W.S. jail preferred site

The plan for a new Warm Springs jail is moving ahead. The preferred site for the facility, as approved this month by Tribal Council, is at the industrial park, with two alternatives in case of unforeseen circumstances. The previous Tribal Council approved the preferred site by resolution early in May. Timing was important, as the U.S. Department of the Interior last year approved the funding, contingent on the project moving forward.

James Halliday, Land Services director, and Nancy Seyler, Public Safety acting general manager, conducted the community outreach over the past few months. Based upon the responses, the industrial park site, off of Highway 3, was identified as preferred. Factors under consideration were infrastructure, access and site location, for instance. Fourteen locations were considered before the decision to go with industrial park.

The proposed jail facility will house up to 60 inmates. Through BIA Facilities, the construction project will be funded by the federal government, according to terms of long-standing tribal-U.S. agreements. The Confederated Tribes currently contract for jail services with NorCor in The Dalles, a cooperative arrangement.

The former corrections building, located by the Police Department, is unsuitable for incarceration purposes, in terms of both inmates and Corrections staff. Warm Springs Corrections Lt. Crystal Greene over the past years documented the inadequacies of the existing structure, leading to the successful funding application by Public Safety and the tribes.

The Tribal Council “supports the construction of the Warm Springs Detention Center” at the location as legally described in the attachments, according to the resolution. The tribes agree to a commercial lease to the federal government of the industrial site acreage for 25 years.

Through the planning process, the siting team, including the BIA, determined that five acres would be needed for the jail facility. The industrial park site fits just within this requirement, Mr. Halliday said. Beyond the construction itself, some infrastructure work will be required, such as water and sewer, roads, etc.

Full Pi-Ume-Sha again not possible this year

In the summer of 1969 the United States was at war in Vietnam. Servicemen were fighting overseas, while families at home were waiting for a return to daily life, the traditions, the food and good times of the reservation. In late June '69 the sky was clear, temperatures in the mid 90s, the setting for the first Pi-Ume-Sha. The words themselves, 'Pi-Ume-Sha,' translate roughly from Ichiskeen as 'celebration.' In those days the now legendary atwai Nathan 'Eight Ball' Jim was among the organizers, with families of the Calica, Katchia and Mitchell households, among other families and friends (apologies if names are not mentioned; it was not intentional). Eight Ball was the original great Master of Ceremonies of many gatherings, very funny and smart.

At the start, the 1969 June celebration was above all a tribute to the families of the Vietnam War. And yet a greater tradition was born, Pi-Ume-Sha, at first a humble gesture to the men and women fighting for freedom, in time growing into a celebration of Native American traditions as observed here in the Northwest.

By chance the month of June happens to be the anniversary

Statement of the Powwow and Parade Committee

The following is the statement from the Pi-Ume-Sha Powwow and Parade Committee, regarding the need to limit the June activities:

To honor and respect the health and welfare of our community and potential visitors from other places, the Pi-Ume-Sha Powwow will not be held in 2022. Our most precious resource is our people and we wish them all good health and well-being. We will work towards coming back the summer of 2023.

However, there will be a Parade on Saturday morning, June 25 to honor our Veterans; you can contact Ramona Baez at 541-460-0077 for more information.

Following the parade, we encourage our local community to have a 'Fun Time' with drumming and dancing, so our people can continue our time-honored traditional dances. If there are families that need or want to release themselves to join the dancing and drumming, that can be done just prior to, or during the powwow.

The 2022 Pi-Ume-Sha Health Fair is also scheduled. For more information, contact the Warm Springs Health and Wellness Center, 541-553-1196.

Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, the Powwow and Parade committee have not been able to have fund raising events to fund the full three-day powwow contests, honorariums, for Elders and Veterans, the meals, etc.

The Pi-Ume-Sha Powwow and Parade Committee

sary of the signing of the Treaty of 1855: Under extreme duress the Treaty Signers—by the Treaty Oak near the Columbia River—agreed to the document. The Treaty formally recognizes the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs as sovereign, equal among other governments and nations. In legal terms the Treaty creates the boundaries of the reservation; yet also removed most of the river people from the N'chi Wana homeland. The terms acknowledge Native rights to fish, hunt and gather upon the Ceded Lands.

Every year since 1969, until the pandemic began in 2020, the tribes celebrated Pi-Ume-Sha, making the event among the premier festivities of the Northwest.

This summer, as we seem to be returning to normal, covid-wise, Pi-Ume-Sha will be in a somewhat different fashion, as explained here in the statement from Ms. Louise Katchia and the Pi-Ume-Sha Powwow and Parade Committee. An issue this year has been fundraising. Earlier in the year the pandemic prevented the necessary fundraising, which takes several months. The change this year also acknowledges the passing last year of the late atwai Cassie Katchia, powwow organizer, greatly missed.

Busy first weeks with the new Tribal Council

Since taking office as preliminary business, the new Tribal Council has met with departments and enterprises of the Confederated Tribes.

Council also decided that at least six members must be present, with the chairman or vice-chair, for all action items. The chair, Jonathan Smith, or vice-chair, Raymond Captain Moody, can be among the six to establish the voting quorum.

In other initial business, Council decided to begin all regular morning meetings, requiring a quorum by 9:30 a.m.; otherwise, the meeting is rescheduled. For the organization updates:

Council met first with Brenda Bremner, superintendent of the Warm Springs Agency of the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Following were updates from the Office of Special Trustee, and the federal and state legislative updates.

In the area community health Tribal Council met with Hyllis Dauphinais, chief executive officer of the Warm Springs Indian Health Services Clinic; the Covid-19 Response Team; and with Michael Collins, director of tribal Managed Care.

The tribal organization is large, so the full update was a matter of some days, including reports from: Human Resources, Finance, Government Affairs, Education, Procurement, Tribal Court, Health and Human Services, Public Safety, Natural Resources, Veterans Service office, High Lookkee Lodge. And on Wednesday of last week:

Public Utilities, including the water treatment plant; the Tribal Employment Rights Office, the Gaming Commission and Surveillance. And earlier this week:

Commemorative Academy plaque

To Laurie Danzuka, school district chair, members of Jefferson County School District No. 509-J Board of Directors, and the Warm Springs Tribal Council: Regarding the Commemorative Plaque for the Warm Springs K-8 Academy:

On Monday, May 9 at the Jefferson County school board meeting I asked the board for permission to hang a plaque at the Warm Springs Academy K-8 school.

The plaque displays documents from the August, 2014 school building dedication, telling the story of how the new school was developed and came to be approved by the Warms Springs Tribal Council, in a tribal referendum, and the school district in a bond levy.

The plaque also lists the names of the people involved in working together to have the school approved and built. I explained to the school board that I created the plaque so that the Warm Springs Academy students would know that their school is the result of the hard work and dedication over many years of many tribal and school district leaders.

Prior to asking the school board, I received approval of my request from the Warm Springs Tribal Council. A Sincere Thank You to all the members of the Twenty-Eighth Tribal Council, and Thank You to the school board members for approving my request. My family and I greatly appreciate the respectful and thoughtful manner in which the school board members honored my appearance before the board and granted my request

I would also like to thank

School Board Chair Laurie Danzuka for asking Tribal Councilman Carlos Calica to sing a prayer song before I spoke to the board members.

A big Thank You to Carlos for your warm hearted and sincere songs and prayers, and the words you spoke on behalf of my daughter atwai Urbana ‘ToTo’ Ross, and the support you gave—You are greatly appreciated.

Last but not least I want to thank my niece Jenea ‘Jenny’ Frye for her support and time to drive me to Michaels in Bend for the materials for the plaque. Sincerely, Arlene Boileau, tribal member.

Red during month of May

During the month of May, we wear red in support and solidarity of Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women, Girls, and Two Spirit People—or MMIWG2S.

We wear red to include our response in the Red Dress Project—an art installation and movement designed to bring visibility to the critical issue of MMIWG2S.

MMIWG2S is a crisis, and the National Indigenous Women’s Resource Center has provided an MMIW Toolkit for Families and Communities.

The tool kit is designed to assist families, communities and advocacy organizations in understanding and responding to a case of a missing or murdered Native woman. See the the National Indigenous Women’s Resource Center website to find the kit. Aii.

Students invited to summer STRIVE at college

STRIVE is the Central Oregon Community College summer program for Native American high school students. This is a chance to earn a college credit, and get ready for after high school. STRIVE stands for Summer Training to Revive Indigenous Visions and Empowerment.

Geneva Mayall, Native American College Preparation Coordinator, is recruiting high school students to join the four-day program. During the four days, from June 21-24, the students spend their time at the COCC Bend campus, attending classes, living in the residence halls, getting to know the school and opportunities.

The priority is for high school seniors, though STRIVE is open to any high school stu-

Free air purifiers for wildfire zones

Recent summers have broken records in terms of wildfires in Oregon, including the reservation. Flames have destroyed approximately 4,000 homes and 1 million acres of land. Smoke entered homes and lungs in every corner of the state.

State of Oregon lawmakers responded by funding air purifiers for people in communities where wildfires are common.

The air purifiers make up a tiny slice of a $220 million investment in wildfire prevention and response planning, power plant safety, new building code standards and more.

Getting the devices into homes is one of the hardest parts, and the state is getting help from five Coordinated Care Organizations in the targeted wildfire risk zones.

Summer outdoor work, pay and credits for youth

Summer outdoor job options for youth of the region just received close to a million-dollar boost, as the Heart of Oregon Corps and the Oregon Conservation Corps secured wildfire risk reduction funding. The $995,000 goes to youth of Jefferson, Deschutes and Crook counties.

The Heart of Oregon Corps program will train and employ over 140 young adults in wildfire reduction and related skills. In addition to gaining on-the-job training, certifications, and knowledge in fire fuel reduction practices, youth in the program will receive wages, scholarships, additional workforce training in both soft and hard skills to prepare them to enter the professional workforce.

Youth crews will start project work on identified high risk areas this

Around Indian Country

Drought persists despite May rain

The month of May has seen more rainfall than was forecast. However, the rain brought by the jet stream over the past several weeks has not been enough to end drought conditions, though it may delay the start of fire season by a few weeks. And dry, hot summers and unsteady precipitation patterns remain on the horizon.

Drought persists across the state and the West due to rain deficits over the winter. Nearly 90 percent of Oregon, including the reservation, is in some stage of drought.

Invasive clawed frog harming Northwest salmon

An invasive species is consuming and competing with Native species in western Washington, including salmon. Scientists have spotted African clawed frogs in western Washington.

The frogs were initially brought into the United States to be used in pregnancy tests and later became pets. Although Washington made it illegal to own them, some still do. Meanwhile, some decided not to keep the frogs, and released them into ponds and streams. As officials began looking into the issue, they discovered hundreds of frogs.

African clawed frogs are considered one of the worst invasive species on earth. They eat Native insects; they eat tadpoles of native salamanders, and they eat fish. People working to restore salmon populations fear the frogs will infringe on that progress.

Power and Water, PGE explain water relase

Tribal Power and Water Enterprises would like to share the following information regarding the operation of the Pelton-Round Butte hydro dams, co-managed with Portland General Electric.

Five facts about how the partnership manages water at the reservoirs, during the hot months:

The tribal and PGE managers use the Selective Water Withdrawal—SWW—to blend water from the surface and bottom of Lake Billy Chinook. This is done to match as closely as possible the ‘without project temperature,’ or the temperature projected in the river were the dams and reservoirs not there. Releasing water in this way results in more natural seasonal temperature patterns in the lower river, according to the Power and Water-PGE statement.

provisions—in the operation license—for extreme circumstances. For example, If flows drop below a certain threshold between September 16 and November 15, the operators can augment flows to aid fall Chinook. The dam operation license describes an emergency fish provision that could trigger changes to the temperature blend and flows, with consultation from the Pelton-Round Butte Fish Committee.

During extreme hot weather, the tribal and PGE operators adjust their fish-handling procedures to reduce stress. Options are to conduct work earlier in the day when temperatures are cool; limiting tagging to adult fish only.

Since earlier this year, the Confederated Tribes own 49.9 percent of the Pelton-Round Butte hydro system.

Lengthy sentence for assault, coercion

An Oklahoma man was sentenced to more than six years in prison last week after a Jefferson County jury earlier found him guilty of assault and coercion in the beating and biting of a Warm Springs woman last year.

The jury in April found Alfred Kaulaity, 46, from Midwest City, Oklahoma, of fourth-degree felony assault and coercion, said Steve Leriche, District Attorney.

Circuit Court Judge Wade Whiting imposed a sentence of 78 months in prison, the maximum allowed under the law.

Mr. Leriche said that Kaulaity had seven previous convictions for domestic violence crimes.

The victim, a tribal member from Warm Springs, testified about being brutally beaten and bitten by Kaulaity as he tormented her over the course of several hours, as he drove around in a van.

The woman “eventually was able to bolt from the van and run” to a stranger’s home, Mr. Leriche said. The resident, Lyle Clark, “took the woman into his home, called police and waited with her until police arrived.” Madras and Warm Springs police detectives investigated other acts of domestic violence involving Kaulaity, and he also will be facing federal charges.

Students Flourish Here

JCSD 509J / FY2021-2022/ May 2022

Bridges [Above] - Students in Julie Marino's art class got a chance to work on soldering stained glass together. The objective was for the students to connect the pieces into a shape of a feather. They used a soldering iron to connect them by using flux, lead and tin. Julie got some help on this lesson from a volunteer, Sharon Miller! Thank you to Sharon for volunteering her time to teach the students art!

MHS [Left] - Sue Young's photography class will get out of the class room and into the community to take pictures of their surroundings. On this day, students were working on Worms eye view photography. This is where the object is captured from a very low angle with the camera pointing towards the top. Young is an MHS alum too. Graduating in 1987!

We Care For Each Other

Madras Elementary [Above] - Educational Assistant Angela Blake was April's Classified Employee Spotlight. This is her 12th year with the district. She works with students K-5 who need help with either academic or physical needs.

"I look forward to coming back to work even if I've had a bad day," Blake said.

"I love coming to work, I love Madras Elementary and I actually love kids."

Metolius Elementary [Below] - PE Teacher Kermit Kumle was named 509J's April Certified Employee Spotlight!

Kermit has worked for the school district since 1995. He's worked at Metolius for a bulk of that time. He spent many years working as a 5th grade teacher before recently making the switch to PE.

"My favorite piece of what I do is interacting with so many kids now and having such great relationships with so many of the children."

WSK8 [Above] - At our May board meeting, the school board took some time to celebrate an influential Warm Springs community member. Urbana "Toto" Ross played a huge role in helping fund and build Warm Springs K-8 Academy. At the meeting, Arlene Boileau, Toto's mother, presented a plaque along with Mary Ross, Toto's sister, and Howard Arnett, a CTWS attorney. The plaque will hang up in WSK8 to memorialize Toto and to remind students who in their community helped make the new school possible. Pictured above are Reina Estimo, Arlene, and Board Chair Laurie Danzuka.

Better Every Day

JCMS [Above] - Students worked on philosophical chairs in Ms. Deseray Duncan's AVID class. Students read an article about a topic. They gathered evidence and chose a position. They shared evidence and reasoning, learning how to engage in productive, thoughtful, and kind discussion about a topic.

Buff Elementary [Above] - Students got a chance to learn about Earth Day! Counselor Tracey Sklenar and ELL teacher Charity Gillian got seeds for the students to plant! Tracey walked them through the planting process and talked about the importance of reusing and recycling as well!

Government identifies Native burial sites

The U.S. Department of Interior released a report last week that located 53 burial sites and more than 400 boarding schools supported by the federal government that sought to assimilate Native American children into White society. A number of the sites are in Oregon, as shown on the map.

The investigation turned up over 500 deaths, though that number could climb to the thousands or even tens of thousands. The schools were known to have operated for 150 years, starting in the early 19th century, coinciding with the removal of many tribes from their ancestral lands.
