.

The vaccinations are proven scientifically to provide protection from serious illness to the currently circulating variants, omicron and delta.

For further critical covid protocol of the confederated Tribes. Stay home if you are sick, limit shopping and meeting with others.

And get vaccinated and boost. Some testing has become available for Covid-19, Warm Springs IHS has conducted 95,128 tests for the virus among the tribal community. Of the total, 1,577 have come back positive since testing began.

The three voting districts of the Confederated Tribes will hold their meetings for Tribal Council nominations on Thursday, November 3. The Agency District meeting will be at the Agency Longhouse. For the Simnasho District nominations can also be made by submitting a nomination form in writing by 5 p.m. on February 3. The Simnasho District meeting will be at the Simnasho Longhouse; and the Sockoqua meeting will be at the gymnasium of the old elementary school.

Face masks and distancing are mandatory. There may be prospective a limited number of people in the nomination rooms at any one time, as the nominations proceed.

Individually packaged meals will be served at 6 p.m., and the meetings will begin at 7 p.m. The Tribal Council elections are scheduled for the start of April. The Agency District nomination form includes the nominee name, the person seconding the nomination, plus the nominee, all with signatures.

In Appreciation

Health and Human Services and the Confederated Tribes this week hosted the Employee Appreciation Days, featuring jackets for all tribal employees.

The distribution team was Dot Thurby, Johnson Bill and Piasco Brandy.

The team traveled to all the various departments around the community, from the Campbell area buildings, courthouse, public safety, Natural Resources. Early Childhood Education Center, the museum, High Lickies, Utilities offices, gaming, administration, Community Wellness at the clinic, warehouse and so forth.

It took two days to make all the offices. Distribution took into account the masks and distancing.

Emergency Management assisted in the project with the Health and Human Services team.

They distributed the colorful jackets to more than 600 employees of the tribes.

The Jefferson County School District supports its schools’ extracurricular activities. And it is the policy of the district to bring to the sports, clubs and other after-class activities into students’ lives, and the wish is to continue to do this safely.

To ensure the delivery of the activities can continue, the district this month announced changes to indoor spectator guidance for all athletic and activity events held at the schools. These changes were made to address rapidly increasing January cases of Covid-19; and in response to updated guidelines from the Oregon Department of Education and Oregon Health Authority. The district expects the changes to be temporary.

These spectator modifications are intended to further the efforts to protect the student athletes, coaches and community.

"By doing this we can make sure these extracurriculars are not further disrupted," said district superintendent Jay Mathisen. School sports spectator changes include the following:

- Reducing capacity. The district will begin by reducing capacities in the facilities and at events.
- Limited seating for clubs and activities: Performing arts and club activities with events will follow similar guidelines. Specific seating capacity limits will be established prior to events based on number of students participating and size of the venue.

By accepting the pass and checking-in at the gate, spectators will agree to and be required to follow all covid protocols, including wearing a mask at all times that covers the mouth and nose.

Changes to sports spectator guidelines

Streaming events. Spectators will be able to watch many athletic and activities events via the NFHS streaming services from home, work or remote location. The district is covering costs to ensure this service is free for families while capacity is reduced. The link to watch will be provided to all families prior to the implementation of the reduced capacity limits. "Our hope is that these temporary measures will be short lived," Mr. Mathisen said. "We love to support our teams, clubs and activities. Please help us keep them going by following this guidance.

Daniel Herbert Macy ~ January 8, 1936 – January 17, 2022

Daniel Herbert Macy was born January 8, 1936, in Warm Springs, Oregon, and grew up on the reservation, tracing the high desert where he spent his early years. He died peacefully at home in Madison, Wisconsin, on January 17, 2022. Dan was the eldest of six children of Lawrence and Mary Macy and beloved brother of Richard, Ronald, Jenny, Marcia, and Marina Macy. Dan had a life of accomplishments and service, with an amused frustration of family, of the universe, and perfection in all aspects of his life, which translated well into his cancer journey. He received a Bachelor’s degree in Mining Engineering from Oregon State University in 1959 and went on to pass graduate work in Air Force Space Engineering at the University of Arizona, Dan began his career as a Captain in the Army during the Vietnam War. He was stationed at Piratinelli Army Missile Base in Germany while the missile program was in operation. In order to finance his graduate studies, Dan worked one summer in Huntsville, Alabama, under the tutelage of Werner Von Braun, a leading figure in the development of rocket technology in Germany and space technology. A United States citizen, Dan also worked one summer in California for Jet Propulsion Laboratory, contributing to a team that engineered for specific critical tasks related to the Apollo landing. After leaving the University of Arizona, Dan began his career in 1960 at Texaco, where he developed expertise on the Exxon Valdez, and later transferred to the Consol Offshore Engineering group in New Orleans. His expertise was designing offshore production facilities for crude and natural gas. He was granted a patent for Texaco in 1992 for his invention of a multi phase separating apparatus for fluids containing a gaseous component. His work as a troubleshooter and his involvement in project management and construction won him to offshore facilities all over the world. He worked in Norway, Belgium, Denmark, Nigeria, Angola, and the United Kingdom, but his lifelong desire was always to return to Warm Springs. Dan retired from Texaco in 1996 after thirty years of service. Dan was a good man, a loving husband, a wonderful father, a devoted grandfather, a generous uncle, and a lifelong friend. He was proud of his land on the reservation and went home any opportunity he could to fish, hike and target practice with his brothers and buddies. Dan was an avid gun collector and a gifted athlete, playing soccer into his 80’s. One of his fondest memories of youth was being on the Madison baseball team under Coach Ole Johnson. The White Buffalos went to the 1954 state championship as an underdog, the smallest school in the laminate, and proceeded to stun the Oregon state world with their victories.Dan’s last trip to the reservation was with his children in 2018 to attend a family reunion for the decennial of Billy Chinook, spuag and kuwun of the Warm Springs Reservation in 1885. A memorial service will be held at the company’s headquarters in Warm Springs, when Dan will be returned to the land he loved. Dan is survived by his wife Fran Macy, his children from his first marriage to Vaugha Henderson, daughter Emma Angeles Mary Switzer and her husband Charles Brent Switzer, daughter Cara Macy, and husband and father Peter Macy. Stepson Richard West and wife Courtney West, and Stepson Eric Glaser. Bridget Henderson, Vaugha Switzer, Alexande Angeles Switzer, Ava Jane Roland, Anton Redmond, Jade Macy, Daniel Vaughan White Buffalos, Garrett West, Carolyn West, James West, Jenny Glaser, and Kyle Glaser. Brother Richard Macy and wife Vivian, sister Marcia Macy, and several aunts in laws, numerous cousins, nieces and nephews.

The Jefferson County Clerk’s Office will be sending out Vote Notification Cards to all registered voters in Warm Springs. All of Warm Springs will be changing state Senate and House Districts, 20 and 37 respectively. There will not be a change in the Congressional District.

The state of the County will remain in Senate 30 and House District 30, and Congressional District 5 with the exception of the lower twenty county of Jeff Co., that will change to Congressional District 6. There are significant changes to voting due to the decennial of 2020—also known as the Postmark Bill—which will be effective for the Primary Election.

Another change: Voters will not use a secrecy sleeve in their ballots, as Senate Bill 27 allows clerks to omit it providing they demonstrate to the Secretary of State office that the privacy of the voter will be maintained. The return or signature envelopes will have a secrecy sleeve and the Election Board will follow guidelines to insure voter privacy.

A special “Notice to the Voter” will be placed in the ballot, explaining these changes along with the fact that they will be able to vote stream the Election Board at howlak-tichum@spslymoo.com

Winning logo design for Bureau of Indian Education

Kaya Jackson of the Pyramid Lake Paiute Tribe, and graduate of the Haskell Indian Nations University in Lawrence, Kansas, created the new logo for the Bureau of Indian Education. This is the first logo for the BIE since becoming a bureau in 2006. Jackson submitted her design as part of a BIE-wide competition, inviting students to lead in the creation of the new logo. “The design expresses culture, knowledge, and leadership,” Ms. Jackson said, further explaining the details:

Image meanings
The open book represents lifelong learning. The Indigenous female is shown with traditional regalia including moccasins, ribbons, skirt, shawl, yoke, booted headband, and eagle feather with yoke, beaded headband, and eagle feather with yoke.

The eagle emblazoned on the shield represents admittance, strength, and determination. Finally, in the background, there is the sun which gives us growth, abundance and hope.

The four lines on the book represent the four directions, the four stages of life and four sacred plants.

The logo will be used on all official bureau correspondence, as well as publications, websites, social media and communication materials.

Established in 2006, the Bureau of Indian Education currently supports 185 Bureau-funded elementary and secondary schools located on 64 reservations in 23 states that serve approximately 63,000 Indian students. Of those, 31 are BIE-operated and 130 are tribally controlled through BIE contracts or grants.

Additionally, the BIE directly engages two post-secondary institutions: Haskell Indian Nations University in Lawrence, Kansas, and the Southwestern Indian Polytechnic Institute in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

“The bureau is working to lay the foundation for the next generation of Native children to succeed,” said Bryan Newland, assistant secretary of Indian Affairs.

“I am proud the BIE will have an official logo, “as we carry out our mission moving forward. And I am even more proud that it was designed by a BIE student—Ms. Kaya Jackson.”

The U.S. Department of the Interior today announced the White House Council on Native American Affairs will convene an engagement session this Sunday, January 30 at 1 p.m. to discuss tribal leaders focused on the implementation of the Infrastructure Law, and public safety resources across Indian Country. The session will be led by Secretary of the Interior Deb Haaland, who serves as co-chair of the Native American Council on Public Safety.

During the virtual session, tribal leaders will be given an opportunity to share their guidance, recommendations and perspectives on the committee’s all-of-government efforts. The meeting will follow the initial on-site consultations on the Infrastructure Law to be held earlier that same day.

The White House Council on Native American Affairs is an important tool in the administration’s all-of-government approach to strengthening Indian Country. As we work to tackle public safety and criminal justice issues impacting Indigenous people, the implementation of the historic Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, I’m proud to bring tribal leaders and government officials together to further invest in our most important relationship.

The Bipartisan Infrastructure Law invests more than $13 billion directly in tribal communities across the country to bolster community resilience, replace aging infrastructure, expand clean-drinking water and help ensure everyone has access to high-speed internet.

The Conference of Tribes of Warm Springs are set to receive drinking water infrastructure funding through the law.

The session will also focus on the executive order on Improving Public Safety and Criminal Justice for Native Americans in Addressing the Crisis of Missing and Murdered American Indians and Alaska Natives. For more information, visit the White House Council on Native American Affairs website.

I would like to thank everyone that showed up to help during our Name Giving in November. In these unique pictures are Gary III, Kayla, and myself. Again, thank you all.

And all my best for 2022! Valerie Quispinephen.

Latest data: Vaccines, boosters are key to health

Health officials released the latest complete data highlighting the role of covid vaccines and boosters in preventing severe illness.

The numbers for last month show the risk of hospitalization in unvaccinated people as compared to people who had received an initial series of a Covid-19 vaccine was:

- Nine times higher in people ages 12-17.
- Twelve times higher in people ages 18-49.
- Seventeen times higher in people ages 50-64.
- Forty-four times higher in people ages 65 and over.

The data are clear: Vaccines and boosters protect people from severe Covid illness. The data come from the Associated Hospitai Surveillance Network, which includes more than 250 hospitals in 14 states, including Oregon. If you’re looking for a Covid-19 vaccine or booster, call the clinic at 541-533-2131.

Free home Covid testing

The federal government released guidance explaining the expanded coverage for at-home, over-the-counter Covid home tests.

The new guidance applies to health plans, including self-only and family plans, and is intended to remove obstacles allowing individuals greater access to Covid-19 tests. The expanded guidance will be effective during the public health emergency. The key provisions to individuals across as follows:

The tests must be covered without imposing any cost-sharing requirements.

Order online

The federal government has launched a new website where you can order free at-home rapid antigen tests, to be delivered to your home.

Confederated Tribes now have more ownership in hydrodams

At the start of this year, the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs purchased an additional ownership interest in the Pelton Round Butte hydroelectric project, increasing the tribes’ stake from 33 and 1/3 percent to 49.99 percent.

Pelton Round Butte is an emissions-free, three-dam complex on the Deschutes River, co-owned and operated by the tribes and Portland General Electric.

The tribes became co-owners of the facilities in 2001 through an agreement that provided the tribes with an additional opportunity to purchase another 16.66 percent in 2021.

“Our longstanding relationship with this resource is something that is very important to our current tribal membership and to future generations,” said Jim Manion, general manager of Warm Springs Power and Water Enterprises.

“We will continue to be good stewards of the resource, and our role will be to continue working together with the tribes in Central Oregon for years to come.”

For more than forty years, the tribes and PGE have worked together to generate power and advance an ambitious set of environmental goals, including the reintroduction of salmon and steelhead runs to the Deschutes River.

When the going gets tough, the tough get vaccinated.

COVID fatigue is the biggest threat to keeping Oregon schools open and kids safe this winter. But, getting vaccinated is just one of 11 health and safety measures we can take to protect what’s most important. Find out more at Oregon.gov/ready schools.

help improve the columbia river fishing access sites!

Congress has authorized safety and sanitation improvements to be made at the Zone 6 fishing access sites through the federal Columbia River In-lieu and Treaty Fishing Sites Improvement Act.

We want to hear from tribal members who use these sites to exercise their treaty-protected fishing rights.

• How do you use the sites?
• How well do the sites fit your needs?
• What problems have you seen or experienced while using the sites?
• What are your suggestions on ways to make the sites better?

In-person interviews will be held on the sites and on the four reservations by Akanka or Nick! Wara Housing staff in February and early March. An online survey option will also be available. Participation is voluntary and participants will get a $50 gift card for their time.

Scan the QR code for the interview schedule, online survey information, and more details.

Improved ocean conditions ‘a blessing’ for fish

Much-improved conditions off the Oregon coast may signal a reprieve for Columbia River salmon and steelhead that have endured a string of lean years in the northern Pacific Ocean.

According to scientists with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, 2021 posted the second-best ocean condition score across a 24-year data set and was the best year on record in one key category—the density of northern copepods. The tiny, energy-rich organisms are packed with lipids and, when abundant, can cause an explosion of growth for dozens of species.

That should mean when juvenile salmon and steelhead flushed out of the Columbia River and into the ocean last spring and summer, they found plenty to eat. The good ocean conditions—which include cold water and abundant upwelling—often lead to higher survival for salmon and steelhead during their time in salt water, and thus higher freshwater returns.

For David Johnson, director of the Nez Perce Tribe Department of Fisheries Resources Management, the change in ocean fortunes couldn’t have been better timed. Last year, the tribe found 42 percent of wild Snake River spring chinook populations and 19 percent of wild steelhead are slipping toward extinction.

“It is really a blessing that the ocean is looking like it does,” Johnson said. “We are just really happy about that.”

While the recent data on ocean conditions could be good news for struggling salmon in the Northwest, advocates for the species warn this isn’t enough to stop their alarming slide, largely due to conditions in the rivers themselves.
The most recent COVID case demographics for the tribal community, compiled by IHS, Community Health and the Response Team, show the weekly cases since tracking began. The recent surge is seen at the right, hopefully now receding.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration recently approved two oral antiviral medications that dramatically reduce the chances of hospitalization from the virus. This is especially important for the most vulnerable individuals, the elderly, and those with underlying conditions, for instance. The new medications have to be administered very early in the diagnosis. Examples of the medications:

Paxlovid from Pfizer:
Works by disrupting the virus’s ability to mutate. It specifically targets an enzyme that helps certain viral proteins form correctly.

Molnupiravir from Merck:
This works by introducing mutations directly into the virus’s genetic makeup.
