A Madras High School senior will be heading to the University of Oregon after receiving a scholarship from the Ford Foundation.

Christina Thomas was born and raised in Warm Springs. She is one of only 108 students selected to receive this scholarship, which will cover 90 percent of her college costs.

"I was super excited and I feel super blessed already," Ms. Thomas says. "I am very grateful and fortunate for it.

Throughout her time in the Jefferson County School District, Christina has been an active student. She is involved with the National Honor Society, Leadership, Yearbook, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Key Club and Art Club.

As a student-athlete, she played volleyball all four years at the high school, and played tennis for the last two. Before picking up the racket, she was part of the track team.

Ms. Thomas also served as the student representative to the district school board. She would give the monthly reports to the board, letting them know every- thing that was happening at Ma- dras High School. At college, she says, "I think I'm going to miss the support you have here," she says. "All my teachers know me, and I know all my teachers. I'm going to miss my family.

She plans on going the pre-med route and studying biochemistry while attending Oregon. Once she finishes that, she plans on attending medical school at the University of Washington.

"I want to become a physi- cian, and I want to advocate for more rural, Native American families, like the ones in my community," she says.

"There's just not a lot of representation in the medical field, and I think it's really im- portant to be a role model, to kind of set a standard." Ms. Thomas created a Facebook page for high school and college students who have helped her along the way. She mentions especially Sam Louis, who runs the NHS Future Center. And above all she gives the credit to her mom, Shizelle Thomas.

The Oregon Tribal Student Grant is a new state fund program supported by the Oregon Legislative Black Caucus. This program will provide investment in equitable college access and success for tribal students. The Oregon Tribal Student Grant is expected to pay for most or all public college-related expenses—including tuition, housing, books, and other costs not covered by other grants—for eligible students who are enrolled members of one of Oregon’s nine federally recognized tribes, including the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. The aid can be applied to- ward undergraduate or graduate study at Oregon public colleges and universi- ties, as well as eligible tribe- run private institutions, where award amounts can go up to the public institution maximum limit, in the up- coming 2022-23 school year.

The Higher Education Coordinating Commission Office of Student Access and Completion will ad- minister the grant; and en- sure tribal students to apply by the priority appli- cation deadline of August 1.

Governor Kate Brown proposed this program in the 2022 Legislative Ses- sion, in consultation with Oregon tribal govern- ment leadership, and working closely with a co- ordinating commission to address longstanding educational equity gaps by removing financial barriers to college for Oregon tribal students. The Oregon Legislature also voted in favor of the program.

Governor Brown says, “The launch of the Oregon Tribal Student Grant marks a historic moment for Oregon. For far too long, due to disparities caused by systemic barri- ers, too few tribal students have had access to postsecondary education. This grant program is a remarkable step forward that will serve as a model for the rest of the nation, help to right historic wrongs, and profoundly impact the future of Oregon’s tribal stu- dents and our dynamic tribal communities.”

Effective September 1, 2022: Oregon’s state fund program will allocate $5 million annually to invest in equitable college access and success for tribal students. The program will provide investment in equitable college access and success for tribal students.

Jefferson County School District 509-J celebrated the Eleventh Annual Gift of Literacy student gathering. More than 230 first-grade students from across the district descended on the Performing Arts Center for a day to celebrate reading.

To welcome the students, staff and middle school leadership students formed a tunnel and cheered on the first graders as they arrived at the Performing Arts Center.

After getting nestled into their seats in the auditorium, director of Curriculum and Instruction Melinda Boyle kicked off the event with district Librarian Ryan Dempsey. “This is my favorite day of the year, and I am so happy we were able to return to in-person,” Ms. Boyle said.

“In 2020, we had to cancel the event due to the pandemic. In 2021 we were able to bring the event back but it was virtual and each student stayed in their classroom.” Ms. Boyle and Mr. Dempsey then introduced children’s author Eric Kimmel. He has published more than 50 titles, many of which have won numerous state awards, appeared on school and library recommended lists, and won prestigious awards such as the Caldecott Honor Medal and the Sydney Taylor Picture Book Award.

He read aloud his book, The Three Cabritos to the children. Once he was finished, the students got a chance to open up the book bags they received earlier. They all got a few minutes to read the book they received brightly in this year’s program. There were six options.

Thank you to everyone who had a part in making this a successful day. That includes, all of our wonderful 509-J faculty and staff who played a part in the event, the library district and Jefferson County staff for taking the time to read to our students. Thank you to Jefferson County Sheriff’s Office, Madras Police and Warm Springs Police for sharing off their cars to the kids at bedtime. Special thanks to Jefferson County Fire District for bringing the fire truck over and letting kids explore it. Thank you to the 509-J transportation team who helped bus the kids over from the Warm Springs Academy, Metolius, Big Muddy, and 509-J Online. Also, a big thank you to Dr. Steve Nitschelm for spending the day with the students and bringing along the therapy dogs! Thank you to all of our sponsors including Warm Springs Power and Water Enterprises, Jefferson County Rotary Club, Madison Credit Union, PayEmWest Insurance, Rotary International, St. Charles Health Systems. We would also like to take this time to honor Dr. Doug Lovell and his wife, Patty, have been long-time supporters of the Gift of Literacy.

After their impressive 2021-22 regular season, the Madras High School girls' basketball team made a great showing at the Class 4A state tournament, with the girls defeating Halden Valley to take third place overall. As is the custom, Warm Springs was well-represented on the team. In their final game at state this past March, for instance, Kallie Holicky led Madras with 12 points, three assists and three steals, among all the other great player performances.

The team-work during the season overall has earned Jerin Say, the Oregon Coach of the Year Award. Mr. Say has been the Madras High School girls' coach for four years now. Recognition as the 4A Girls Coach of the Year comes from the Oregonian-OregonLive selection team.

"Without those players, I can't be the coach. I am also, so it isn't about me," Mr. Say says. It's about all of us collectively on the team and reaching goals.

In addition to being the girls' basketball head coach, Jerin is the Educational Resource Center teacher at Madras Elementary. He is in his first-year teaching but has worked for the school district for the last six years as an educational assistant in higher education.

"This is what I love," he says. "This is what I love to do, you know, helping the kids in our community. I grew up here. I graduated from Madras High School. Say is a 2004 alum from Madras High School. He was a junior in high school the last time the girls' basketball team won a state championship in high school the last time the girls earned second-team all-tournament. The Madras girls' team also brought home the Sportsmanship Award from the state tournament outlined by the OSAA Communications.

Federal government finally commits to fish sites improvements

In a major step forward, the federal government has announced that it will begin addressing improvements and the hiring of managers at the 31 ‘in-lieu’ and many fishing sites along the Columbia River.

The federal government earlier this month committed to the sites in Oregon and Washington after the construction of dams on the Columbia River created the sites in Oregon and Washington, and tribes have fought for years to be compensated for the loss of the sites. The sites are part of the treaty fishing access sites along the Columbia, and they serve fishers and communities.

During a tour of these sites earlier this month, the top federal official overseeing tribal affairs in the U.S. announced that the government would provide $880 million to allow for a comprehensive upgrade in infrastructure and facilities at the fishing sites. The money will also be used to tackle ongoing problems like flooding by improving drainage facilities and removing hundreds of abandoned vehicles, among other things.

“This is a down payment,” Director of the Interior Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs Ryan Newland said during his visit to the Cooks Landing site on the Columbia River.

Inadequate sewer and power systems, unsuitable housing or shelter, and other conditions at some sites make them unappealing to many tribal members who might want to visit them.

“People know these sites exist. They just don’t want to bring their kids down here, though,” DeCoteau said.

“Do we have to teach our next generation of leaders if they don’t even feel safe coming to these sites where they can catch a really rare fish?”

Takala and DeCoteau said they’re optimistic that the $880 million infusion, along with the two recent visits from government officials and lawmakers, is a sign the government is taking its promises seriously.

“Things don’t happen overnight,” Takala said at the Cooks Landing site. “But I hope that we are moving forward to the next steps.”
